Music and pageantry by the light of the stars! And a crashing crescendo of fireworks!

A three hour entertainment that enchants the ear and delights the eye. More than that—a spectacle that lifts the heart.

That is the fifth annual Chicagoland Music Festival that goes on at Soldiers' field tonight. THE TRIBUNE bids you welcome.

Here you will find a great feast of melody — 10,000 performers selected from 17 states and Canada, with bands, choruses, soloists, and community singing by the great audience.

Al Jolson Will Sing.

And here's the superlative treat that THE TRIBUNE has arranged for you at the last moment. Al Jolson will be there!

Al Jolson, dean of mammy singers, favorite son of the stage and screen! En route from New York to Hollywood, where he is going to make a new film, Al is stopping off in Chicago just to sing for you at the festival.

He will sing two songs—love lyrics. They are "I Only Have Eyes for You" and "Dames." You may hear them on the screen, but here is your chance to hear them sung in person by one of America's greatest entertainers.

An impresario standing in Soldiers' field tonight perhaps would marvel that even with the months of planning and preparation such a range of talent could be brought together.

Massed Bands and Choruses.

Massed bands, moving in intricate maneuvers; huge choruses blending in songs that have been beloved by men and women through the years; drummers and buglers—a regiment of them; a host of costumed dancers; the prize bands and prize choruses found in our own Chicagoland; brilliant soloists; 4,000 Boy Scouts in a pioneer scene and circus; a fireworks tableau that blazons against the night the story of the struggle of the American people for liberty and independence.

You and the man and woman next to you and every one else in the great amphitheater rising to join in the old favorite melodies—singing for the pure joy of singing.

And above all the golden voice of John Charles Thomas, one of the great baritones of the world. He sings the prologue from Leoncavello's "Pagliacci." He sings—and down the reaches of Soldiers' field Pagliacci, the clown, lives again in the aria dear to all the world, telling again the story of the tear behind the laugh in life.

Spectators Part of It.

You and every one else in the audience will be part of the spectacle. And the cost of this musical treat? Room for all at 25 cents a seat. Fifty cents buys you a reserved seat. You can't afford to miss this spectacle—a treat for both the eye and the ear.

Is it details you want to know? Here they are:

At 6:30 tonight 600 drummers and buglers march into the field in the preliminary parade. Up and down the field they go in their holiday costumes, sounding their music.

An hour later the program proper begins with the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the special festival band of 100 pieces, conducted by Victor Grabel, musical director of the festival. Then the band plays the fiery "Allegro Con Brio" from the finale of Tschaikowsky's fourth symphony. Following them are songs by the winning choruses, quartet, and

SILK, WOOL AND RAYON WORKERS VOTE WALKOUT

Join 500,000 Textile Employes.

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Strikes involving 325,000 additional workers were voted tonight in the woolen and worsted, silk, rayon and synthetic rayon knitters' industries by the convention of the United Textile Workers of America. The convention yesterday voted a strike in the cotton textile industry, which employs 500,000 workers.

The votes to call out workers allied with the cotton textile industry were by a large majority, but not unanimous.

In the silk and rayon industries the delegates left to the discretion of the new executive committee of the United Textile Workers of America and the executive committees of their own branches the time the strikes were to be called.

Woolen and worsted and synthetic rayon workers, however, decided to go out at the same time as the cotton textile employés. The convention had voted to call the cotton textile strike at twelve hours' notice on or before Sept. 1.

Attacks Effect of NRA.

Russel Wood, president of the Silk Workers' federation, said there were 125,000 workers in that industry, although not all are members of the union.

"Conditions in the silk and rayon industry are the same as those in the cotton industry," said Frank Schweitzer of Paterson, N. P., who introduced the silk and rayon resolution.

"Since the advent of the NRA the silk industry has been in worse condition than it ever was before."

Representatives at the convention said that there are 150,000 workers employed in the woolen and worsted industry and 50,000 in the synthetic rayon. All of the workers, however, are not members of the unions.

No estimates were available tonight as to the percentage of workers affiliated with the groups which voted the strikes.

Brain Trust May Help.

As the union aims its strike at southern textile operators it is almost certain to have the united backing of the radical brain trusters in Washington. There are reports that some members of the brain trust have already assured the union of their support.

Brain trusters are anxious to "crack down" on southern concerns, such as the Harriman Hosiery company of Tennessee, which have been defying organized labor. Radical New Dealers believe Gen. Johnson and the NRA have not been sufficiently insistent in enforcing collective bargaining under Section 7A on southern plants. They would welcome a strike to force the issue.

Oppose Wage Differential.

Radicals in the administration would also support a strike aimed at cutting down the wage differential between southern and northern textile mills. Brain trust members regard the southern mills as little better than sweatshops, paying low wages and harboring bad working conditions.

If the union, however, should make its strike, originally aimed at the southern plants, a general demand for increased wages and shorter hours it will meet a considerable opposition. The NRA, after studying the cotton textile industry, is convinced that the workers have already netted very handsome wage increases.

President Roosevelt, on whom the government's attitude will eventually hinge, has not made up his mind.

Promised U. S. Relief.

The cotton strikers will receive government relief the same as others in distress unless the federal agency handling the strike calls it "unjustified."

Relief administration officials reiterated that policy today when told of the strike vote in New York. So far, they said, they had never been advised a strike was "unjustified," and relief had been given many strikers through regular channels.

Requests for relief, however, they said, usually did not start coming in for several weeks after strikes began. The strikers usually had enough savings to last them a while, they pointed out.

Put on NRA Labor Board.

Despite his appointment to the labor advisory board of the National Recovery administration, Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, today pledged himself to push the plans for the strike.

Mr. McMahon later said he appreciated the "courtesy" of Gen. Hugh

Long Lashes a Merry Whip to Pass Bills

Baton Rouge, La., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long's legislative supporters, after indorsing a resolution calling for a sweeping investigation of Long's New Orleans political enemies, combined efforts tonight to pass by sunrise tomorrow bills which his opponents contend will give the boss of Louisiana "more power than one man should have."

Twenty-seven bills were passed in the first eighty minutes. These bills, including measures establishing a state constabulary, giving the governor unlimited powers to use the militia and to grant clemency, broadening the state administration's election authority, and striking at the election strength of the New Orleans old regular faction, were advanced at a rapid pace through the senate finance committee and then moved through to third reading at the senate meeting.

Makes Speed Records.

At this hour the senate is still breaking speed records.

An attack on one bill, which Long said would put an end to lotteries in New Orleans, was made by one of his own followers in committee and the old regular floor leader in the senate.

Denouncing what he said were many lotteries in New Orleans that "took beans out of hungry mouths," Long ran into opposition on the lottery bill from Senator R. A. Wingrave, one of his own New Orleans supporters.

Wingrave said the penalty of from two to three years in the penitentiary provided in the bill against lottery promoters was too steep and that the bill would interfere with church drawings.

"Into a Bad Fix."

"Three years! Can you imagine that!" Wingrave asserted. "Just for taking a chance on a car in a church drawing!"

Long said that "any church that couldn't exist without a lottery had got itself into a bad fix."

Joviality marked the speedy approval of bills by the senate committee, with even the two opposition members, E. C. Brc.ltmann and Joseph Bistes, joining in the festival.

Long came into the committee room, followed by José Messina, who escorts him nearly everywhere, with a broad smile on his face.

Grabbing up a bill, Long would announce that Senator Wingate offers his amendment. Senator Wingate would nod his head solemnly.

"No More Ballot Thefts."

"This bill will fix it so we can be sure there will not be any more ballot box stealing. It conforms to the ideas of the Honest Election league in New Orleans," said Long.

"The Honest Election league?" in-

Two men were killed last evening when the monoplane in which they were riding crashed on the Pal-Waukee airport at Milwaukee and Palatine roads. They were Alcid Normandin, 35 years old, 3330 North Troy street, pilot, and O. A. Croft, 38 years old, 4526 Malden avenue, passenger.

Taking off at Curtiss-Reynolds field, Glenview, at about 7 p. m. Normandin guided the ship over the Pal-Waukee field at a low altitude. Apparently he was attempting to make a bank when the craft went out of control.

Croft was killed immediately and Normandin died in Des Plaines Emergency hospital.

The plane, a Cardinal with a 90 horse power Le Blond motor, had been rented by its owner, Norman Doerr of 3656 North Cicero avenue, to Normandin. Doerr said that Normandin held a transport pilot's license and was a former airplane mechanic. Croft was a motor boat mechanic.

Deputy Coroner Brodie ordered Doerr held overnight at the Morton Grove highway police station for the inquest this morning. Mrs. Normandin told Deputy Brodie that her husband held a mechanic's license, but not a pilot's license, and therefore should not have been permitted to fly.

USES ICE TO FREE FINGER OF BOY FROM KEYHOLE

Astoria, N. Y., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The ancient physical law that cold contracts, heat expands, was applied successfully today by Dr. Frank Ciafone, of St. John's hospital of Long Island City, to free Andrew Ellen, 4, who had stuck his finger in the keyhole of a lock on the gate of a playground.

Andrew pulled and pulled, but only wedged his finger more firmly. At length the physician was called. He got a table on which he set the tiring youngster. Then he hailed an iceman, chopped a hunk of ice into small pieces and packed it around Andrew's hand. When the imprisoned finger had contracted, Dr. Ciafone took soap shavings and forced them into the lock, allowing Andrew to slide his finger out. The release took 20 minutes, but the finger had been imprisoned for several hours. Beyond a minor abrasion, Andrew was unhurt.

Militiamen Seize Reds; Kick 'Em Out of Camp

National Guardsmen encamped on the lake front in Grant park took the law into their own hands Thursday when five communists were found in the camp distributing radical literature. They were taken before Maj. James U. Sammis, who ordered their literature confiscated and that they be ejected from the camp. The youths left rubbing spots where heavy brogans of privates and "noncoms" had landed.

Mothers Mail Girls to Dads by Parcel Post

Alcoa, Tenn., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Two families whose ties were severed when a strike closed the Aluminum Company of America's plants here, were reunited today when little Marmi Hood and Eve Rees Hedge rode proudly into the plants as parcel post packages to see their daddies.

During the week that the 1,900 workers have been on strike practically everything else has gone into the plants by parcel post to the 200 men "marooned" inside. Today the two mothers decided there was no reason why their children shouldn't see their fathers if they wanted to.

Postmaster Helps Out.

Postmaster Ben Kinzer was willing.

And so the mothers, neither of whom has seen her husband for a week, marched to the parcel post window, had their daughters, aged 5 and 4, weighed in, tagged them properly, and trusted them to Uncle Sam.

At the plant, where they were delivered, the two tots were signed for in the routine manner, and were held at the office until they were called for by their fathers.

Children Mailed Back.

After a visit of about two hours the children were "mailed" back again. They were taken to the Alcoa company postoffice and from there sent "special" delivery back to their mothers.

The postage each way amounted to $2.26.

QUAKE IN JAPAN; TIES UP RAILWAY LINES AT NOGOYA

TOKIO, Aug. 18 (Saturday).—(AP)—A heavy earthquake struck the Nogoya district of Japan at 11:38 a. m. today, disrupting all railway trafic and other communication north of Nogoya.

The quake center was estimated to be 40 miles north of the city of Nogoya, a large and populous center midway between Tokio and Kioto, approximately 160 miles from the capital.

Railway tunnels and bridges were damaged in the valley of the Nagara river.

The city of Kioto was severely shaken. The quake was called the "strongest in central Japan in several years." A slight tremor was felt in Tokio.

POND, SABELLI START RETURN FLIGHT TO U. S.

ROME, Aug. 18 [Saturday].—(AP)—George Pond and Cesare Sabelli hopped off at 7:02 a. m. today [1:02 a. m. Chicago time] for Dublin, en route to the United States on a return flight.

Mob Attacks Buses; Union Blames Reds

Assertions that communists have taken advantage of the strike called against the Chicago Motor Coach company by local 1022 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Railway and Motor Coach Employés and are inciting violence and disorder were made last night by union officials.

A direct statement was made by William Taber, international secretary treasurer of the Amalgamated union, after two buses had been stoned at Kostner avenue and Jackson boulevard by a crowd of about 1,000, among whom were many women.

He declared that handbills of communist origin had been distributed about car barns and elevated railroad terminals, urging that employés of these lines go on strike in sympathy with the bus employés who walked out. These bills also attacked Taber and William Quinlan, union president.

Federation Resents Interference.

"Communist agitators have operated under the name of spurious 'rank and file' committees in several strikes called recently by American Federation of Labor unions," Taber declared. "They have tried to incite violence; they attempted it unsuccessfully in the stockyards strike. The federation has no use for communists. Four years ago our union had a cleanup and fired twenty men found to belong to that group."

Aside from the Jackson boulevard troubles, during which three men were arrested, there were a few sporadic attacks on buses by stone throwers. Two persons were injured. Arthur Zoller, 32 years old, 3642 North Sacramento avenue, was struck on the head during the mob attack and Mrs. Lona Smith, colored, 35 years old, 5842 South Park way, suffered a similar injury at Mayfield avenue and Washington boulevard. Several bus drivers were bruised by stones.

Roosevelt Takes a Hand.

President Roosevelt, in Washington, announced that he would investigate the strike personally. He informed interviewers that he would seek to learn why the NRA had failed to act and to obtain a settlement. The national labor relations board has urged that the company's Blue Eagle be taken from it, but Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, has delayed carrying the recommendation into effect.

Presumably the President will decide, as a result of his investigation, whether to side with the labor board or with the apparently compromising attitude of the general.

Both the union and the company officials were firm in their denials that any compromise would be made. The union has demanded recognition and the reinstatement of 24 men who were discharged. The company, which says that only 54 of its employés have walked out, contends that the Motor Coach fraternity, a company union, has been chosen by an overwhelming majority of the workers to represent them.

500 Attack Vehicle.

Early in the evening the disorder which the communists are alleged to have fomented broke out in West Jackson boulevard. First a bus was bombarded with stones and vegetables. John Fitton, 29 years old, 3820 Fulton street, charged with hurling a brick into the vehicle, was arrested.

Later nearly 500 men and boys took possession of another bus and after forcing the passengers out attempted to turn it over. John Gormley, 44 years old, 4431 Van Buren street, said to be an elevated road motorman, was seized as the leader of this vandalism.

MY COUP SAVED NATION! HITLER TELLS GERMANY

Defends Seizure of Supreme Power.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAMBURG, Germany, Aug. 17.—Addressing a huge gathering in the Hamburg town hall in his one campaign speech before Sunday's plebiscite, Chancellor Hitler tonight justified his assumption of the late President von Hindenburg's duties. He declared that foreign interests would have plunged Germany into chaos again had he hesitated.

A new national calamity would have followed with the office vacant, he declared in a thundering denunciation of Germany's unnamed enemies, whom he accused of seeking both the destruction of his régime and of German unity. Hitler said he was forced to act instantly in seizing Hindenburg's powers to avert fresh disaster.

Says He Anticipated Result.

In any event, he added, the result would have been the same in the long run. In acting quickly, Hitler said, he anticipated the action of the people, who, he confidently predicted, will return overwhelming indorsement of his decision on Sunday when they vote simply "yes" or "no" on their ballots.

"When our aged field marshal and reichspresident, after a blessed lifetime, closed his eyes, there were not a few people outside the reich who saw in his death the beginning of serious internal fights in Germany," he said. "Elements which we shall never be able to recognize at once trembled, so to speak, with anticipatory fears. But, as is too often the case, the wish was father to the thought.

"'Impending collapse of the Nazi movement,' 'Fight between the Nazi party and the reichswehr,' 'Leaders quarreling about the succession'—these were the catchwords of a press whose earnest sympathy with the fate of our people is known to the world.

Says Game Was Frustrated.

"These circles probably cherished the hope that the reich—without a leader for weeks—would offer possibilities for throwing into confusion public opinion here and abroad, and by endless intrigues adding to the already existing international uncertainties.

"This game has been frustrated in the interests of the German people and the reich."

Hitler's appearance in Hamburg was attended by throngs of people, who gathered in the public squares to hear his speech broadcast from loud speakers. He was given a tremendous ovation by the population, which had promised him the largest reception ever given in Hamburg, once a favorite city of the former kaiser.

Hitler asserted that the office of reichspresident will disappear.

"Cannot Be Replaced."

"The field marshal-reichspresident was a unique personality who cannot be replaced," he said. "His mission as reichspresident found its fulfillment in himself. No one in the future shall take that title.

"And no matter how logical the union of the two functions may be, and how constitutionally and lawfully the reich government has solved this problem, I must decline to derive the right to this gigantic step of reforming the German reich merely from previously granted power."

He referred to the enabling act passed by the last reichstag.

"No!" he shouted, "the people themselves shall decide! By combining the posts of chancellor and president I am not anticipating the final form of Germany's future constitution. But I believe I shall succeed in adding in the future new honor to the title 'German chancellor.'"

Assails Rule Under Republic.

The new reichsfuehrer then launched into a tirade against the rule of Germany under the republic. Politics, he asserted, had split the country into some 46 parties, which destroyed national unity. He said government under such a system is not capable of action but "only of compromise."

Under such a system, he said, German prosperity would always be an impossibility, and he made no secret of the economic trials faced by his own government. But out of the welter of theories, he announced, his own party, uniting the two conflicting ideas of nationalism and socialism, had been the salvation of Germany.

"When I entered political life," he said, "I did so with a burning oath to destroy the party system of Germany and erect in its stead a German national community.

"My conviction was, if the surrender of self is possible in war, it must be possible in peace, for human beings remain the same. I set to work 15 years ago without money or influence, against all parties, against capitalism and its press, against public opinion, against the power of the state itself.

"Today the fight has led to a success which history some time will describe as the turning point. My ideas proved to be right."

In reply to "foreign strictures about harsh methods," Hitler asserted that the Nazi party had lost 400 persons killed and more than 43,000 wounded.

"We did not wish to shed blood; we did not thirst for revenge; we only wanted to win the people over for a new community system," he said.

His defense of the Nazi system and his plea for the future were based on the contention that whereas it takes 200 to 300 years to build an army, and that religious systems have been training priests for 2,000 years, Nazism is only 15 years old. He pleaded for time—many decades—and staked his head on the result.

"Justice for All."

"For all the future it shall be my endeavor," he said, "to see to it that the political conduct of the state shall rest in the hands of the National Socialist party and that the only bearers of arms shall be the army.

"Above all, this structure gives to the poorer classes and the middle class the security of being led by a régime which has no obligations toward one sided capitalistic interests. Only under such a régime is it possible to hang big thieves as well as little instead of letting them escape.

"This structure also gives the reich the guarantee of dignified representation of its vital interests abroad.

"The world must know two things. First, the German people will never relinquish their honor nor sacrifice their right to equality. The German people, well organized within their borders, will protect the security and independence of the reich against everybody.

Emphasizes Desire for Peace.

"Second, the German government, like the German people, is filled with an unconditional desire to contribute as far as possible to the maintenance of the peace of the world. The German army does not need to rehabilitate the fame of its arms. The German government does not need to strive for success in war, for the régime is unshakably established, and borne by the faith of the whole nation. The government does not need triumphs abroad to strengthen its internal position.

"I do not need the plebiscite votes for myself. The German nation needs them. The nation needs a chancellor who is supported by nation-wide faith before the whole world. I am only your spokesman and the defender of your vital needs. It is hard enough to bear the burdens. I am not responsible for suffering—I bear it for you—with you."

Hitler assured the country that "thanks to the genius of Germany's inventors and authoritarian government," Germany would be able to take care of the needs of its 66,000,000 inhabitants.

"Cannot Ruin Us."

"We will prove to the world that no power on earth can ruin us economically," he declared. "When the others have realized that, they may understand that it is better to cooperate with us instead of fighting economic wars."

He said he had succeeded in "bringing four and one-half million persons back to work and bread in a year and a half. It will be possible to solve the remaining unemployment problem. We will succeed because we must succeed."

He then launched into a bitter attack on his critics, and threatened to crush whoever attempted to rise against him.

"A new state has been created by the Nazi party," he declared. "Its political organization — the Storm Tropers, the Schutz Staffel [Hitler's bodyguards], the Labor Service, and the Labor Front women—must be the melting pot in which the nation is remolded. Those who fail to live model lives must be eliminated.

"I shall not act on the principle of having ignorant, misled little men shot, but in every such case I shall force the guilty ones to their knees before the authority of the Nazi state and its leadership."

Closes Six Day Campaign.

Hitler's address closed six days of intensive activity by Nazis of all ranks to obtain a vote on Sunday which they hope will silence foreign criticism of the chancellor's step in taking over supreme command of the state. It is a campaign without opposition, for all other parties have been disbanded.

Foreign observers see in the bales of campaign literature, compulsory flying of flags, innumerable radio broadcasts and other campaign devices an indication, however, that Nazi leaders are none too sure of a satisfactorily large vote. Estimates from Nazi headquarters predict that 43,000,000 Germans will support Hitler.

The chief weapon in the campaign, Von Hindenburg's political will in which he bequeathed leadership of the reich to Hitler, was defended today from attacks abroad, notably in France, that it is either a forgery or signed by a failing old man unable to understand its contents.

Although it has been announced that there will be no terrorism in the plebiscite, a watch has been placed on certain dwellings by Nazi residents to make sure that other occupants vote.

CATHOLIC ORGAN HITS NAZI ATTACK ON CHRISTIANITY

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—The journal of the Catholic diocese of Berlin demands of Hitler Youth leaders in today's edition an explanation of an attack on Christianity by Acgust Hoppe, Hitler Youth press representative, which appeared in the Nazi magazine Nordland. Hoppe in his command to the Hitler Youth said:

"Throw from you the last remnants of our Christian education, which destroys the character of Nordic man. Hurl from you the Jewish-Christian ideas of sinfulness, pity, and love for your neighbors.

"Carry before you the conquering symbol of the swastika. We must be hard if we would conquer. A curse upon sympathy and mercy! Praised be that which makes us hard and cold so that we may unmoved see the destruction of the evil sons of sound fathers.

"Youths, do you not feel the spirit of your fathers that aroused them to fight against that foregoing doctrine, Christianity? Does not your heart burn to renew this struggle? Seize the weapon of your fathers and conquer with the sword the spirit of your future. In this struggle let Widukind (an ancient Saxon chief), who led uncompromisingly and bitterly in the struggle against the Jewish-Christian invasion, be our example."

JAPAN CHARGES SPIES OF RUSSIA WRECK TRAINS

Outrages in Manchukuo Proved, Army Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 17.—Japanese army headquarters today issued a statement that definite proof had been obtained that soviet Russia's far eastern army is instigating train wrecks and other outrages in Manchukuo. It charged that Russia is employing spies and bandits who are systematically attacking trains carrying Manchukuan and Japanese troops. However, the statement did not state whether the army is taking any action.

Japan is considering issuing a strong warning to the soviets against numerous incidents in Manchukuo, which recently resulted in the arrest of 19 soviet citizens in the railway zone, bringing the total of arrested to 60.

Denies Plans to Use Force.

A spokesman for the government, however, insisted that Japan will take no forcible action after filing the warning. He emphasized that the warning has no connection whatever with the deadlock in the conference for the sale of the Russian interest in the Chinese Eastern railway to Manchukuo.

He branded as a lie a Moscow report that Japan intends to declare martial law in the railway zone to enable Japan to seize the railway, and explained that ample proof was found that those arrested had plotted against Manchukuo.

Soviet Prisoners in Hunger Strike.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—Soviet citizens now under arrest in Harbin, Manchukuo, have gone on hunger strike, according to a report circulated by Tass, the soviet news agency, from Khabarovsk. The station master at Harbin named Sholom, who was arrested Aug. 4, is stated to be in a weakened condition due to a fortnight's fast, and has been transferred to a hospital. The Japanese authorities at Harbin have forbidden the Chinese Eastern railway to transport food supplies from Harbin designed for the use of railway employés at various towns along the line.

Russia Makes New Charges.

MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Police officials in Manchukuo were accused by the Russian press today of trying to starve out Russian employés of the Chinese Eastern railway.

Dispatches from Khabarovsk stated that orders have been issued restricting trade in railway stores which circulate along the line and are the only source of supplies in remote districts between Harbin and Pogranichnaya.

Railway coöperative stores in various towns, these dispatches said, have been required to ask special permission of Manchukuo officials to continue business and employés were threatened with deportation for violation of an order requiring a complete invoice of their stocks and a list of their customers.

Anglo-Jap Accord Rumored.

TOKIO, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Japanese officials were swift with denials today that there was any truth in rumors that a new Anglo-Japanese accord is nearing conclusion, or has already been effected. However, the rumor, replete with denial, made the rounds of diplomatic circles.

A conjectural account, for which no one responsible would vouch, said the two nations would undertake mutually to respect each other's interests in the middle east and far east, leaving Japan a free hand in Manchuria and North China and guaranteeing the neutrality of South China, Japan, the conjectures continue, would agree to the inviolability of British India, the Malay and the Dutch East Indies.

The rumors also insist that the two powers, under the accord, would abandon the present scheme of naval limitation, leaving each nation free to build as much as it considers it needs. Regarding soviet Russia, the reports state, each would accord the other benevolent neutrality, in the event Japan clashes with the soviets in the far east or Britain breaks with Russia in central Asia.

SEIZE SUSPECT IN EDGEWATER BEACH BOMBING

Traced through a telephone call made to the chief house detective at the Edgewater Beach hotel, Orville Money, 28 years old, of 195 East Chestnut street, was held for investigation by police last night in connection with the bombing of the hotel Tuesday.

The anonymous phone call came to Theodore Kuhn, the house detective, and a voice said:

"What kind of a cop are you? I threw that bomb, and you lay off the waiters' union or get bumped off."

Kuhn kept the man in conversation until the call was traced and Sergt. G. B. Shannon of the Chicago avenue police sent to a drug store at 900 Rush street. Money was found in a phone booth there, but denied making the call. He was identified as a former bus boy at the hotel.

Earlier Judge Harold P. O'Connell dismissed nine men and four women arrested while picketing the hotel in connection with the strike of waiters, cooks and electricians.

CUBAN CABINET SPLITS; MENOCAL PARTY RESIGNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Aug. 17.—After a five hour conference, in which President Carlos Mendieta and former President Mario Menocal made a last minute effort to patch up political difficulties, Menocal tonight announced that his party had definitly severed connections with the government. He immediately ordered his representatives in the cabinet to resign. They are Secretary of Health Santiago Verdeja and Secretary of Public Works Daniel Compte.

Mendieta received both resignations tonight, and the Menocalistas thus joined the already strong opposition to the government. Mendieta and his Nationalistas party will now govern Cuba exclusively.

Business Men Pessimistic.

News of Menocal's withdrawal from coöperation with Mendieta spread rapidly throughout the island, causing much excitement in political centers. It was marked by pessimism in business circles.

Some political observers said Mendieta should not have consented to Menocal's withdrawal under any consideration. They fear the opposition now will greatly increase, virtually annulling all efforts Mendieta may make to restore political peace to a sufficiently firm basis to assure his present plan of holding elections in December, after which the constitutional assembly delegates would name a new provisional president.

May Bring Mendieta Down.

Menocal is now certain to become the leader of the opposition, observers believe. He will be Mendieta's most formidable rival, and it is believed not impossible that he may bring about the president's downfall. Former President Grau San Martin's Radical party announced today that it will bitterly oppose ratification of the new reciprocity treaty between Cuba and the United States. They charge the terms arranged by Mendieta, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, American Ambassador Jefferson Caffery, and Col. Fulgencio Batista were drawn up with the sole purpose of exploiting Cuban trade.

KLAN ASSAILS LONG AS 'SOCIETY'S MENACE'; MOVES FOR OUSTER

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The Ku Klux Klan, through Dr. Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard, today characterized Senator Huey Long of Louisiana as a "menace to organized society." Dr. Evans sounded a call for klansmen to work for Long's removal from office.

"The klan has plenty of adherents in Louisiana to do the job and they are preparing to do it at the first opportunity," he declared.

"The klan in militant action against radical alienism naturally opposes alienism of renegade Americans. What he [Long] is trying to do, if accomplished, would aid and comfort radical alienism in this country, and if consummated would destroy the country itself."

While Dr. Evans was assailing Long today George W. Christians, commander of the "Crusaders White Shirts," was assailing the klan from his headquarters in Chattanooga, Tenn. He said the klan had dropped racial and religious issues to fight communism.

terrupted Senator Wingate. "I'm ag'in it!"

Once Richard Leche, secretary to the governor, jocularly announced:

"Senator Wingate offers another amendment."

"Wait a minute," Senator Brodtmann broke in. "What is this? Here we have the governor's secretary speaking for a member of the committee. Just who's on this committee anyhow?"

"Passed!—Next Bill!"

Chairman Dore cut in:

"Do I hear any objections to the amendments? Hearing none, the amendments stand adopted, 10 to 2. Next bill."

Two papers were tossed at Long.

"Senator Wingate offers one amendment. We don't want this other one," he said blandly, pocketing the second sheet of paper.

"I object on behalf of Senator Brodtmann," Secretary Leche chimed in.

"Aw, wait a minute," Brodtmann complained. "This is going too fast. It's getting to be more than a burlesque. I'd like to know just what the bill is."

"Well," Long replied, "this is a bill about the city charter of New Orleans that merely puts it back where it was before 1932."

"But what is it?" Brodtmann persisted.

"O, it provides ——"

Dore terminated the discussion.

"Another Good Bill."

"Do I hear any objection to this bill? Hearing none, it is reported favorably, ten to two."

"This is another good bill that ought to be passed," Long counseled.

"Is there any discussion? There being no further discussion, the bill stands favorably reported, ten to two," sang out Dore.

"But what does it mean?" some member asked, somewhat feebly.

"Gentlemen," the chairman breezed on, "that's all the bills. The committee now stands adjourned—sine die."

Later the bills went into the senate itself for passage and they are having easy sailing there.

ITALY TO PLEDGE MILITARY AID FOR AUSTRIAN REGIME

Chancellor Is to Visit Duce Next Week.

ROME, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Italy's readiness to come actively to the aid of the new Austrian government if Vienna requests such action, semi-official sources indicated today, will be set forth next Wednesday in a conference between Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Schuschnigg.

The two heads of governments will meet in Florence, convenient to the Italian war maneuvers, which the premier and his cabinet members will attend. The maneuvers will begin Sunday and continue five days, taking place between Florence and Bologna.

Mussolini is understood to be prepared to offer Schuschnigg the same support he gave the late Chancellor Dollfuss. The meeting will be a substitute for one Mussolini and Dollfuss planned about the time the latter was assassinated.

Il Duce's offer of aid will not be made in the light of any immediate necessity, but rather as an assurance for unforeseen emergencies in the future.

Italy's belief that the Austrian situation will remain calm for the time being at least was demonstrated yesterday by the withdrawal of troops sent to the border during the Nazi uprising last month.

POLICE BREAK UP PARADE AGAINST VIRGIN I. CHIEF

ST. CROIX, Virgin Islands, Aug. 17.—(AP)—A parade marching to the government building at Christiansted to demand the resignation of Gov. Paul M. Pearson was stopped by police today before it reached its destination.

The demonstration, one of a series against the Pearson administration, was organized by Morris Davis, president of the Roosevelt-Garner Democratic club, and Anselmo Fabio, member of the St. Croix Colonial council. At a meeting preceding the parade the governor was denounced.

LABATT THROWS VEIL OF SECRECY ABOUT KIDNAPING

Family Refuses to Tell if Ransom Was Paid.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 17.—John S. Labatt, wealthy brewer of this city, was recovering in his home here tonight from his harrowing experience in the hands of kidnapers who held him 56 hours before releasing him from an automobile on the outskirts of Toronto early this morning.

Dr. W. J. Tillman, the Labatt family physician, was in attendance upon the brewer most of the day. The physician said Labatt had been well treated by the kidnapers, but is suffering from nervous collapse brought on by his terrifying experiences. Labatt's eyes are badly inflamed as a result of tape which the kidnapers had pasted over them, but outside of the collapse, which the physician said quietness will overcome, he is in good condition.

Mystery Still Veils Case.

Much mystery still surrounded the case, which the family refused to clear up and which the authorities said they were unable to clarify. Whether ransom had been paid for the release of the brewer was the subject of conflicting statements. One source said the full $150,000 demanded by the kidnapers had been paid. Another source said "less than $50,000" had been paid. Still another source said nothing had been paid. The best information, however, was that some ransom had been paid.

R. G. Ivey, lawyer for the family and for the Labatt brewery, said:

"It may seem arbitrary to tell you no more, but Gen. D. C. Draper, chief of police of Toronto, feels that more would be harmful at this time. There are reasons why no more can be said."

He declined to explain what these reasons might be.

Nab Suspect in Toronto.

Toronto police tonight arrested Edward Chard, 22, of Toronto, as the author of telephone calls to Hugh Labatt's hotel suite Thursday morning demanding $5,000 and naming a rendezvous at the Humber river bridge in the west of Toronto. Chard, who, police say, admits having made the calls from a gasoline station at the Humber bridge and representing himself as one of the kidnapers, faces a double charge of attempted theft of $5,000 and of demanding $5,000 by menace.

Attorney General A. W. Roebuck of Ontario issued a statement during the day in which he criticized the handling of the case. He charged that there had been "lack of cooperation" with the authorities. The provincial police tonight appeared to be completely ignorant of the arrangements made by the family with the kidnapers.

The attorney general's statement also told some of the details of Labatt's release and of the events following the release up to the time he limped, haggard and unshaven, into the lobby of the Royal York hotel in Toronto, where he was reunited with his brother, Hugh, who had conducted negotiations with the abductors.

Still Blindfolded on Release.

The attorney general's statement said:

"Mr. Labatt was released in Toronto last night or early this morning. He was blindfolded and had been continuously blindfolded since the time he was taken. He was left in the vicinity of Forest Hill village, from where he took a taxi to the Royal York hotel.

"He was immediately carried from there, by his own friends, in a car to London.

"At the time of his release he drove between five and six hours, he thinks, but his judgment is that of a man blindfolded.

"He also thinks the kidnapers were killing time in the latter drive in waiting for darkness.

In Ontario All the Time.

"At the time of his capture he drove around for a time which he estimates at 12 hours. He was in Ontario all the time. He has no knowledge of having passed over any water.

"For some reason those who took charge of him failed to notify either Toronto or provincial police.

"His arrival resulted in a lack of coöperation between the authorities and his friends. There is no hot trail of the abductors. It is most unfortunate and unnecessary that the police forces of both the province and the city have been very seriously handicapped in their work by their inability to secure complete control of the situation.

"Mr. Labatt arrived at London at 3:45 a. m. today. In this office there is no knowledge as to what financial arrangements, if any, have been made between the friends of the captured man and the criminals. Whatever arrangement was made did not come either from Hugh Labatt or his solicitor, Mr. Ivey.

Three or Four Men in Car.

"We are now clearly certain that the contact made in Toronto was a genuine one. I might add that Mr. Labatt's eyes were closed with adhesives and glasses drawn over the adhesive tape. When let out of the car he was told not to remove either the tape or the glasses until the auto had moved on.

"There were three or four men in the car when he was released, in addition to himself. There were two men when he was kidnaped.

"It will be observed that owing to the exclusion of the police from the transaction in its closing hours there is very little out of the incident on which investigators can build.

"I have not told all the police know nor have I indicated what has been done, but I am confident that in due season there will be a solution of this crime.

Criticizes Lack of Control.

"We have in Ontario a large number of municipal police forces and one very large one in Toronto. In a crisis such as the one we have passed through there has been every desire to coöperate. The minister of justice at Ottawa offered the help of the dominion police, but there has been no unified control and no one person who could dictate to every man in the various forces what he must do or say.

"I have been in touch with Mr. Ivey. Just now he telephoned at London. At the present moment John Labatt is being interviewed by Inspector John Miller of the provincial police and every detail is being secured from him.

"He is in bed at his home. The house is guarded by provincial police. There is to be no access to him for some little time. While there is no authority, as there should be, for the police to take charge of the individuals concerned, the family is coöperating to the extent of allowing Inspector Miller to issue orders within the household.

Wants Relatives Held.

"I think the time must surely arrive when authority will be given to uniformed police forces to take charge of the relatives and all their affairs in cases of this kind so that, in spite of themselves, they may be prevented from becoming the victims of racketeers."

A brief statement was handed to the press at London this afternoon by John C. Elliott, former federal minister of public works and a member of the law firm of Ivey, Elliott & Gillanders, solicitors for the Labatt family. It follows:

"John Labatt was intercepted about 9:30 a. m. by three men in a car which had passed him going in the same direction, and after going some distance ahead had turned around and met him, placing their car across the road. Two armed men got out and insisted on him getting out of his car and going into their car, in which he was driven for about twelve hours. Hugh Labatt is at his residence in London, and it is there that Mr. John Labatt and his wife and family are staying at the present time."

The more than 1,000 police officers who were engaged in the hunt for Labatt are now taking up an intensified hunt for his kidnapers. The authorities are more than ever convinced that American gangsters are involved and that there is a connection with illicit liquor men.

REPAIRS STEPS, MARRIES OWNER; HE'S 76, SHE'S 57

A romance that began when Thomas Peacock, 75 years old, repaired the front porch on the home of Mrs. Sarah Fletcher, 57 years old, both of Lockport township, ripened into their marriage Thursday, it was revealed yesterday.

Peacock, a bachelor living north of Lockport, was formerly a carpenter contractor. Three years ago Mrs. Fletcher, a widow, called him to repair her front porch. That was their first meeting. A year later Mr. Peacock asked the widow to marry him. She demurred until recently.

SAY DIXIE PASTOR ON WAY TO JOIN MRS. M'PHERSON

Bare Ransom Note Sent to Evangelist.

Goldsboro, N. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Reports that the Rev. R. H. Askew, reputedly kidnaped, was instead en route to join Aimee Semple McPherson in spreading the "Four Square Gospel," coupled with word that the famous woman evangelist had been threatened on his account, brought renewed activity by investigators here tonight.

Sheriff Paul Garrison received word tonight from Kinston that Askew had told a minister there that he planned to become one of Sister Aimee's disciples in Los Angeles. The conversation was said to have taken place last week, several days before Askew disappeared after leaving his home with word that he planned a business trip to nearby Smithfield.

Bare Receipt of Letter.

Almost simultaneously the sheriff was advised that Mrs. McPherson's representatives in Los Angeles had received a letter from Richmond, Va., demanding $25,000 ransom under the threat of killing Askew and bombing her Angelus temple. Sister Aimee is conducting a revival at Canton, O.

Earlier it became known that Mrs. Askew had received a telegram from Washington, signed "Cortez" and apparently from the purported kidnapers, saying: "Have the money ready Saturday."

On Wednesday, the day after her evangelist husband disappeared, she received a note, postmarked here the day before, demanding $25,000 "or you will never see your husband alive again." The Washington telegram, it was learned tonight, was sent yesterday.

Report Angelus Temple Letter.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Officials of Angelus temple here turned over to Chief of Police James E. Davis today a letter demanding $25,000 of Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist, for the release of R. H. Askew, North Carolina pastor, who is a kidnap victim.

"Get $25,000 at once or you will lose your worker, Askew, in North Carolina," the letter said. "This better be forthcoming or your temple will be blown up. Everything is set."

The letter was mailed Aug. 15 from Richmond, Va. It was typewritten on plain white paper.

LOOT POLICEMAN'S HOME.

Burglars entered early yesterday the home of Policeman John Laughlin of the Englewood station at 6210 South Maplewood avenue and took two revolvers, a $50 watch, two silk shirts valued at $10, and $40 in pennies.

POLICE INVOLVE JAMES CAGNEY WITH RED CAUSE

Film Star Denies He Gave Money to Communists.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Letters which police said indicated James Cagney, red haired film star, had given money to communists were disclosed in Sacramento today, but the actor, who said he was proud to call himself "a 100 per cent American," vigorously denied the implication.

Police Detective Ray Kuns said letters seized from communist sympathizers in Sacramento named the actor and indicated he had given the radical movement financial support.

Kuns said the letters, purportedly written by Ella Winter of Carmel to Caroline Decker, Sacramento communist official, would be introduced as evidence in a forthcoming criminal syndicalism trial.

Red Money from Film Stars.

Kuns's announcement and Cagney's denial came on the heels of a charge in Los Angeles by Police Captain William Hines that communists had received money from several film stars.

This statement, made at the close of a recent congressional subcommittee investigation into un-American activities, was not enlarged upon by Hines, who declined to name the film stars he said were involved. He said the matter had been taken up with certain studios.

Soon after he had been advised of the developments in Sacramento Cagney issued a formal statement here in which he denied he had ever contributed to any radical cause.

Cagney's Statement.

His statement said:

"If Ella Winter wrote such a letter as has been reported found by the police, and which I can hardly believe she did, then she had no right to do so, because I had never expressed any intention of coming to the aid of any one trying to upset our government.

"I am proud to call myself a 100 per cent American. This old country of ours has been pretty good to me. I started with nothing, worked hard, and today am very comfortable. I believe that nowhere else is there the same glorious opportunity for any one willing to work hard as in America. It certainly would be ridiculous for me to align myself with any communistic, socialistic, Nazi, White Shirts, Silver Shirts, or any other un-American movement."

Writes of Cagney's Money.

Miss Winter, wife of Lincoln Steffens, author, has been identified by state and local authorities as being a close friend of Miss Decker, who is secretary of the Cannery and Industrial Workers' union.

"I have Cagney's money again," read one of the letters signed "Ella" and addressed to "Caroline." "Cagney was fine this time and is going to bring other stars up to talk with Stef about communism.

"He wrote a piece for the Screen Actors' guild, which, as you know, is heading the employes' rebellion against the producers, even though employes get $3,500 a week."

MINNEAPOLIS CHICAGO ST. PAUL

REFUNDING BOND PLAN APPROVED BY CITY COUNCIL

Will Meet Debt Payments Due Jan. 1.

The city council, at a special meeting yesterday, authorized the issue of sufficient city and board of education refunding bonds to carry out the plan for meeting city and school board debt payments on the first of the year which Mayor Kelly arranged a few days ago with loop banks.

The city has $12,449,000 in bonds maturing Jan. 1 and the school board has $5,500,000 maturing Jan. 1 and $900,000 worth due on Feb. 1. The city has $5,500,000 in its sinking fund, accumulated from taxes, to meet the bond maturities, but virtually all of the school bonds will have to be refinanced.

Will Use Sinking Fund Cash.

Under the refunding plan the city will use its sinking fund cash first, and refunding bonds will be offered to other holders of city bonds and of school bonds. The banks have agreed to purchase all of the refunding bonds not exchanged for maturing bonds, giving cash to pay the bondholders. The city bonds will bear 4½ per cent interest and the school bonds 4¾ per cent.

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee, and City Controler Robert B. Upham pointed out that the interest rate reflects an improvement in city credit. Previous refunding issues have borne interest as high as 6 per cent.

Makes Tax Cut Possible.

Because the bonds are being refunded instead of retired, the arrangement ratified yesterday will mean a substantial reduction in 1933 tax bills, due next year. Levies for retirement of the maturing bonds will be revoked with a net reduction of 1933 tax bills in the neighborhood of $10,000,000.

U.S. ALCOHOL BODY TO LET STATES RUN LIQUOR SALES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Federal Alcohol Control administration is opposed to the idea of regulating dram shops, beer gardens, and other retail liquor outlets under a national code.

Harris E. Willingham, acting director of the organization, said so today in disclosing that several proposals for such a code have been made to the administration and turned down.

"The board feels," he said, "that the 21st amendment to the constitution clearly promised to give the states jurisdiction over the actual sale of liquor to the consumer."

Wife Asks Divorce and Sues 'Other Woman' for $100,000

George C. Bulloch, owner of the Radeograph company, a financial service at 209 West Jackson boulevard, yesterday was sued for divorce by his wife, Naomi, on grounds of desertion, drinking and infidelity.

In a separate bill, filed with the divorce bill in the Superior court, Mrs. Bulloch, who resides at 838 Arlington place, charged that Miss Margaret P. Gilbault, 1400 Lake Shore drive, head nurse in the tuberculosis department of the Oak Forest infirmary, had alienated Bulloch's affections. Mrs. Bulloch asks $100,000 from Miss Gilbault. She also names Miss Gilbault as co-respondent in the divorce suit.

The divorce bill sets forth that the Bullochs were married Dec. 14, 1926, in Hope, Ark., and that Bulloch deserted his wife Nov. 23, 1930.

Charges Threats to Wife.

On Nov. 28 and subsequently, the bill charges, Bulloch has been friendly with Miss Gilbault. Other affairs with unidentified women are also charged in the bill.

For the last two years, the bill relates, Bulloch has failed to care for his wife and one of their three children who lives with her. Bullock is also charged with having threatened his wife with violence if she sued for divorce. The bill asks an injunction restraining him from harming her.

The court was asked to enjoin either Bulloch or Miss Gilbault from disposing of Bulloch's property and money until after the suit is heard. The property includes the yacht Indexograph, valued at $10,000, and money and securities which have been put away in Miss Gilbault's name, the divorce bill charges. Both bills were drawn by Attorney John V. Clinnin.

Bulloch Reported on Yacht.

Neither Bulloch nor Miss Gilbault could be reached for a statement yesterday. At Bulloch's office it was said he was on a trip on his yacht. Employes at the Oak Forest infirmary said Miss Gilbault had the day off. She could not be found at her apartment.

Last February Bulloch was revealed as the so-called "mystery man" in the alleged manipulations by the Ettinger & Brand brokerage firm on the Chicago grain futures market. The deals involved occurred at the time of the collapse of wheat prices in July, 1933. Adrian Ettinger, senior partner in the firm, testified in a hearing in Cleveland before an official of the department of agriculture, that the actions of a group speculating in grain futures were governed by those of Bulloch, owner of a small account with the firm.

VACCINE FOUND FOR PARALYSIS, DOCTOR REPORTS

Calls Discovery 'Preventive, Not a Cure.'

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 17.—(AP)—A victorious end to science's hundred year search for a method to prevent infantile paralysis was promised today by Dr. John A. Kolmer, Temple university professor and medical research director.

After three years of effort, inspired by severe epidemics of the disease, Dr. Kolmer said he has perfected a successful vaccine against the dread infection.

Stressing that the vaccine is entirely a preventive measure and in no way a "cure" for paralysis after infection sets in, the professor said he demonstrated the effectiveness of the fluid in experiments with monkeys and finally with injections into his own body and that of his technical assistant, Miss Anna M. Rule of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

To Vaccinate Own Children.

As an indication of his confidence in his discovery, he declared his intention to vaccinate his two teen-age children.

The vaccine is prepared from the spinal cords of monkeys, Dr. Kolmer explained, much as Pasteur developed his preventative for hydrophobia, or rabies.

Declaring it could be made available for general use without delay and at low cost—probably $2 or $3—the physician predicted it would soon be requested by parents as pre-school vaccination against other diseases is now.

The vaccine, treated with sodium ricinoleate, a chemical substance from castor beans, does not completely kill the paralysis virus, but changes it enough to make the fluid safe for injection into monkeys and humans, Dr. Kolmer stated.

Injected under Skin.

It is injected under the skin, like typhoid, diphtheria, and rabies vaccines, in doses ranging from one-half to three cubic centimeters. Three doses at weekly intervals are considered sufficient for immunization.

Hundreds of persons offered themselves as "test tubes" for experiments with the vaccine, but Dr. Kolmer chose his own body for the first tryout of what he believes a solution to the puzzle infantile paralysis has presented to science since its first appearance about 1830.

He and Miss Rule, he said, took the first injections "with some fear . . . but there were no reactions except slight soreness at the sites of injection and the results were completely successful."

Work Aided by Grant.

With the aid of a grant from the Dr. Daniel J. McCarthy fund of Temple university, the two began their research three years ago after a severe and widespread epidemic.

From one experiment to another they went, until they finally hit on sodium ricinoleate, a well known agent for such purposes.

For two years they worked with monkeys, first infecting the animals by injecting paralysis germs into their brains under ether anesthesia, then removing their spinal cords when the disease brought death. From these cords they obtained the vaccine, one monkey supplying enough for vaccination of about fifty children the required number of times for immunization.

When unvaccinated monkeys were subject to the virus, they became paralyzed in from five to seven days and finally died. Vaccinated animals, on the other hand, remained perfectly healthy after being infected.

Known as Pathologist.

The man who claims credit for ending science's century long quest for an infantile paralysis preventive was born in Lonaconing, Md., 48 years ago. A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and of Villanova college, he taught at the former school before assuming his post as professor of medicine at Temple. He has headed the Institute of Cutaneous Medicine since 1912 and is widely known as a pathologist.

Shot When He Wields Jug of "Moon" on Policeman

Arthur Hoth, 25 years old, of 1710 Brown avenue, Evanston, was shot under the right eye last night by Policeman William Calderwood of the Evanston force when Hoth tried to assault the policeman, using a gallon jug of moonshine whisky as a weapon. Calderwood said he was seeking to question Hoth in an alley behind the latter's home when Hoth began wielding the jug. Hoth was taken to St. Francis hospital.

In Tub and Can't Appear; "Guest" Loots Her Room

When some one entered the room of Mrs. Ina Lancaster in the Hayes hotel, 64th street and University avenue, yesterday, she was in no condition to do anything about it. She was in the bathtub. When she finally got enough clothes on to appear she found she had been robbed of $12, a ring valued at $1,000, and a World's Fair pass. Mrs. Lancaster lives in Duquoin.

Miss Pearl Van Horn of Seattle, who recently was selected queen of the Ellensburg, Wash., annual rodeo, arrived in Chicago yesterday to visit the World's Fair. She will return to Ellensburg in time to preside over the rodeo Sept. 1, 2, and 3. The queen, who is 23 years old, was presented to President Roosevelt recently at the dedication of Coulee dam.

ABANDON BLAZING CRUISER IN LAKE; TWO ARE RESCUED

Driven from their craft by flames after it had caught fire in Lake Michigan two miles off Racine, the skipper and the mess boy of the 80 foot cabin cruiser Shadow were rescued yesterday by a sloop cruising in the vicinity.

The cruiser was owned by Morton Newhall of Lake Bluff, head of the Berwind Fuel company of Chicago, and was captained by John Ostrem, 3315 Evergreen avenue. Ostrem and Esteban Bebitez, Filipino mess boy, were the only ones aboard.

They were on their way to Milwaukee to pick up Newhall, who was visiting in that city, and were then to start a trip to New York. The fire started from a motor short circuit while Ostrem was putting oil in the engine.

He and Bebitez vainly tried to subdue the flames, but when they saw the fire creeping closer and closer to the gasoline tank they abandoned the Shadow and took to a dinghy. The sloop of Robert Wadewitz of Racine picked them up.

Racine coast guards saw the flaming boat and dispatched two power boats. They towed the Shadow into the dock, where Racine firemen assisted in extinguishing the flames. Damage of $3,000 was done.

FINDS ASSASSIN OF HER BROTHER AFTER 6 MONTHS

Six months of patient visits to the detective bureau, where she attended the showups of police characters three times a week, were finally rewarded last night for Mrs. Marie Matson, 6511 Roosevelt road, Berwyn.

She found the man she says shot and killed her brother, Jack Vanders, 35 years old, 1834 North Halsted street, in a robbery last Feb. 8.

Six men who were arrested in a raid on a flat at 3235 Warren avenue last Tuesday were being paraded across the stage of the showup room when Mrs. Matson gave a sudden cry and hurried forward.

She pointed out Anthony Cervino, 21 years old, of 430 South Central Park avenue, as the slayer.

"I loved my brother," she told Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan. "I knew the man who shot him would be in trouble with police again. So I've been coming down here three times a week since Jack was killed. Now I've found the man."

2 BELGIAN YOUTHS BEGIN FLIGHT TO STRATOSPHERE

Pupils of Prof. Piccard Seek Scientific Data.

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOUR-HAVENNE, Belgium, Aug. 18.—[Saturday.]—Two Belgian physicists, mere youngsters in the world of science, Max Cosyns, 28 years old, and Nere van der Elst, 23, early today began their flight to the stratosphere in the balloon twice used by Prof. Auguste Piccard.

The start was made at 6:17 a. m. [12:17 a. m. Chicago time].

The yellow balloon, in which Piccard pioneered to the black-blue sky of the stratosphere, is expected to take his pupils to 17,000 meters [55,774 feet] and, after a ride of perhaps 12 hours, land them in southern Bavaria or Chechoslovakia.

Not Out for a Record.

The trip is certain to set no altitude record, as the balloon is not fit to reach 22,000 meters [72,178 feet] claimed to have been attained by the Russians, Pavil Fedoseinko, Audrey Vasenko, and Illya Usyskin, who lost their lives in the ascension last January. The Belgians' aim is purely scientific—to contribute a little more to the study of the mysterious cosmic ray, whose origin is unknown but which has the power to split the atom and which provides the world's most tremendous motive force.

Neither Piccard nor King Leopold of the Belgians, both of whom were expected at Hour-Havenne, was able to attend the takeoff, but the populace streamed in by airplane, automobile, bus, and afoot to the meadow in the Ardennes where the giant balloon rested behind a double row of barbed wire.

Van der Elst had camped for the last few days next to the balloon, grooming it for the ascension. Cosyns arrived Thursday, followed by his mother. Late in the afternoon 250 soldiers began filling ballast bags with sand. They began filling the balloon with 14,000 cubic meters of hydrogen at midnight.

Gondola 7 Feet in Diameter.

The gondola is an aluminum sphere, 2.20 meters [7.2 feet] in diameter, with the lower part painted black and the upper part white. The balloon was one-sixth filled at the start, as the hydrogen expands in the sun. The balloon is expected to reach a ball shape at 16,000 meters [52,493 feet]. A special device stops the bag at each successive 5,000 meters [16,400 feet] altitude.

"I've reared Max in the solitary spots of Brittany and the Pyrennees," she said, "and I realized that he was unusually talented. I've now built a house for him where everything is designed to give him the quiet a scientist needs. It seems tragic that he is choosing the most dangerous experiments, but I must not interfere with his work, although I haven't slept well at night ever since he went into the stratosphere with Prof. Piccard two years ago."

Van der Elst's young fiancée was the very picture of elated excitement, apparently having no fear of the event.

"We hope to land at 6 p. m. tomorrow, keeping in touch with the earth by radio," Cosyns said. "We won't go higher than 17,000 meters. We have 15 parachutes, and can open the manholes in a second and a half. We have practiced climbing out and reaching for parachutes in 20 seconds."

ALASKA TO U. S. FLIGHT OF ARMY ENDS IN SEATTLE

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Ten huge army bombing planes which have been making an aerial survey of interior Alaska, landed at Boeing field today at 5:55 p. m., completing a nonstop flight of 720 miles from Juneau, capital of Alaska, in 5 hours and 40 minutes.

The bombers soared over Seattle in "three-three-three-one" formation before settling on the field south of the city, after one of the longest flights ever undertaken by the army air corps in mass formation.

The bombing planes carried a personnel of fourteen officers and eighteen enlisted men. They took off from Washington, D. C., a month ago, and proceeded to Fairbanks, Alaska, across Canada. While in the north they air mapped thousands of square miles in the vicinity of Fairbanks, westward toward Anchorage, and northward toward Nome.

The planes will return to Washington by a route yet to be determined. Their takeoff will depend upon weather conditions.

Clip These Songs for Festival

Seven songs—old favorites that the American people always welcome—will be sung by the audience at the Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field tonight. The singing will be directed by cheer leaders to the accompaniment of the festival band.

The words of these melodies are reprinted here. Clip them out and take them to the festival.

TIPPERARY.

It's a long way to Tipperary,
It's a long way to go;
It's a long way to Tipperary,
To the sweetest girl I know.
Good-by Piccadilly,
Farewell Leicester square.
It's a long, long way to Tipperary,
But my heart's right there.

THE MAN ON THE FLYING TRAPEZE.

Once I was happy, but now I'm forlorn,
Like an old coat that is tattered and torn.
Left in this wide world to weep and to mourn.
Betrayed by a maid in her teens.
O this maid that I love she was handsome,
And I tried all I knew her to please.
But I never could please her one-quarter so well
As the man on the flying trapeze.
O-o-o-o
He floats through the air with the greatest of ease,
The daring young man on the flying trapeze;
His actions are graceful, all the girls he does please:
And my love he has stolen away.

LET ME CALL YOU SWEETHEART.

Let me call you "Sweetheart,"
I'm in love with you.
Let me hear you whisper
That you love me, too.
Keep the lovelight glowing
In your eyes so true.
Let me call you "Sweetheart."
I'm in love with you.

SWEET ADELINE.

Sweet Adeline, sweet Adeline;
For you, dear heart, alone I pine.
In all my dreams your fair face beams.
You're the flower of my heart, sweet Adelina.

OLD FOLKS AT HOME.

'Way down upon the Swanee ribber,
Far, far away;
Dere's wha' my heart is turnin' ebber,
Dere's wha' de old folks stay.
All up and down de whole creation,
Sadly I roam,
Still longin' for de old plantation,
And for de old folks at home.

Chorus:
All de world am sad and dreary,
Ebry wha' I roam.
O darkies, how my heart grows weary
Far from de old folks at home.

Verse:
All 'round de little farm I wandered,
When I was young.
Den many happy days I squandered,
Many de songs I sung.
When I was playin' wid my brudder,
Happy was I.
O, take me to my kind old mudder;
Dere let me live and die.

THERE'S A LONG, LONG TRAIL.

There's a long, long trail a-winding
Into the land of my dreams,
Where the nightingale is singing,
And the white moon beams.
There's a long, long night of waiting
Until my dreams all come true;
Till the day when I'll be going
Down that long, long trail with you.

MY OLD KENTUCKY HOME.

The sun shines bright in the old Kentucky home,
'Tis summer, the darkies are gay;
The corn-top's ripe and the meadow's in the bloom,
While the birds make music all the day.
The young folks roll on the little cabin floor;
All merry, all happy and bright.
Then my old Kentucky home, good-night!

Chorus:
Weep no more, my lady,
O weep no more today!
We will sing one song for the old Kentucky home,
For the old Kentucky home, far away.

THIS IS MUSIC FESTIVAL NIGHT IN CHICAGOLAND

10,000 to Take Part at Soldiers' Field.

soloists in the competition conducted throughout Chicagoland.

Fanfare of trumpets, the sound of marching feet from without, and on the field from seven entrances come seven bands playing Sousa's "Washington Post March." And then in order come five more "waves" of bands from the various entrances.

They stand together, then, in a huge square in the center of the field, 1,600 strong. And then the strains of "Stars and Stripes Forever."

And now here's your chance to air that tenor, sir, and your chance for the long suppressed soprano, madame.

These are your melodies that the festival band is sounding and it is you that the cheer leaders are bidding rise. You know these songs—you've always known them: "My Old Kentucky Home," "There's a Long, Long Trail a-Winding," and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Al Jolson comes forward now and sings for you. And the magic, the pleading of his voice is heard by you not in the narrow confines of a theater but in a great open air stadium. With night and stars and gay panorama as his background he will hold you with the fervor that has endeared him to America.

Deep Spirituals Next.

Listen next to "The Holy City," that reverential song of the glories of Jerusalem. Three thousand members of the Choral Directors' guild sing it under the direction of George Lee Tenney. The basso lead is carried by Mark Love of THE TRIBUNE radio station W-G-N. Then follows a selection by the adult band which won in the Chicagoland competition.

On the platform next stand 1,000 Negroes, garbed in white, to sing the spirituals that are at once the story and the prayer of their race. Deep, chanting, these songs come to you and for a few moments you are sitting on some plantation veranda listening to the darkies in the fields.

"Old Southland" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," stir your emotions as they have never failed to do. The Negro chorus is conducted by Prof. J. Wesley Jones.

The juvenile band which won in the competition then furnishes a selection and after this Noble Cain leads his Chicago A Capella choir in a number you may know. It's the "St. Louis Blues," the daddy of all blue songs.

Now 1,500 Chicago girls are on the field and as the festival band strikes up ballet music they whirl and pirouette in unison in a special dance pageant.

As the dance pageant ends the Negro chorus appears again, and John Burdette, a baritone who was discovered at the first festival in 1930 and has since become nationally famous, sings "Ol' Man River." He recreates for you in this modern epic the Negro laboring on the Mississippi—the "Father of Waters" moving solemnly on, while the children of the delta take their sustenance and hope from the endless tide.

Fireworks Spectacle Begins.

"The Old Spinning Wheel" is then played by the festival band. And now get your second wind, for you're going to do some more community singing. Try "Tipperary" and "The Man on the Flying Trapeze" and "Suwanee River" on your vocal cords. And then—you can't possibly be in discord on this one—"Sweet Adeline."

John Charles Thomas comes forward and you hear "Pagliacci." But that's not all he's going to give you. Hark while he swings into the stirring "Road to Mandalay," bringing to you all the yearning of the British soldier for the land "somewhere east of Suez." As a concluding number he sings that epic of the American west, "Home on the Range."

The festival chorus of 5,000 singers now gather on the field to sing the mighty "Hallelujah Chorus"—the triumphal song from Handel's "Messiah," directed by Mr. Cain.

Boy Scouts Take Field.

Then swiftly the scene changes and 4,000 Boy Scouts race out on the field. In seven minutes they have transformed the arena into a pioneer encampment while they are staging a circus of drills, bicycle maneuvers, and Indian war dances.

The finale is a patriotic drama in fireworks. To the accompaniment of stirring music you will view in pyrotechnic display the founding of American liberty.

The finale is a partriotic drama in fireworks. To the accompaniment of stirring music you will view in pyrotechnic display the founding of American liberty. The singing of the Declaration of Independence, with the patriots shown in the famous painting by John Trumbull, all according to scale, is thrown on the night in living fire.

The next sceen is the bombardment of Fort McHenry which Francis Scott Key watched at Baltimore in 1814. The inspiration for the "Star Spangled Banner" came to Key, a prisoner on a British boat, that night, and you will rise and sing it with the rest of the crowd. Then the American flag and "Good Night" in great pillars of fire are flashed on the sky.

Busy Day in Contest.

All day today finalists in the Chicagoland Music Festival contests will meet in competition for a chance to appear in tonight's great program. Bands, drum and bugle corps, choruses, and singers will engage in friendly rivalry all the way from the Drake hotel on the north to Soldiers' field on the south. The winners will be announced tonight.

The gates to the field will be thrown open at 5 o'clock this afternoon. You are welcome then or any time thereafter. An electrical amplification system which has been well tested will bring every note, every word to you in every corner of the field—clear, undistorted.

AL JOLSON WILL SING TONIGHT AT MUSIC FESTIVAL

John Charles Thomas Is Here for Fete.

The Chicagoland Music Festival headquarters today will be in room 239 at the Drake hotel. The telephone number is Superior 2200. The headquarters will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Events came thick and fast yesterday tending toward the prediction that tonight's Chicagoland Music Festival program will be the most brilliant of the whole series. John Charles Thomas, tanned, vigorous, and at the height of his vocal powers, came in by train yesterday morning all ready to thrill tonight's multitude with the Prologue from "Pagliacci."

Almost simultaneously there was word by wire that another star soloist would arrive today. Al Jolson, he of the musical comedies and the films, will likewise take his place among the luminaries of tonight's gigantic entertainment.

Jolson to Sing.

Mr. Jolson is on his way to Hollywood to make his new film, "Casino de Paree." He is pausing in Chicago to appear in the Chicagoland Music Festival program tonight, and also to witness a preview of the picture drama starring his wife, Ruby Keeler, called "Dames." His songs tonight will be from that film, the title song, "Dames," and "I Only Have Eyes for You."

Mr. Thomas' day here yesterday was characteristic of his life. Posing for photographs at the station was his introduction to Chicago. He went to the Drake hotel, pausing only long enough for a shower, hurried into fresh clothing, and departed for the Palmer house ballroom. There he stripped off his coat and went into consultation with Victor Grabel, musical director of the Chicagoland Music Festival, and rehersal with the festival concert band.

Cheer Thomas' Rehersal.

Incidentally, when he had finished the last note of the brilliant "Pagliacci" aria, the bandsmen laid down their instruments and gave him unanimous and hearty applause. This in itself was no small compliment, coming, as it did, from professional musicians, who in the course of a season are in the habit of confronting many soloists.

From that time on he was free to go back for a session of vocal practice with his accompanist, and later a game of golf, all of which took him pretty well up to dinner time. From this it can be surmised that, in spite of what poets and novelists may have written, not all the great opera singers confine themselves to the sheltered life, and some of them have no fears of the open air.

The "Pagliacci" Prologue will not be all that he sings tonight. There will be other solos to add to the rich treat in store on tonight's program.

SELECT WINNERS TODAY

With 17 states and Canada represented, thousands of singers and players will contest today beginning at 9 o'clock for the gold, silver and bronze medals to be awarded by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in the fifth Chicagoland Music Festival, the winners to participate tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the festival concert program to be held in Soldiers' field.

But whether they win or not all entries will take part in the great show, sitting on the huge stage erected at the north end of the field and joining in the massed numbers.

More Contestants This Year.

It is the largest group of contestants in any of the previous festivals. Singers are arriving from Baltimore, Maryland, Vancouver, B. C., and from the state of Louisiana. The public is cordially invited to hear the contests. There is no admission charge. The contests will be held as follows:

9 a. m.—Juvenile bands, Oriental room, Knickerbocker hotel.
11 a. m.—Mixed quartets, W-G-N studios, Drake.
3:30 p. m.—Mixed choruses, Grand ballroom, Drake.

The following persons will be in charge of the contests: vocal, choral and mixed quartet, Mrs. Edmund J. Tyler; bands, John Barabash; drum corps, Fred W. Miller.

POLICE ISSUE RULES FOR TRAFIC TONIGHT AT MUSIC FESTIVAL

Traffic rules and regulations for the Chicagoland Music Festival sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE at Soldiers' field tonight were announced yesterday by Capt. T. J. Howard of the south park police. Private vehicles and chartered buses carrying festival participants must use either the 23d street bridge or the 11th street bridge to cross to the field.

These buses will then proceed to gate O at the south end of the field. Upon arrival at the gate the bus drivers will be directed to parking spaces near the stadium, where groups may meet again after the festival. One hundred and fifty south park policemen and 100 city policemen will be on hand at gate O, and the bus drivers have been provided with letters to avoid misunderstanding or delays.

Other motor buses and taxicabs will find parking spaces between the Field museum and the stadium and between 18th and 16th street at the southwest corner of the stadium. Official cars will be parked at the south end of the stadium.

MOLEY MUST PAY FOR HOTEL'S USE IN SUIT BY ASTOR

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Raymond Moley, receiver of rents of the Hotel St. Regis in the $5,000,000 mortgage foreclosure suit brought by Vincent Astor, must pay for the use of the hotel furnishings and equipment during the receivership, Supreme Court Justice Harmon Black made this ruling today on an application by the Hotel St. Regis, Inc., and the Durham Realty company, both owned by the Duke estate, to compel the receiver to pay for the use of the property which is not covered by the mortgages now in default.

Because of differing views as to the value of the property, Justice Black appointed Rudolph Stand to take testimony and report to the court. Counsel for Mr. Astor contended that an affidavit submitted by the defendants showed that at a sale the furnishings and equipment would not bring more than $150,000, while an estimate made by Emil H. Ronay, managing agent of the hotel for the receiver, said they would bring not more than $50,000. The defendants asserted that they are worth $800,350 and would cost $1,342,368 to replace.

The petition asked that the receiver be directed to pay $8,000 for using the property and $8,000 a month for depreciation.

ILLINOIS TROOPS THRILL THRONGS IN FAIR PARADE

Great Military Review Marks State's Day.

BY NELSON EVANS.
[Major, U. S. Infantry Reserve.]

The military forces of Illinois, 10,000 strong, marched in review yesterday before their commander in chief, Gov. Horner, in a military pageant that marked the climax of Illinois day at the World's Fair.

To the throngs at the Fair and the tens of thousands of Chicagoans who lined the route of march in Grant park and on Michigan avenue, it was a thrilling spectacle, but to the thousands of citizen soldiers who marched under the brilliant August sun it was a successful meeting of a military test.

The review was the final proof that these soldiers, members of the Illinois National Guard, who work at civilian pursuits for more than eleven months out of the year, can "take it" when it comes to arduous field training.

Get Rigorous Training.

They had spent two weeks, part of the time under tropical temperatures, in Camp Grant, near Rockford, in intensive drills and at target practice. Then, without rest, these soldiers, the Thirty-third division, Illinois National Guard, started out on a march to Chicago, 100 miles away, bivouacing on the road under field combat conditions.

Fair weather soldiering? Let a captain of infantry talk:

"I was in France for 18 months and I thought I knew mud," he said. "But I never saw such a rainstorm as hit us last Wednesday morning when we started our march from Rockford to Chicago. Every man was a ball of mud when we pitched our tents that first night on the road."

That was the test which the thousands of spectators did not see when the troops in clean uniforms and polished equipment marched by yesterday in companies, battalions, regiments, and brigades. Military authorities considered it the highest test of a soldier, exhausted and dirty from arduous field duty, to clean himself up in preparation for further service. That was the test which the National Guard met yesterday.

Revives War Time Memories.

The review of the National Guard division was the first time since the war that such a large body of troops had marched in or near Chicago.

Thousands of pup tents stretched across Chicago's front yard in Grant park between Randolph street and 11th street in the vast bivouac called Camp Henry Horner in honor of the governor. About these tents the soldiers put the final touches on their uniforms during the day for the divisional review, making a scene which revived war time memories.

Late in the day the final preparations were completed. The hoofs of 1,100 horses had received their final polish. The last speck of mud had been removed from the hundreds of trucks and artillery caissons. Infantry bayonets gleamed. It was a division ready to march. A division of organized militia commanded by its major general, Roy D. Keehn, and composed of two infantry brigades and one artillery brigade, commanded by brigadier generals.

Each of the infantry brigades has two regiments, commanded by colonels, and in each regiment there are three battalions, commanded by majors. Each of the battalions has four rifle companies and one machine gun company, commanded by captains.

All Equipment of War.

In each rifle company there are three platoons commanded by lieutenants. The platoons are divided into two sections, commanded by sergeants, each consisting of three squads of eight men each commanded by corporals.

The artillery brigade consists of two regiments of 75 m. m. field artillery and one regiment of 155 m. m. howitzers.

Besides all these, the division has a medical regiment, a regiment of combat engineers, a squadron of observation airplanes, a tank company, and numerous other special troops and service detachments.

An imposing military array! But that isn't all. The Illinois National Guard has two functions. First, it constitutes the armed force of the state, available at the call of the governor to restore order and defeat subversive activities when they threaten to overthrow the constituted authorities of the state. Chicago saw the Guard as organized for that purpose yesterday.

In its second function the Illinois Guard has a place in the organized forces of the nation. The Guard, with the regular army, forms the first line of defense when war threatens the nation, and this line of defense is organized as the nucleus of the fighting men who can be organized and trained under the national defense act.

Unit in Nation's Defense.

Therefore, in addition to the regular divisional troops there were other important units in the review yesterday, attached to the 33d division for training, which will take their place in the higher units—corps and armies—which would be organized if the nation were forced to go to war with a foreign power.

One of these organizations is the 202d coast artillery [anti-aircraft], which will be assigned to an army corps or a field army in case of national emergency.

Another unit in the line of march was the 8th infantry regiment, composed of colored troops, whose fine marching during the review yesterday caused many favorable comments.

A third is the 106th cavalry regiment, which will be assigned to duty with a field army in case of war. The Black Horse troop, Chicago's show organization, is the headquarters troop of this regiment, leading it in the line of march yesterday.

Such were the Illinois troops, organized into powerful fighting units, which began their march yesterday from Grant park to the reviewing stand on the west side of the Avenue of Flags in front of the Illinois Host House.

The line of march was west on Monroe street, south on Michigan avenue, east on Balbo [7th] street, south on Columbus drive, through the 16th street gate, north on the Avenue of Flags, leaving the Fair grounds at the 12th street gate.

Gov. Horner, accompanied by Mayor Kelly, Adjt. Gen. Carlos E. Black, and Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes, preceded the troops in an automobile to the reviewing stand, where they joined Senator William H. Dieterich, former Govs. Charles S. Deneen and Edward F. Dunne, the division commander, and other civilian and military leaders.

Infantry Leads March.

The two infantry brigades, the 66th and the 65th, commanded by Thomas S. Hammond and Albert L. Culbertson, were first in the line of march, following the officers of the divisional commander's staff.

129th, the 130th, the 131st, and the 132d, were commanded respectively by Cols. William Hemenway, Robert Davis, Francis Allen, and H. E. Alger.

The 8th infantry, commander by Col. Spencer Dickerson, was attached to the 66th brigade in the review.

The 108th combat engineers, commanded by Col. Karl Hobart, followed the infantry and their marching made the doughboys look to their laurels. Next came the division special troops, commanded by Maj. James U. Sammis, and then followed the 108th medical regiment, commanded by James J. McKinley.

Artillery Units Follow.

The 202d coast artillery followed. The field artillery units came next, the 58th brigade being commanded by Frank Schwengel. The two regiments of 75 mm. guns were commanded by Samuel T. Lawton and Charles C. Haffner, and the 155 mm. regiment [less one battalion] was commanded by Dell Hardin.

Then came the 106th cavalry, commanded by Walter J. Fisher, followed by the 33d tank company and the motor transport section, proudly displaying for the first time 60 new trucks supplied by the government in its motorization program.

It took the parade an hour to pass the reviewing stand, and it was all over shortly after 6 p. m.

The Illinois day ceremonies at the Fair began at noon with the arrival of Gov. Horner, who was greeted with a salute of 19 guns. A luncheon followed in the trustees' lounge and a formal program was staged in the Court of States at which Gov. Horner praised the the Fair as an evidence of progress and forecast a return of prosperity.

Air Battle Thrilling.

The coast artillery regiment and airplanes of the divisional squadron put on a thrilling show last night as a climax of a day of military spectacles. Under the blaze of searchlights, the World's Fair crowd saw 3 inch guns tear to pieces a target towed by one of the planes at a height of 8,000 feet and at a distance of 3½ miles out over the lake. In another test machine guns, firing all tracer bullets so the effect could be seen by the crowd "boxed" another target towed by a plane at a height of 1,500 feet.

To the crowd it appeared that the target, which was carried on a tow line, was encased in a swarm of bullets.

"The 8,000 foot test at a distance of 3½ miles is an answer to the question of whether the modern artillery can protect Chicago from airplane invasion," said Col. Charles C. Dawes commanding the regiment.

"We used only 36 out of the 100 shells assigned to us and not only cut the 40 foot target to pieces but cut the tow rope in two.

In another thriller Lieut. William Newhall made a 5,000 foot dive in an airplane, billowing flame to show its course, and leveled off only 100 feet above the lake.

RETURN ACCIDENT VERDICT.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict stating that Miss Wilhelmina Dietzel, 27 years old, 1919 South 5th avenue, Maywood, who fell from a moving automobile in River Forest on Aug. 6, died of injuries suffered accidentally.

"MISS LAKE VIEW" SELECTED

FAIR CROWDS CHEER HUGE WORK HORSES IN PULLING CONTEST

Powerful draft horses thrilled hundreds yesterday in the preliminaries of a pulling contest held in the Court of States at the World's Fair. Seven teams of the 19 entered will compete today at 1 p. m. for the world's championship.

Theoretically the big horses were attempting to pull weights ranging from 13½ to 20½ tons from a well 27½ feet deep. Actually the animals were coupled to a dynamometer attached to a truck and it measured the power of their pull.

Two favorite teams among the finalists are Rock and Tom, last year's champions, and Ben and Tom, heaviest pair in the contest. The crowd cheered Barney and Dewey, a team that went through four rounds though one of them had been injured by a kick during the night and had been patched up by a veterinarian.

Quiet was ordered during the actual pulling so that the animals could hear the voices of their drivers. The men were allowed to "speak with emphasis" but profanity was barred. Neither could they touch the horses with foot, hand, or rein.

NAVAL RESERVES RULE FAIR TODAY; PLAN SEA SHOWS

Tars Hope to Set New Attendance Mark.

The army had the Fair yesterday and today the navy takes it over. Naval reserves will have their inning and the lads in the white uniforms will be honor guests of the day.

Continuing the rivalry between the land and sea, the officers of the naval reserve are confident that the paid attendance at the Fair today will be in excess of that yesterday. At midnight last night the total paid attendance was 121,541, setting a new Friday record.

Four navy sub chasers, now engaged in battle maneuvers in Lake Michigan, will be open for public inspection today. The navy also will be represented by a squadron of airplanes from the 10th naval aviation squadron, based at Great Lakes. They will give a show at 2 p. m. The sub chasers will be moored in the south lagoon alongside the board walk at 20th street.

Today also will open Music week at the Fair. Many of the organizations which tonight will take part in the Chicago Music festival under the sponsorship of THE TRIBUNE will participate in the week's events.

ARABS PLOTTED SLAYING OF JEWS, REPORT CHARGES

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Charges that the massacre of Jews by Arabs at Constantine on Aug. 4 was "premeditated and intelligently planned" was made in a report submitted to French authorities today by the Cultural Israelite federation.

The report insists a minor incident could not have "provoked so many massacres, fires, and robberies."

The federation charged that propaganda by educated Arabs was responsible for the attacks on the Jews. The report says the masses were told the Jews prevented the Arabs from getting French citizenship and that they had ruined old Arab families. The attack on the Jews was not based on religious grounds but upon "anti-national" hatred, the report continues.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

June Parish, 16, and her sister, Adele, 17, guests at the Pantheon de La Guerre yesterday, are great-great-granddaughters of Samuel D. Davis, who wintered at Valley Forge with George Washington. They were accompanied by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Parish, who had with them Davis' credentials.

More than 300 Sisters of Providence from St. Mary's-of-the-Woods at Terre Haute, Ind., will arrive this afternoon over the Big Four railroad. Four hundred motor products officials and employés arrived last night from Detroit over the Michigan Central for several days at the Fair.

Twenty-five members of the Zoro natural park nudist colony will present their first show at 10 p. m. in the Spanish Village. But there will be no nudity, officials added.

Frances Jean Lupe, the Chicago baby who won the Illinois state contest in the search to find America's most beautiful baby, was received at the Illinois Host House yesterday by Gov. Henry Horner. The pictures of the forty-nine finalists are posted in the Sears-Roebuck exhibit, where visitors may vote.

The management of the Wilson exhibit on Northerly Island announced yesterday their exhibit will be kept open as long as there are people going through the building tonight following the Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field.

"Macbeth" will be added to the list of Shakespearean plays being given in the Old Globe theater in Merrie England tonight.

The first summertime ski jump festival will be started in the Swiss village Tuesday when Seigfried arrives from Switzerland. He will perform on greased skids.

The second public wedding in a month will be held at 8 p. m. in the Dutch village. The bride, Emily Chapter, and the groom, Joe Lemajuer, a dancer in the village, will wear Holland costumes. Four barrels of beer will be served free.

RED CIRCULARS ASKING REVOLT FLOOD CHICAGO

Workers Urged to Keep Up Terrorism.

Thousands of official communist manifestoes, urging the masses to follow up the Red campaign of terrorism and strikes in the United States by actual revolution, were being distributed yesterday among Chicago's workers.

These pamphlets, sent out from the headquarters of the communist party at 35 East 12th street, New York City, and entitled "The Revolutionary Solution of the Crisis," are the most completely frank expressions of purpose so far announced by the Reds.

Their chief point of argument for the revolution in the United States is that "it will be a death blow to the whole world system of imperialist exploitation and to world capitalism." In them the American workers are notified that the "time is ripe" for world communism.

100,000 Distributed Here.

Many of the pamphlets have been seized by the police industrial squad, headed by Lieut. Make Mills, but police estimate that nearly a hundred thousand have been received in Chicago.

The entire campaign of the soviet government to promote the revolution in the United States is openly revealed in the manifestoes, the police say. Hunger strikes, eviction protests, industrial strikes are admittedly only a preparation for the armed insurrection.

"Ultimately, the only way out," the manifesto states, "is the revolutionary way, the abolition of capitalist rule through the establishment of a soviet government."

Russia is cited as the example of how the victories of the masses have built up an ideal state along the "brilliant and peaceful path outlined by Marx, Engels, Lenin, and Stalin." The document adds:

"Ripe for Socialism."

"The United States is ripe for socialism and it must be obtained by seizing from the capitalists the industries, the banks, and all of the economic institutions and transforming them into the common property of all under the direction of the revolutionary government.

"The necessary first step for the establishment of the soviet government is the setting up of a revolutionary workers' government. The capitalists and their agents say that this revolutionary program is un-American. But this expresses not the truth, but only their own greedy interest.

"Today the only party that carries forward the revolutionary traditions of 1776 and 1861, under the present day conditions and the relationship of classes, is the communist party."

After this attempt to justify armed revolt by the past, the document gives its impression as to what the revolutionary government would do if it came into power.

Would Give Away Food.

"The first thing the workers' government would do," it asserts, "would be to open up all the warehouses and distribute among all the working people the enormous surplus stores of food and clothing.

"It would then open up the tremendous accumulation of unused buildings for the benefit of tens of millions who wander homeless.

"It would provide an endless flow of commodities by opening up all the factories, mills, and mines and giving every person a job at constantly increasing wages.

"It would relegate to the museum all former claims to the ownership of the means of production, including stocks, bonds, etc."

The document concludes by saying that such a program would provide a flood of wealth which could be used to promote "a soviet government in Cuba, Latin America, the Philippines, and China, which have suffered from the exploitation of American capitalism."

SOAP STRIKERS MEET TONIGHT TO DRAFT CASE

Members of the United Soap and Glycerin Workers' union who went on strike Aug. 6 from the soap plant of the Lever Brothers company in North Hammond, will hold a massmeeting tonight to draft demands to be laid before William F. White, department of labor conciliator, accepted by both the union and the company as mediator of the strike issues.

Labor difficulties in two other plants in the Calumet district were settled yesterday.

The strike at the Metal and Thermit corporation plant in East Chicago ended when 105 employés who walked out a month ago for pay increases returned to work after acceding to the suggestion of the Chicago regional labor board that the matter be arbitrated. The company has agreed to arbitration.

Officials of the Empire Oil and Refining company in East Chicago and of the Lake County [Ind.] Oil Workers' union signed an agreement whereby the company agreed to bargain with the union. Three other oil companies, the Sinclair Refining company and the Wadham Oil company of East Chicago, and the Shell Petroleum company of Hammond, had previously signed similar agreements with the same union.

IRVING WHEATON OBSERVES HIS 84TH BIRTHDAY

Washington, Irving Wheaton, lifelong resident of Wheaton, son of Jesse C. Wheaton, one of the founders of the suburb, celebrated his 84th birthday yesterday.

Alert and active, Mr. Wheaton received callers and congratulatory telegrams in his home at 310 West Evergreen street, which stands on the site of the homestead originally staked out in 1837 by his father and the latter's brother, Warren L. Wheaton.

Mr. Wheaton, who still farms the 80 acres which remain out of the original large tract of land purchased by his father and uncle, is the last of nine children.

LINKS NEW DEAL TO ACTIVITIES OF RADICALS IN U. S.

Blames Communists for Unrest.

Elk Rapids, Mich., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Climaxing a day of speech making by Gov. Comstock of Michigan, and Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican candidate for governor, Harry A. Jung, honorary general manager of the American Vigilant Intelligence federation of Chicago, made a detailed exposé of communism in the U. S., having particular reference to recent activities among farmers and during the recent strikes throughout the country.

The occasion marked the last day of homecoming week here, which had been attended by 5,000 residents and visitors from throughout the middle west.

Assails Subversive Activities.

Mr. Jung, who has been a student of subversive activities for over two decades, did not spare the policies of the administration in his plea for a return to sound principles in government as well as in business, and above all he stressed the benefits of a return to the constitution.

Lashing the presidential advisers, to whom he referred as the "hot dog boys," Mr. Jung coined a new phrase in his references to Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, the Lugubrious Interior Decorator.

Rexford Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, according to Mr. Jung was:

"Wrecker Tugwell, the extro-introvert, who at 18 referred to himself as being heaven sent to roll up his sleeves and make over America, and who while an associate of Robert W. Dunne, one of the country's leading communists, had delivered himself of the gem that the problems of America would be solved in Moscow instead of in Washington."

Says Communists Are Coddled.

Supporting his statements by pounds of recent communist propaganda which had been spread in the United States since the recognition of the soviet government in direct violation of the written promise made by the U. S. S. R., Mr. Jung stated:

"The secretary of 'unemployment,' Madam Perkins, is coddling the communists; she is substituting her large sympathies toward the Reds, for the judgement of congress and the stated law of the land."

Claiming that the NRA was leading business and labor alike into more and more government regimentation as is followed in soviet Russia, Mr. Jung stated that section 7A of the national industrial recovery act, had been a trap set by the brain trust for employer and labor alike, to create unstabilization in industry and opening a way for further government control, collectivization and regimentation.

Joseph Plachno, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; Myran Kent, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Police were searching yesterday for the companion of Arthur Koppa, 21 years old, 2418 Augusta boulevard, who was shot and killed by Policeman George Schneider when the pair tried to rob the policeman and Miss Florence Zaharek, 3427 Cortland street. The shooting occurred while the policeman and Miss Zaharek were sitting in an automobile in front of her home early yesterday morning.

Capt. Peter Tomchek of the Shakespeare station questioned Koppa's sweetheart, Miss Angela Laffa, 18 years old, 1332 Dickson street. The police said Koppa had been arrested several times for robberies and auto thefts and had served terms in the Bridewell and the Pontiac reformatory. The police were also holding William Bures, 18 years old, 1306 Holt street, who is said to have been an associate of the slain robber. Victims of robberies will be asked to view the slain man and Bures.

Capt. Tomchek commended Policeman Schneider, who shot Koppa when the latter leveled a shotgun at him. The bandit discharged his weapon, but the charge went through the roof of the automobile and did not injure Schneider or his companion.

APARTMENT FIRE KILLS EXECUTIVE; WIFE IS INJURED

Donald Foley, 32 years old, assistant manager of the Carbide and Carbon Chemical corporation, 230 North Michigan avenue, was fatally burned and his wife was injured when a $4,000 fire swept their apartment at 8148 Kingston avenue early yesterday.

The widow, Mrs. Dorothy Foley, 32 years old, said that she and her husband had come home late. She went to bed, she said, while Mr. Foley lay on the davenport in the living room, where the fire is believed to have started from a cigaret and where it did the most damage.

Firemen lifted the unconscious Mr. Foley through a window after he had received the burns of which he died some hours later in the South Shore hospital. Mrs. Foley incurred cuts and bruises when she leaped to the ground from the window of the first floor apartment. Their two children, Jean, 6 years old, and Mary Lou, 4, were spending the night with a relative.

LABOR EDUCATOR KILLED.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 17.—(AP)—John J. Feroe, vice president of the projected college for laboring people here, was killed last night when he was knocked 30 feet from a curbing by an automobile that struck him as it rebounded after a collision with another machine.

NEW DISORDERS FLARE IN STRIKE AT MINNEAPOLIS

Arbiters Prepare for Vote on Union.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—New violence in the truck drivers' strike flared up today shortly after the arrival from Washington of Patrick A. Donaghue, staf member of the regional labor relations board, who is here to supervise elections designed to settle the walkout.

A group of unidentified men blocked the progress of a laundry truck, dragged the driver, John Eckes, into the street and severely beat him. His injuries include a possible skull fracture.

Laundry officials gave descriptions of the driver's assailants to National Guardsmen but declared they were unable to state whether the men were strike pickets. The officials said Eckes' truck bore a National Guard permit.

Prepares for Vote on Union.

Immediately upon his arrival, Donaghue set in motion the machinery for conducting elections among employés of the 166 firms directly involved in the strike to determine whether the truck drivers' union, No. 574, has the authority to negotiate for the striking drivers.

Officials of the 166 firms were compiling certified lists of their pay rolls as of July 16, the day before the strike started. These were to be presented to the labor board which will send notices to all employés eligible to vote. Definite plans for the election had not been made.

It was expected, however, that the elections would be held Tuesday or Wednesday at the latest. Donaghue this afternoon went into conference with the federal mediators, Father Francis J. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan. Later he conferred with representatives of the strikes and then began a session with employers' representatives.

As these conferences were taking place, Gen. E. A. Walsh, commander of the military forces in Minneapolis, ordered the National Guard personnel on strike duty reduced, effective Tuesday night, from about 1,500 to between 600 and 700.

At the same time it was announced that Gen. Walsh will leave Saturday for an army school in Iowa and that Col. Elmer McDevitt, provost marshal, will become troop commander.

Issue in Election.

At issue in the forthcoming election will be whether officials of truck drivers' union, No. 574, shall represent the rank and file in collective bargaining. Grant Dunne declared the union was not ready to coöperate in the election unless it is shown that a victory would be advantageous to the union.

The employers' viewpoint is that their employés "will vote 574 out of existence."

Thirty-nine trucks were permitted to operate today under 48 hour permits, delivering meats from packing houses to retailers.

Wholesale groceries asked the governor for permits to allow them to make deliveries to stores, but without success.

The wholesalers were understood to have put up to the governor the serious situation that has developed in the matter of shipments from the city to northwest merchants accustomed to do their buying in Minneapolis.

Tells of Financial Loss.

Some idea of the loss to Minneapolis as a result of the strike was given tonight in a radio talk sponsored by the employers' advisory committee. Gaylor Warner, who delivered it, after telling of the employers' hopes for a speedy settlement through the election, told of a survey made by the committee. Of 388 firms replying, he said, to a questionnaire, "239 reported direct pay roll loss to 11,080 employés, amounting to $249,279 a week. This direct pay roll loss creates, of course, much indirect business loss. Even in times of a depression this direct loss is estimated by government statisticians to multiply four times in indirect losses, or approximately one million dollars a week."

Declaring that these figures represented only a portion of the total, he said:

"A very large portion of the loss in wages is due to the rule ordered by Gov. Olson through the military, which has kept all or nearly all trucks carrying building materials and other supplies incidental to employment from using the streets.

"For this loss of employment, therefore, these workers whose income is cut off, and some of whom now are obliged to live on public relief, can thank Gov. Olson and his martial rule.

Quotes U. S. Court.

"It is pertinent to recall in this connection that with regard to the governor's rule that only those firms signing the Haas-Dunnigan proposal could have trucks on the street, the federal court stated last Saturday: 'There is substantial foundation for plaintiff's belief that the governor is using his powers for the purpose of coercing them into an acceptance of the Haas-Dunnigan agreement.'"

The number of trucks operating continued to increase as additional employers signed the Haas-Dunnigan agreement. By tonight there were 5,100 signers and the number of truck operating permits issued by the National Guard was near 12,000.

JOHNSON PLANS VACATION FROM NRA NEXT WEEK

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Gen. Johnson plans to take a vacation from the NRA beginning next week, after President Roosevelt has approved reorganization of the recovery administration. He has arranged for a seashore holiday that may turn into a protracted leave of absence.

His return to an active part in the administration of the NRA is thought doubtful by some.

NRA reorganization plans are being perfected to the "minutest details," and if President Roosevelt approves them before leaving for Hyde Park next week, as is now expected, there will be considerably less work involved in carrying out the reorganization than had been expected.

Gen. Johnson's plans may be upset if the President insists upon his remaining "on the job," but it was predicted today that Mr. Roosevelt would not do so. Gen. Johnson has wanted for some time to be relieved, but has felt it his duty to "carry on" as long as his services were required.

GREEN TO REQUEST PUBLIC HEARING ON AUTO CODE CHANGES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—A reopening of the dispute over the automobile code appeared likely tonight with disclosure that President William Green of the American Federation of Labor may formally request a public NRA hearing on amendments to the labor section of the code, which expires Sept. 4.

The labor leader, it was learned, already has notified NRA officials informally that he intends to seek the changes, particularly in the controverted "merit clause"—the language that allows the automobile industry to hire and fire employés solely on a merit basis and without regard to affiliations with labor organizations.

The automobile industry has signified its intention of asking that the code be extended for another 90 days without change, contending the industrial provisions were working effectively. The industry's representatives also say the board set up by the President to terminate a near strike last spring is reducing labor troubles, making unnecessary any change in the code.

Reëlected Unanimously.

Mr. McMahon was reëlected unanimously as president by a rising vote at the closing session of the union's convention at Town hall. In his speech of acceptance Mr. McMahon, who has headed the organization since 1931, promised to carry on the militant policy of the union.

In an interview earlier Mr. McMahon said he would do nothing to obstruct the strike plans of the union's executive council.

"I don't believe my appointment to the board will check the sentiment in favor of a strike," he declared.

Calls Textile Strike a Bluff.

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—David Clark, publisher of the Textile Bulletin, today termed the threat of a general strike of textile workers, made yesterday at the annual convention of the United Textile Workers in New York, as merely a bluff.

"There is no threat of a general strike among the textile workers of the south," he said. "They have no reason to strike and they know it.

"The southern textile workers are not going to obey any general order for a strike. There may be a few workers in some isolated cases who would strike, but as a general thing a program of this kind is destined to failure."

Kohler May Go to Courts.

Kohler, Wis., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Recourse to the courts appeared today to be the next resort in attempts to settle the strike at the Kohler company plant, after both sides in the controversy had rejected the other's proposals.

Labor leaders termed the counter proposal of former Gov. Walter J. Kohler, president of the company, which was his reply to the Chicago regional labor board's terms of settlement, as being in "bold defiance of the government."

Kohler issued an ultimatum to the American Federation of Labor declaring he would not accept the federation or any other group as the bargaining agent for his workers against the wishes of the employés. He asserted he will follow that course "until, or unless the court of last resort tells us we are mistaken in our reading of the law."

Rail Strike Averted.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—A threatened strike of 2,500 employés of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, tentatively set for next Tuesday, was averted today when the employés and the railroad agreed to accept mediation of a wage controversy.

Both factions in the dispute accepted the jurisdiction of the national labor mediation board. Charles E. Ervin, receiver of the railroad, announced that the road would comply with the board's request that status quo be maintained pending efforts to effect a settlement.

H. M. Vansant, chairman of an employés' committee, summoned his group to a meeting to discuss their course in the matter. James W. Carmalt, a member of the labor board who is already in St. Louis, will act as the mediator, it was announced in telegrams sent to Vansant and Ervin by William M. Lieserson, chairman of the mediation board, who is in Washington.

ROBBED OF $1,000 AND CAR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Stay out of politics.

This was the edict which President Roosevelt handed all government employés today. He declared that whether they come under civil service or not, federal pay rollers must keep their fingers out of the political pie.

Any New Deal agency which has not yet cautioned it workers against political activity will fall under presidential displeasure unless it does so in short order, Mr. Roosevelt indicated today.

BARBER APPEALS TO JOHNSON ON STATE CODE FINE

Declares New Jersey Law Spells His Ruin.

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Richard Ulran, owner of a barber shop in Jersey City, who was arrested and fined $10 for violating a state law fixing minimum prices for service codes, appealed to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson today for aid. The service trades were exempted from the provision of the National Recovery act by Presidential order some time ago, and federal officials have no control over his prices.

"I am persecuted by the code authority for the barber shop trade of the state of New Jersey for unfair competition," Ulran said in a telegram to Gen. Johnson. "I have only two choices, either to go voluntarily out of business and face starvation, as I have a compound fracture of the back and am unable to do any labor; or I am forced out of business and jailed.

"I have been told I will be put out of business if I do not charge the code prices. When I did not heed them my competitors haled me into court and I was fined $10 at a time when everybody else was charging the same price as I and some even less.

"My business is falling off so rapidly that by next week I will have to close my doors, and so I pray for your assistance. All I ask is a chance to operate my barber shop."

Ulran was arrested Aug. 7, after he had been fined, and was released at that time on his promise to comply with state code prices.

Hold Up Buena Avenue 'L' Station; Loot Is $440.

Four robbers invaded the Buena avenue elevated station last night, menaced the ticket seller, Mrs. Laura McAdams, 33 years old, 1200 Addison street, and escaped with $440. The bandit leader thrust his weapon at Mrs. McAdams as he entered, and demanded that she open the door leading inside her cage. This she steadfastly refused to do, despite the threats of shooting. Finally one of the bandits slipped the bolt of the lock with his knife.

APPROVE PAYING $800,000 MORE FOR RELIEF COAL

Commission Agrees to No Competitive Bids.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday unanimously approved a plan for the purchase of an estimated 1,500,000 tons of coal to be given to its Cook county "clients" between next month and May, 1935. Increases in wages at the mines and in dealers' margins for handling the coal, due to NRA codes, will make the fuel cost $800,000 more than it would have under the previous prices.

Competitive bidding was eliminated entirely, but only one member of the commission appeared to be concerned about it. This elimination was also a result of the promulgations of code authorities.

400 Dealers to "Bid."

The $800,000 increase may become a $1,400,000 increase if the railroads should refuse to extend beyond Sept. 4 their agreement allowing 20 per cent freight reductions on the coal because it is purchased with federal funds. There have been reports that rail men are objecting to the government "taking it from the railroads to give it to the coal dealers."

It was indicated at the commission meeting that virtually the same plan of coal buying will be used for the other 101 counties in Illinois. Cook county will receive about half of all the charity fuel.

The business in this county will be distributed among 400 or 500 coal dealers who are expected to respond to the invitations to submit "bids." Some 125,000 families on relief will choose the dealer they wish to favor with their trade, obtaining the coal on special tickets.

No Competition Possible.

The dealers will buy from the producers in accordance with allocations based on previous production figures of the various mining districts in the state. The producers must refund 10 per cent of the mine price to the commission. To conform with state law, the "bids," a mere formality under the code, will be advertised for ten days and will be presented to Gov. Horner for his approval.

F. A. Deniston, business manager for the relief commission, admitted the retail coal code would eliminate competition.

"Due to the code regulations," he said, "it is expected that the prices quoted for each type of coal will be the same. Therefore it will be impossible to award the business on a competitive price basis, but will result in the awarding of the business to all bidders who are able to meet our specifications."

Olander Raises a Question.

One member of the commission, Victor Olander, wanted to know whether the commission was compelled by law to "carry out the code." Even though he was told that the commission had to abide by the promulgations of various code authorities Mr. Olander tacked onto the approval of the purchase plan a provision that it must agree with all laws. He said he meant to guard against the commission being held responsible for paying higher prices than those which might be submitted in competitive bidding.

Business Manager Deniston explained that the retail coal code authority had announced that the method used by the city and the county for years was recently forbidden.

This was the system of taking bids on the number of British thermal units a dealer would guarantee to deliver for 1 cent. When used last year in buying relief coal it resulted in a "clean deal" all around, Mr. Deniston admitted. Some one asked for further discussion of the "B. t. u.'s for 1 cent" method.

Coal Dealer Speaks Up.

"O, the hell with the B. t. u.'s," snapped Acting Chairman Omar H. Wright of Belvidere. "Nobody knows what that means anyway."

Mr. Wright is head of O. H. Wright & Co., Inc., of Belvidere, a coal concern with several branches.

While much attention was given to the fact that the railroads and producers have agreed to cuts of 20 and 10 per cent respectively on their share of the relief coal money, nothing was said about the dealers receiving an increase from $1.36 to $1.75 a ton for handling the fuel. Last year some dealers' margins were as low as $1.11.

Taking into account the sacrifices made by producers and railroads, the commission will still pay $5.25 for Southern Illinois 3 by 2 nut coal, as compared with $4.61 last year. Central Illinois coal of this size will cost $4.69, as against $4.16 in 1933. These are the principal fuels for domestic use, originating in districts which will receive 72 per cent of the business.

CONVICT LAWYER ON CONFIDENCE GAME CHARGES

Vincent Pace, 41 years old, a disbarred attorney, was found guilty yesterday in the Criminal court of operating a confidence game in connection with the purchase of an automobile. He faces a sentence of one to ten years in prison.

Pace's conviction yesterday for the second time on the charge was by a jury in the court of Judge Grover C. Niemeyer, who set next Friday for his ruling on a motion for a new trial. Testimony showed that Pace without authorization had signed the name of his father-in-law, G. Rudolfo, 2223 Grand avenue, to a mortgage he pledged as security in the purchase of an automobile. The fraud was discovered when Pace fell behind in the payments.

The former attorney was taken to court from the Bridewell, to which he was sentenced last March for two years, on two charges of passing bad checks. He once had offices at 10 South La Salle street.

USES GUNFIRE OF TROOPS TO HIDE MURDER OF FOE

Admits 2 Killings to End Dream Torment.

Toledo, O., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The slaying of a young man here three months ago, supposedly by the shots of National Guardsmen in quelling a strike riot, was revealed today as a premeditated killing by a youth who pursued his victim through milling crowds and shot him down under cover of the troopers' fire.

The crime was confessed by Steve Zientek, 18, now a prisoner at the Mansfield reformatory serving a term for assault with intent to rob. He amazed police officials with his story of this slaying and then added to their astonishment by confessing the murder of a 12 year old boy two years ago whose death had been officially termed an accident.

Zientek said his victims were Steve Cyigon, whom he shot to death in revenge for a slap administered some time ago in a Toledo dance hall in the presence of two girls, and Edward Baginski, the boy, whom he clubbed to death for stealing junk from him.

Saw Victim in Crowd.

The prisoner said he resolved, following the dance hall episode, to kill Cyigon and immediately began calculating upon an opportune time. When he saw Cyigon in the crowd during the rioting at the Electric Auto-Lite company plant on May 24 he decided that he time had come for his revenge.

As the guardsmen moved about among the rioters Zientek followed his victim closely, waiting for a favorable chance to strike his enemy down so that his private feud would not attract undue attention.

When the troopers were finally forced to fire to repel the advance of the rioters, Zientek seized the opportunity to shroud his own crime. At the height of the turmoil he drew a pistol from his shirt and fired a bullet into his victim's body.

Verdict at Inquest.

After a long inquest into the death Coroner Kreft returned a verdict that Cyigon was fatally shot by a bullet fired from a military rifle. Zientek had been careful, in planning his "perfect crime," to use an automatic pistol which fired bullets similar to the ones used by the troopers.

His success in evading punishment for the murder of Cyigon equaled his good fortune at the hands of the authorities following their investigation into his other slaying. After clubbing the Baginski boy to death he threw the body into a creek, and when it was finally found some time later a coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

Zientek said his confessions were prompted by the torment of dreams. Finally the "nightmares" tortured him so much he felt compelled to disclose his deeds to a priest, he said. The holy man advised him to tell his story to the authorities.

CHURCH LOUD SPEAKER GOES ON IN DEFIANCE OF POLICE WARNING

The strains of "I'm So Happy" and "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" blared forth from the Third Presbyterian church at Ashland boulevard and Ogden avenue last night over a loud speaker. The voice of the Rev. J. Walter Malone of Champaign, visiting preacher, exhorted the passing motorists and all within earshot to "obey the laws of religion and the laws of brotherly love."

After the service a policeman from the Warren avenue station stepped up to the Rev. A. H. Leaman, director of the church's "Century of Progress Evangelistic campaign" now in progress. He reminded the minister that the police had warned the church once that complaints had been received from residents of the neighborhood and urged him to have the loudspeaker turned down low hereafter. A city ordinance on "noises" forbids "use of mechanical devices for the purpose of advertising."

"I told him that we would continue our Sunday services as usual," said the Rev. Mr. Leaman later. "If they want to arrest me, they may, but if the broadcasting is illegal, so are church bells."

TWO ROMANCES FAIL; HE FACES LIFE IN PRISON

It is unlikely that Layton DeVolt, 31 years old, will ever get married. Twice he had been very near to matrimoney, but each time untoward happenings have prevented the saying of the vows, and from now on he will be kept where romance seldom enters.

DeVolt was arrested by Chicago policemen yesterday at 821 South Ashland avenue. Last night, at the detective bureau, he told the story of his life.

"In February, 1920," he said, "I was engaged to a girl named Lucille Seymour. We both lived near Chillicothe, O. My father, Saoh DeVolt, objected to my marrying and he attempted one day to whip me in the barn on our farm. I hit him back and he fell under a horse which trampled him to death.

"I was tried for murder and sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary. In June, 1931, I was transferred to the honor farm at London, O. On June 17 of this year I ran away and came to Chicago. It wasn't long until I met Dorothy Brillhart here. We fell in love. We were going to be married tomorrow. I thought that if I lived an honest life the authorities back home would let me alone. Now I'll have to spend my life in the prison."

SLEEP WALKER DIES AFTER FALL.

Bruno Katowski, 36 years old, 1231 Holt street, died in the county hospital yesterday of injuries incurred on Aug. 8, when he fell from the window of his fourth floor apartment, apparently while walking in his sleep.

CHICAGO—EVANSTON

Seek to Keep Money in "Sock," Avoid Tax.

BY THORNTON L. SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—City officials who found their plan to keep the city's cash balance in a safety box rather than in bank deposits, stymied by federal reserve bank officials, are waiting for the attorney general of the United States to decide whether the proposed plan is hoarding under the law.

City Treasurer J. W. Mudroch had engaged deposit space and tried to withdraw the city's current daily balance of some $2,500,000, when the Federal Reserve bank refused to issue currency of large denomination to the First Wisconsin National bank, on which the checks were drawn.

Seek to Avoid Tax.

The purpose of keeping the money in the municipal "sock" rather than in bank deposits was to avoid the 2 per cent tax imposed by the state deposit insurance act on deposits of all units of government. The fund is to protect city and county governments from loss of deposits in closed banks.

The public deposit insurance law was a creation of the last La Follette legislature and has been in force about two years. So far it has cost the city of Milwaukee $100,000. The city has paid in $152,000 tax and has recovered from the fund $52,000 of the $85,000 impounded in 1933 bank crashes.

The law grew out of the inability or the unwillingness of surety companies to continue writing bonds guaranteeing public deposits. Small community banks were closing in 1930 and 1931 with alarming frequency and there were continual demands upon the surety companies.

Off to Bad Start.

The same difficulty the surety companies faced got the deposit insurance law off to a bad start. Banks continued to close and the demands by city and county treasurers for repayment of their public deposits came faster than the fund grew.

Milwaukee officials say the law always will operate against the Wisconsin metropolis, which has by far the largest city deposits in the state, and whose bigger banks are considered more likely to stand the strain of a continued depression.

Withholds Half of Pay.

William H. Wendt, city controler, said today the $2,500,000 Milwaukee now has on deposit is the result of holding back half the cash wages of city employés and paying them half in baby bonds, secured by delinquent taxes.

This half and half scheme was adopted to pile up a reserve fund to insure payment of principal and interest of city bonds. If city employés got all their pay in cash there would be no surplus, Wendt says. The tax penalizes the city for its foresight and thrift.

Wendt also declared an extra troublesome feature of the law is that the banks deduct the insurance tax from deposits, upsetting the city budget. There is no way of estimating how much the daily balances will be at any time and no way of setting up a fund to meet the insurance payments. So far the tax has been paid from the contingent fund, on which it has been a drain.

A number of ways have been considered to get around the reserve bank in case the attorney general agrees that the Milwaukee lock box plan is hoarding and illegal. The simplest is to withdraw the deposit except for a small working fund and buy Liberty bonds with it. It is also proposed to have checks for the amount certified or to remove the deposits to banks of another state.

One Per Cent Direct Loss.

County officials, who concede the right of the city to do what it wishes with its own money, prefer that it be left on deposit. The insurance fund has received two RFC loans, which to a degree were based on the earning power of the fund. If Milwaukee quits paying interest other cities are expected to follow suit, and the earning power of the fund will be reduced and so will its borrowing capacity.

The 2 per cent interest the city pays on its deposits results in a direct loss of 1 per cent. The banks allow 1¼ per cent interest on deposits and impose a handling charge of one-half of 1 per cent, making the total cost of the deposits 2¼ per cent and the revenue from them 1½ per cent.

Gov. C. L. Herring of Iowa Better After Grip Attack

Senator Dill Uses Frank for Own Survey for Speech

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Senator Clarence C. Dill [Rad. Dem., Wash.] is using his postal franking privilege and senate stationery in a private survey of the nation's broadcasting stations to get material for a convention speech, "News by Radio," which he is to deliver next month before the National Association of Broadcasters at Cincinnati.

He is also considering the establishment of a radio news service when he retires from the senate next January. His office in Spokane has been sending questionnaires to the country's radio stations.

At Government Cost.

The postal franking privilege has been brought into the senator's service, naturally at the expense of the government. He has put his form letters on the stationery of the senate interstate commerce committee, of which he is chairman. His senate committee envelopes bear his official postage frank and a self-addressed franked envelope is inclosed for reply.

A rather elaborate questionnaire about news service is inclosed, and the inquiry closes with the request that the answering station estimate how much it would be willing to spend for a news service.

Says It's Public Business.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Senator C. C. Dill said here today he might organize a news service for radio stations after he goes out of office in January, 1935.

Just returned from a fishing trip in the Cascade mountains, the senator was interviewed on reports he used franked envelopes and senate stationery in polling radio stations to get material for a speech.

"Certainly I used my senatorial frank in sending the letters to the radio stations," Senator Dill said. "I thought it was public business and I am still of that opinion. I may want to offer an amendment to the communications bill, or I may wish to make a speech in the senate as well as before the National Association of Broadcasters. Who is competent to question that belief except the postmaster general? He has made no protest.

Challenges Any Criticism.

"I have been charged before with using franked envelopes to send congratulations to high school graduates in Washington. I contended that it was public business and I challenge anybody to deny it.

"I may start a radio news gathering service when I retire from official life, and I cannot see what anybody is going to do about those franked letters."

Negro Desperado Killed on Street in Alabama

Carbonhill, Ala., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Sam Holley, Negro desperado who killed [illegible] in West Alabama this week, was shot to death by a man who recognized him on the streets here today.

"Give me but the liberty of the press and I will give to the minister a venal house of peers. I will give him a corrupt and servile house of commons. I will give him the full swing of the patronage of office. I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence. I will give him all the power that place can confer upon him, to purchase up submission and overawe resistance; and yet, armed with the liberty of the press, I will go forth to meet him undismayed. I will attack the mighty fabric of that mightier engine. I will shake down from its height corruption and bury it beneath the ruins of the abuses it was meant to shelter."

—Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

TO THE GUARD.

Yesterday the 33d Division, National Guard, paraded on the city front. It was an inspiring sight. The division is fresh from its annual training at Camp Grant and marched to Chicago to take part in Illinois day at the Exposition. Officers and men were in top form.

The city welcomes this fine body of patriotic citizens which is carrying on the proud tradition of the American citizen soldiery. As they swing along the city streets they memorialized the heroism of the American volunteer who on every battle field of the republic, from Bunker Hill to the Argonne, has exemplified the highest qualities of the citizen.

Membership in the National Guard is founded on these qualities, devotion to our country, and the sacrifice of personal ease and self-interest, and even of life to its defense. The republic has always put its faith in the civilian soldier, and that faith has never been betrayed. In the ordeal of war and in the trials of disordered peace the guardsman has stood stanchly of the nation against its foes from without or within.

Chicago welcomes the 33d Division with pride and gratitude.

LAKE WATER DIVERSION IN THE DROUTH.

The federal lake level survey for the month of June has produced some interesting information. As might be expected after the protracted drouth, the level of Lakes Michigan and Huron is roughly 19 inches below the average for the last ten years. At the same time, Lake Superior, controled by compensating works, is 9 inches higher than the average for the same period. Apparently without question, a surplus of 9 inches of water is impounded by the federal government in Lake Superior for the benefit of interlake transportation, permitting the lower lakes to bear the brunt not only of their own drouth conditions but also those of the entire Superior drainage basin as well.

We are going to enter into no engineering arguments on the pros and cons of diversion versus limiting water supply at its source in its effect on lake levels. We know that we are going to be told that water diverted at Chicago is gone forever whereas impounded Lake Superior water eventually will move through the lakes—after the need for it passes. We merely wish to draw attention to the fact that there is absolutely no difference between artificially controling river flow out of Lake Superior for the benefit of interlake navigation and diversion of a minor amount through a nick in the brim of Lake Michigan for precisely the same purpose.

THE STARS' PAY ROLL.

Sol A. Rosenblatt, deputy code administrator investigating Hollywood pay rolls, includes in his report the menacing observation that the ratio between the salary budget and the gross receipts is far too high. Two years ago the average American would have batted his eyes as he read this statement and wondered how the heck it became a federal government business what a movie actor got except for tax purposes. The same American would not feel the same degree of amazement today, and yet the query remains, what the heck? It may be recalled that some time ago a report emanated from the White House that movie salaries in the high brackets did not accord spiritually or ethically with the finer meanings of the New Deal.

Ordinarily the federal government, at least the treasury department of it, is glad to discover a highly solvent citizen and to slice his revenue down for its own profit. The double policy of soaking the citizens who make the most money in order to help other citizens who are encouraged not to make any, and at the same time of seeking to prevent the high salaried people from getting high salaries, could be possible only in the New Deal. It is not exactly a case of the right hand not knowing what the left is doing, but rather a case of a million hands, none of them knowing what they're doing.

The pay of a movie player is determined partly by his own idea of his worth, but a great deal more by a producer's idea of it. The producer buys some lemons, but he's in the busines more for money than for art, and the item of chief importance to him is his net. Very often he spends his money like a madman, but when a picture meets his expectations he is satisfied to concede the box office attraction of the stars he has hired. He knows that the star's popularity is a part of the financial adventure he undertakes. Some of the stars are perennials, but others are of rather short life. When one is through nobody could be deader or more desolate.

The Hollywood products are sold at a reasonable price to the individual. Exhibitors have sought to give their patrons nearly every comfort that can be imagined for a place of recreation. They provide a polite, disciplined staf of attendants. Most of them are endeavoring to keep their theaters cool in the summer, and for an average price, ranging from 25 to 40 cents, the customer gets two hours of varied entertainment which for the most part is to his choice. Censors are more concerned with the quality of the pictures than the customers are.

In such conditions it would seem that the pay a producer of moving pictures is willing to give the players on whom he counts for his profits could be considered a private affair between the contracting parties. That assertion must be made with due reserve, if not with timidity, because nowadays it is mighty difficult to determine what private affairs are private affairs. It is safer to lump them all as being government business.

THE MUSIC FESTIVAL.

Chicago, tonight, will have an opportunity not only of witnessing the greatest music festival and spectacle the city has ever seen, but will also have the opportunity of participating in it.

The Fifth Annual Music Festival, which THE TRIBUNE has the privilege of sponsoring, will be a huge community "get together" and songfest of fellow townspeople and their "sisters and their cousins and their aunts" from towns throughout Chicagoland.

Spectators will view the great spectacle of forty-three bands, marching wave upon wave into Soldiers' field; of 4,000 Boy Scouts making a complete encampment, with tents and live trees, spring into being before the eyes. They will hear massed choruses, as well as the golden voice of John Charles Thomas, one of the greatest of living baritones.

But, in addition, each spectator present will become a part of the show in the community singing. From every section of the stands voices will join in "My Old Kentucky Home," "Sweet Adeline," and the rest of the old favorites.

The idea is to present a marvelous musical program, and, at the same time, to bring every one close together in that neighborly spirit which community singing can make manifest.

Maybe you like to sing—most of us do, even if we have to confine it to the bathtub—but maybe you're a little embarrassed about doing it. Don't be. The officials of the festival promise that the lights are going to be lowered during the community singing, so you can sit back in the shadows and warble away to your heart's content.

Back in the country, from time to time, the neighbors from several miles around get together for a "husking bee" or some such affair. They have a big fried chicken dinner, then sit around for one of those jolly times of singing and swapping stories.

Chicago is a little too big to follow out that delightful program in detail, but Soldiers' field is our place to get together. And tonight we neighbors—because we're all neighbors in our fondness for our city—have a chance for that community gathering.

We'll be there to witness a marvelous spectacle, to hear marvelous music, and to lift up our own voices together in praise of our city, our country, and our God.

POLITE QUERY.

A business man has just been sent to jail for three months by order of a judge in New York City in enforcement of the NRA code for vehicles. His crime was selling an automobile for $50 less than the list price. New York is the community in which the milk prosecution started and where Mrs. Budd was cracked down for keeping off the relief by making artificial flowers in her home. Across the river lives the memorable pants presser. No wonder Liberty stands in New York harbor with her back to these doings. Isn't it about time for a little show of American manhood in New York, or have the New Yorkers succumbed to the conquering Fascists without a struggle?

Editorial of the Day

WHY SUBSIDIZE FOLLY?

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

No farmers in the arid regions of the prairie states will be forced to abandon their homes and take up otners in more productive areas, the emergency relief administration at Washington hastens to make clear, after some signs of resentment greet Reclamation Commissioner Elwood Mead's assertion that the arid regions must b- "evacuated." Thus it will be perfectly all right for residents of those areas to be "loyal to the soil," such as it is, and "fight it out" against unbeatable odds if they care to do so.

Unquestionably that is the proper attitude for the government to take. It is the government's duty to preserve liberty in this country. Liberty includes not only the right to butt one's head repeatedly against a stone wall but also the right to try to coax profitable crops out of land that nature deemed best suited to the production of tough grass and prairie dogs. A free country is one in which a man may be a fool as long as he pleases, provided he does not interfere with the follies of others.

The fact remains, however, that Dr. Mead is hitting pretty close to the truth when he says there is no sense in trying to make farming profitable on those semi-arid plains and foothills without irrigation and a reserve water supply. Likewise it is appaient that no sufficient reserve water supply exists to make irrigation economically feasible in those areas. The evidence, therefore, seems to warant the conclusion that nobody has any business trying to make a living from that type of land.

It follows that, although the government would not be justified in condemning such land against further use, there is no excuse for spending tax money collected in more bountiful areas to aid the bitterenders who bullheadedly insist on "fi hting it through" on the semi-arid land. It is foolish to go on dumping relief money and other financial aids into those sections every few years merely to enable people with more courage than judgment to hang on by the skin of their teeth and continue their disheartening pursuit of a forlorn hope. The government wouldn't think of repeatedly advancing money for an unlucky but stubborn gambler to play the stock market. Yet stock market gambling and farming on these marginal lands have much in common, with the stock market odds probably more favorable.

Let any one who pleases try to make a living on the near-deserts of western Dakota, Nebraska, and Kansas. But let him also assume his own risks and take the consequences. Tax money can be used to such good advantage in more fertile regions that it is a crime to spend it for seed grain to be sprinkled over land where even the weeds get discouraged.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE-LINE: In 1874 the Gardner House with its ornate mansard roof was at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Jackson street. Some time in the '80s the hotel was leased to Warren Leland, noted New York hotel man of those days, who refurnished it and changed the name to Leland hotel. For years it was a leading and popular Chicago hostelry.

About the turn of the century the ground and building was sold to the late Levy Mayer and the name was changed to the Stratford. Later the property was purchased by S. W. Straus & Co., who razed the old structure and erected the present Straus building. Herman Hefter.

In 1890 over 2,000 lots were offered for sale in Cook county which had a frontage of 7½ feet, 40 feet in depth, with a two foot alley and five foot street. In addition to their diminutive size, they were under water, about 28 miles from the courthouse and six miles from any railroad in a locality where drainage never was successfully accomplished. The location was in section 19, township 37, range 13.

This swindle was perpetrated by a number of sharpers working together. It was the only dishonesty of its kind known in Chicago for many years. No doubt other dealers flattered themselves that they were cheating their customers by shirting remote and unpromising lands upon them. So rapid was the development of the city and its surrounding territory, however, that many buyers of seemingly bad "bargains" came out gainers, in spite of their own stupidity, by holding on. F. R.

In the early '90s Bob Fitzsimmons staged a show at old Battery D on the lake front. Every night Bob offered $50 to any one in the audience who would stand up before him four rounds. Abe Cougle, pretty handy with the mitts, happened to be on deck one night, marched upon the stage and donned the gloves.

As soon as the referee called time, Abe shot out a right hander which brought blood from Bob's nose. Fitzsimmons palpably was surprised, then got busy. Balancing on his right foot, he then executed the famous Fitzsimmons shift, propelling one of those blacksmith haymakers that caught Abe squarely on the chin for a trip to Dreamland. That knockout took all the pugilistic aspirations from Cougle. He was kidded so much about it he took to drinking, which undoubtedly hastened his death. Eff Bee.

MY TREASURE BOX.

A bit of mellow lace or two,
Dainty ribbon from a gown of blue,
A bow that once graced a bouquet,
Precious memories so carefully laid away.
Such trifles the hearts of women embrace
To relive happy moments, passing years erase.
Sentimental baubles, you say. Well, maybe so—
Yet this much I would have you know,
There is not enough wealth to buy
The memories that in my Treasure Box lie.

T. O. P. S.

WE WONDER HOW MANY OF THOSE who laugh at the clever lines and enjoy the appeal of Shirley Temple recognize just how appropriate is the title of "Little Miss Marker." We polled our party of six. After having seen Damon Runyon's screen version of his short story, all knew that a marker had something to do with betting and credit, but none could define exactly what a marker was. Which shows we are in pari-mutuel days at the race track.

Back in the period when bookmakers flourished and posted odds against horses on large boards, called "slates," it sometimes happened that a player known to the bookie was either short of cash or did not have it with him. If he was reliable and known as likely to make good, he was permitted to bet a "marker," just like a charge account at your grocer.

Barney Schreiber, who never could say "No" to friend or down-and-outer, probably had more unredeemed markers than any other bookmaker on western tracks. Barney [Kid] Weller also would take a stiff marker from a friend.

In the play the little girl [Shirley Temple] was left as security for a $20 marker in "Sorrowful" Jones' betting emporium, hence the title. The Wake-Line, only a casual movie fan, has neither technique nor temerity to trespass in Mae Tinée's preserves, but this story by a fellow sports writer, Runyon, simply "took" us by its clever lines, humorous situations, plot with a sports background, and keen acting by a capable cast of whom, of course, the child actor attracted most attention. It's the best we've seen in months.

LAST CALL FOR MEMBERS of the volunteer chorus to participate in the community singing of "Sweet A-d-e-l-l-n-e" at the Chicagoland Music Festival at Soldiers' field tonight. That voice in section 31, enthusiastic but not necessarily musical, may be recognized by those near as ours.

Seems that all repeal did in bringing back the saloon was to have stores draw their shades.

VINCENT'S ANGINA OR TRENCH MOUTH.

ULCERATIONS within the mouth and upper pharynx are usually referred to as stomatitis or mouth cankes. Although we pay considerable attention to the general hygiene of the body, most of us fail to recognize the importance of mouth hygiene. Any infection within the mouth or on the mucous membrane of the pharynx may have an important effect upon general health.

A special type of infection of the mucous membrane of the mouth, characterized by the formation of ulcers, is called Vincent's angina or trench mouth. This condition has a tendency to occur in persons between the ages of 20 and 40 who are below par, overworked, or fatigued from any cause. It may sometimes be associated with the breaking through of a wisdom tooth or a throat infection.

The attack usually begins with a slight difficulty in swallowing, some hoarseness, a feeling of fatigue, and possibly some fever. The tongue is usually quite heavily coated. If prompt treatment is not instituted, within two or three days the mucous membrane of the throat will be swollen and red, and here and there patches of ulceration covered with a grayishlike coating somewhat resembling the coating of the tongue will occur. Sometimes this ulceration is quite deep and considerable tissue is destroyed. This is due to the shutting off of circulation and is coincident with the destruction of the capillaries supplying the mucous membrane of the mouth and throat.

Once the ulcerative character has been recognized, every effort should be made to prevent its spread. Careful isolation of the patient must be secured, and he should use no eating utensils common to the remainder of the family.

In the first instance treatment must be directed to cleansing without injury the mouth, gums, and tonsils. This may be best accomplished by using a copious throat irrigation with hydrogen peroxide solution, later applying cotton swabs soaked in peroxide to the affected area. The use of sodium perborate is by many considered more effective than the hydrogen peroxide, or, if one prefers, a solution of 1 to 4,000 of potassium permanganate. If the infection does not yield within a day or two, professional help must be secured and strong antiseptics, such as mercury solutions, preparations of arsenic and copper, etc., may be used by the physician.

It has been shown that the fusiform bacilli described by Vincent are found in practically every normal mouth, and it seems reasonable to assume that they are not the cause of the original inflammation and ulceration. They no doubt greatly aggravate the condition, feeding upon the destroyed and decaying tissue. Unfortunately the infection is sometimes accompanied by bronchial inflammation and, in certain instances, by the formation of lung abscesses. Occasionally the tonsils are the chief sites of the ulcerations, which may be large and deep, due to invasion of the tonsil crypts. Removal of the tonsils during this ulcerative stage should never be attempted.

The infection is frequently overlooked by both the dentist and the physician. In any event careful attention to mouth hygiene should be the rule. Mouth washes may be helpful but in severe cases are not effective. As a routine in mouth hygiene they are useful. In the presence of any throat irritation hydrogen peroxide and sodium perborate can do no harm and may do good. A useful mouth wash consists of 1 part hydrogen peroxide and 4 parts of a 5 per cent solution of boric acid. This may be gargled or applied by the patient himself to the ulcerated areas. A diet rich in vitamins and in calcium is advocated. Milk in large quantities seems to have a salutary effect.

BLOOD PRESSURE.

Mrs. I. H. T. writes: I am 52 years old and have just been told I have arteriosclerosis. Is this dangerous? Can a person with this trouble live long? Should I be on a diet?

REPLY.

Your physician has probably found that you have a higher blood pressure than the average person of your age.

Arteries are elastic pipes that carry blood to the tissues and organs of the body. When they are under increased pressure there is a tendency to hardening. Arteriosclerosis is one name for hardening of the arteries.

Sometimes lime is deposited in the walls.

Many persons have hardening of the arteries to some degree and live practically normal lives to a good old age.

You handle a fragile teacup with care. Handle your arteries in the same way. Rest and diet will help. Overeating is a factor in causing the disease.

COFFEE.

M. P. writes: Is it harmful to drink from five to seven cups of coffee during the day? If so, what harm does it do?

REPLY.

Coffee contains from one-half to one grain of caffein per cup. You may be using caffein to excess and overstimulating the nervous system. It would be safer to reduce your coffee consumption by one-half. Physicians use caffein as a heart stimulant.

RHEUMATISM.

H. J. M. writes: For two months I have had muscular rheumatism. My right hand is very stiff and sore. What is the cause?

REPLY.

You must have some infection causing your muscular rheumatism or arthritis. Find the source of the infection if possible. Have you bad teeth, or infected tonsils or sinuses? Rest and heat are indicated.

RED EYES.

J. G. writes: My eyes are always terribly red. About 10 p. m. they feel very heavy. My eyesight seems perfect and I do not read much.

REPLY.

You may have some type of conjunctivitis. Wash the eyes several times daily with boric acid solution, using an eye cup. If this does not relieve the condition consult a skilled opthalmologist.

ACNE.

J. M. writes: I am a girl 16 years old and suffer from acne. Must I diet to clear my face?

REPLY.

Acne may prove stubborn if you do not regulate your diet. Omit fatty foods such as nuts, fat meats, and, for a short period of time, use little butter and cream. Lean meat and starches may be used freely. You may require the advice of a skin specialist.

WAGE ASSIGNMENT.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is a wage assignment broken if the person who made the assignment leaves his place of employment? 2. What other recourse at law has the party in whose favor the assignment was made? 3. If the person who made the assignment returns the merchandise, has the other party any further recourse? A. L. S.

1. Yes.
2. The debtor's assets in excess of $400 and his income in excess of $20 per week would be subject to exemption. The exemption would be smaller if the debtor is not the head of a family.
3. It seems probable that the seller is in a position to resell for the buyer's account and hold the buyer for the balance.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some time ago I received a letter from my mortgage man that within five days from the date of his letter he would start foreclosure proceedings against me. This was about three weeks ago. Since then I haven't heard from him at all. Is there any way I can find out whether he has really started foreclosure? T. G.

If the property is in Cook county, the proceedings would probably be started in either the Circuit or Superior court and you could check up by inquiring at the offices of the clerks of both courts.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DIVORCE DECREE.

Park Ridge, Ill., Aug. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is a divorce decree or back alimony a legal lien on the former husband's real estate, acquired after the divorce? 2. Must there be a judgment of record for the amount due before it becomes a lien? 3. I have asked quite a few lawyers and they all have a different opinion. 4. Have you any authority on it? E. N.

1. Yes.
2. The words "decree" and "judgment" are practically synonymous.
3. It seems probable that the supposed differences were due to differences in the questions you asked.
4. The Revised Statutes.

PROBATE OF ESTATE.

Lincoln, Ill., Aug. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Does the law require a lawyer's services in probating an estate? 2. If not, can you tell me the successive legal steps to be taken from time of filing of will? What legal papers are necessary? 3. We desire to handle it ourselves if possible. H. H.

1. No, but as a practical matter the employment of an attorney is advisable in Cook county. For information as to your local practice, we sugrest that you talk with your local officials.
2. A complete outline of the proceedings would be of undue length.
3. We suggest that you first examine the files of similar proceedings in the office of the clerk of the court.

BUENOS AIRES.—Automobile racing in Argentina has been virtually outlawed until such time as the country possesses roads which will permit of high speeds under something like normal safety conditions.

Up to date the toll in human lives has been so heavy that it has unnerved the provincial municipal authorities, who, almost without exception, have banned further cross-country racing. Twenty drivers and mechanics have been killed and 100 spectators injured in two years as a consequence of speeding 60 miles or more per hour over deep rutted dirt roads which would provide a severe test for an ordinary touring car driven at 30 miles.

How Argentine drivers manage to race over such roads has always been a mystery to visiting American and European speed kings, many of whom have frankly declared that nothing would induce them to compete in an Argentine contest which usually resolves itself into a series of hairbreadth escapes from disaster on the part of the winner and a hospital procession for some of the less fortunate.

As a result of these fatal accidents the municipal authorities in the provinces of Buenos Aires, Cordoba, and Santa Fe have agreed to withhold permission for such events until road conditions have been improved.

A MOTHER PROTESTS.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Aug. 15.—When the boys were babies I held pride in my heart that my sons could claim full United States citizenship. I am patriotic still, where country is concerned, and I am glad to hold D. A. R. and American Legion auxiliary privileges; but first of all, I am a mother, and as I view—

1. This present excessive orgy of experimental spending,
2. This issuing of more government bonds, which fail to oversell at par—22 millions of which the government plans to buy back [with what?],
3. Plans for more taxing of this and taxing of that,
4. This quitting the gold standard, halving the value of a dollar, seizure of all monetary silver, fictitious raising of prices, deliberate ignoring of the old economic law of supply and demand,
5. Great loans, much of which seem pure waste to my mind [to-wit: Men put to work cleaning public buildings, jobs nonconstructive to permanent usefulness, not resulting in anything of value to the commonwealth],
6. The trend toward inflation of this and deflation of that until ALL is false

—I am ashamed to know what my sons will think and say when grown to manhood of these debts saddled upon them by an experimenting clique and allowed to continue by an apparently helpless population trying to be loyal to their government.

I protest!

I may be alone in this, but I don't believe it. I believe I voice the protests of thousands of thinking, intelligent mothers, the protests against this terrible burden of easy money debts being laid upon babies' shoulders to be worked off when the perpetrators are long gone. At the present rate children yet unborn will come into the world not with silver spoons in their mouths but with promissory government debt notes to pay off.

It isn't fair! It isn't just nor right! I want it to stop!

I repeat I'm patriotic, not idiotic. I want something to be done about it and this is the only way I can think of which will be a beginning. I am reaching out with my protest to hear what others are thinking. I hope to end this loaning and issuing of fictitious, intangible funds of money which do not exist and which my sons must make good.

MRS. P. L. REYMOND.

WIPED OUT BY HIS INHERITANCE.

Elkhart, Ind., Aug. 12.—We have all harped so on government taxes that we have all lost sight of the fact that state taxes are the ones that are causing the worst trouble. My state taxes are nearly five times greater than they were in 1917. The government takes taxes out of income, which is the right way, but the state takes them even if you have no income. A chap here inherited 160 acres from his father. It was not income producing and he never earned over $2 a day, so he was wiped out.

JOHN ENRIGHT.

MILE HIGH FARMING.

Muscatine, Ia., Aug. 15.—The statements of your correspondent, Chesley Manly, regarding the government's Wyoming irrigation project seem rather strange to one who for some years had a practical experience in crop production in that mountain district.

For some years I had charge of a large irrigated ranch in the Bear river valley, where we raised fine crops of small grain, alfalfa, vegetables, and some fruit. This ranch had an elevation of over 6,200 feet and we had only one frost to injure crops.

Where the rainfall is small and there is almost constant sunshine crops mature rapidly. Also the volcanic soil shows wonderful results in crop production, while the grass grown at that elevation puts much more fat on cattle than grass grown in the lower altitudes.

I do not believe that an elevation of 5,000 feet is too high for the production of crops, excepting corn. As to the cost of this project, I am not prepared to say. If it's costing over $300 per acre it's too much, certainly.

ABOUT BOYCOTTS.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—For more than one year massmeetings have been held in different parts of the United States to boycott German goods by American citizens. We have no right to dictate to the German people or to their government if they enforce a law with which we do not sympathize. We never heard that the people of Germany or of any other nation protested when our government sent some of their descendants to jail from five to ten years for selling a pint of whisky in our prohibition era with which those countries did not sympathize. This is not a time for any boycott, but we should all unite to further trade among all countries to kill this terrible depression which is the product of such hated boycotts and jealousies among peoples and nations.

Friends of liberty have waited in vain for THE TRIBUNE to expostulate about the necessity of publishing the paper surreptitiously. SAM MARKOWITZ.

FULTON PLEDGES PROBE OF PWA'S SNUB TO CHICAGO

Will Raise Issue in House if Elected, He Says.

"If I am elected to congress I will stand committed to raise the issue on the floor of the house of why Chicago is discriminated against in the pouring out of billions in federal Public Works administration money."

This was the assertion yesterday of Frank M. Fulton, Republican candidate for congress from the Third district, which embraces Chicago's southwest side and a sprinkling of country towns beyond the city boundary line. Fulton charged that Chicago was receiving "the short end" of federal cash, in contrast with other localities, because of the politics played by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, who is PWA administrator.

At the same time the Illinois PWA office here received a new batch of federal advances, but Chicago projects such as the water filtration plant, lake front airport, and art institute addition, which have been pending for many months, were not mentioned. The proposed PWA loan for the outer drive bridge was disposed of recently when Ickes announced that it had been rescinded.

The new allotments included Calumet City, school, grant of $170,000; Belleville, new jail, $230,000; Griggsville, water works, $90,000, and Ashland, water works, $75,000. There were sixteen projects approved in all and the other amounts were small.

Politics Only Reason.

In reviewing the situation Fulton declared he could see no reason "but a political one" why Ickes should discriminate against Chicago in handing out the funds.

"The situation is simply that too much power and too much money is in the hands of one man, with this man's personal whims or political axes to grind becoming factors," Fulton said. "It is a national condition, as well as local, and it must be remedied. If I go to congress I shall do all in my power to bring about a showdown on the distribution of PWA funds."

Fulton said that persistent reports were bobbing up that Ickes' attitude toward Chicago projects was influenced by the fact that he was politically unsympathetic toward the present administration of the city and was attempting to start a third party.

"If it is true that the secretary is allowing his political differences to color his PWA decisions he is being manifestly unjust and unfair toward Chicago," said Fulton.

Congressman Edward A. Kelly, Democrat, who is running for reëlection in the Third district against Fulton, was out of the city and could not be reached yesterday.

List of Disapproved Projects.

Publicity has already been given out, much of it by Ickes himself, on the granting of PWA funds for the sanitary district, for five new high schools, the county nurses' home, and the Ashland avenue bridge in Chicago. The status of other projects, for which applications have been made, is not so well known.

Besides the outer drive bridge, Chicago projects that have been disapproved, are as follows:

Rogers park district improvement, $156,000.

Cermak park improvement, $45,350.

Chicago city parks improvements, $266,000.

Calumet park community houses, $223,285.

In addition to the water filtration plant, airport, and art institute addition, those projects upon which no action has been taken include:

South Chicago Community hospital, $111,000.

Cemetery improvements, $200,000.

There is also an application for PWA funds for paving in Cook county that is still pending in Washington.

$100 VACANT LOTS BACK $5,000 BOND; 2 HELD, 3 SOUGHT

Two men were under arrest last night and three others were being sought as Municipal Judge Francis J. Borrelli launched an investigation into the approval of a $5,000 real estate bond, backed only by four vacant lots, with a total estimated value of $100.

The bond was scheduled for James Emery, 37 years old, wanted in Denver for the sale of $7,500 worth of forged securities, and the story of the bond juggling came to light when Emery failed to appear before Judge Borrelli for an extradition hearing.

Under arrest last night were Frank Eurke, 60 years old, of 1628 West Adams street, in whose name the real estate is listed, and Philip Kitzer, a bondsman with offices at 17 West Adams street.

Kitzer said he had been approached by Brooks Glick, employed by another bondsman, Harry Goldman, with an office at 1121 South State street. Glick, he said, persuaded him to provide bond for Emery. Kitzer, Judge Borrelli said, owned the property, but deeded it to Eurke so that he might schedule it for Emery's freedom. An unnamed lawyer handled the details.

Extradition of Ex-Broker in Stocks Case Approved

Extradition papers for the removal of D. A. "TALK SICKNESS" VICTIM RELIVES BOYHOOD DAYS

Babbles On in Twelfth Day of Malady.

Mount Gilead, O., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Donald Campbell, who is reliving his 32 years in a weird phantasmagoria believed to be induced by encephalitis, babbled on into the twelfth day of his "talking sickness" today. His condition was slightly improved.

During the night he obtained the first natural rest since his affliction started, but continued his monolog today. Previously he had been quieted only by a sedative.

Voice Remains Strong.

Despite his almost incessant conversation, his voice has not failed him. He had grown slightly hoarse yesterday but was in good voice today. He shows no appreciable signs of physical weakness.

Despite efforts of the Campbell household to maintain quiet for him, he insists upon "listening" to the radio. But this does not divert him from his stream of talk—it only amends the subject matter.

He intersperses his comment on radio programs with note taking but reverts to his notes for subject matter when the radio is turned off.

Tells Boyhood Experiences.

How he lost a $5 bill on the farm when he was a boy . . . how he found it again. . . . How he wants to get back on his job as a truck driver. . . . How he has to get his "priority" . . . how he prefers a certain radio station's programs. . . .

U. S. HEADED FOR FASCISM, SAYS MUSSOLINI PAPER

MILAN, Italy, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Popolo D'Italia, Premier Mussolini's newspapter, said today the United States wants "anything except a return to liberal economy, which means anarchy."

In a three column editorial the newspaper gave its answer to the question, "What Does America Want?" The editorial is based on Secretary Wallace's recent book.

"Wallace talks of coöperation, but he means corporation," the newspaper said. "His solutions are corporative. His book is an indictment of the liberal economy which has had its time and has closed its cycle. After reading the book one can say that America is going toward corporative economy. It is to the merit and glory of the Fascist revolution that it had opened the great corporative highway upon which, little by little, will march all great people of the world."

Boy of 12 Falls from Horse; Dies of Injury

Arnold Dahl, 12 years old, of 303 West 113th street, died yesterday, apparently of a brain hemorrhage suffered when he fell from a horse while riding on a farm in Thornton township Thursday. Arnold and his brother, Curtiss, 15 years old, had ridden to the farm on bicycles, and when they found only one horse for rent, were taking turns riding it. Arnold had his turn, and as he was getting off to allow Curtiss to ride, he slipped and fell, his head striking the ground. He complained of a headache, but did not seem seriously hurt until he returned home. He then fell into a coma from which he never recovered.

SOUTH ILLINOIS G.O.P. PLATFORMS ASSAIL NEW DEAL

Party Here Is Cheered by Eastern Reports.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A southern Illinois analysis of the New Deal as one apparently off the bottom of a stacked deck engrossed the attention yesterday of the committee which is drafting a Cook county Republican platform.

Down in Egypt Republican county conventions in their platform making are emphasizing the piling up of taxes through the experiments of the brain trust and are dwelling upon the efforts to regiment agriculture and society through an upset of the constitution and the existing social order.

In Pulaski county, down in the toe of Illinois, the Republican county committee has adopted a platform, a summary of which is being given wide circulation. In condensed form it reads:

"1. The Democratic Brain Trust has experimented on the American people until the guinea pig is well nigh dead from the experiments.

"2. They have promised us a new social order which can only be secured by radical changes in our present governmental and economic system with greatly increased burden in taxation and a destruction of individual effort.

"3. They have foisted on the people schemes and projects which were never included in any Democratic platform.

"4. The American people have never authorized or ratified any of the major schemes thrust upon the American people which are embodied in what some are pleased to call the 'New Deal.'

"5. Out of a stacked deck the country has been given a new deal. This new deal has been a raw deal for American industry, a misdeal for American labor, a crooked deal for the American constitution, and the forgotten man has drawn the joker."

A report of political conditions in Pennsylvania and Michigan was made by George deB Keim of New Jersey, secretary of the Republican national committee, yesterday at Chicago headquarters of the Republican senatorial committee.

"In Pennsylvania and Michigan this week," said Mr. Keim, "I received gratifying reports. Pennsylvania Republicans expect to win eight or ten of the twelve seats now held by Democrats. Eleven of these twelve were chosen two years ago, and in many instances the districts are normally Republican. Twenty-two of Pennsylvania's 34 congressional districts are now held by Republicans, and, of course, we expect to retain these.

"In Michigan I was told the Republicans expect to regain six and possibly seven seats of the ten now held by Democrats. Business and laboring men in Detroit and other large centers are thoroughly tired with the New Deal and are expressing dissatisfaction with NRA.

"As to New Jersey, we will take back two seats of the four now held by Democrats, making it 12 Republicans and 2 Democrats in the house at Washington."

TAMMANY HOUSE MEN SEE PLOT TO DISPLACE THEM

(Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—Members of the big Tammany house delegation today charged the administration was attempting to unseat them with so-called Roosevelt recovery party candidates in the Democratic primaries Sept. 18 in New York.

As spokesman for a group, Representative Martin J. Kennedy [Dem., N. Y.] asserted that in order to help some "recovery" candidates, Postmaster General Farley, with President Roosevelt's approval, was permitting either the candidates or their advocates to handle federal patronage in Manhattan.

All New York candidates for congress must file petitions signed by at least 500 voters by Aug. 21. Kennedy told newspaper men that on that day it would be learned how many of the Tammany representatives would have opposition from "recovery" aspirants, indications being there would be quite a number.

For some time there have been reports that the administration might seek to replace with "New Dealers" some of the old time Tammany representatives who were friendly to John F. Curry, deposed Tammany boss.

The President also has said emphatically he was not interfering in primary contests in the states and Postmaster General Farley has issued statements saying the Democratic national committee had not taken sides in primaries.

"Although the President has said he is not interfering in intra-party contests in the states," Kennedy said, "my opponent in the 18th district—James Murray—claims he is the administration candidate and has been handling federal patronage in the district. Similar situations, I understand, prevail in other districts.

"I was one of the few representatives who voted to sustain President Roosevelt's veto of the independent offices—veterans' relief bill. It was my single vote that prevented the house from adopting the senate veterans' proposals opposed by President Roosevelt, yet the administration is supporting my opponent who claims to be running on a New Deal platform. It appears to me that the administration should stand by the members who stood by it."

MISS BOOTH MAY BE NEW HEAD OF SALVATION ARMY

PLYMOUTH, England, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Evangeline Booth, who has been prominently mentioned as the possible successor of Gen. Edward J. Higgins, commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, arrived here today from the United States.

Miss Booth, who is commander of the organization in the United States, said she comes "with an open mind to discuss questions which will come before the army council" at its sessions beginning Aug. 28.

"THE LENGTHENED SHADOW OF A MAN"

MARSHALL FIELD was born—one hundred years ago today—on his father's farm, known as "Field's Hill," near Conway, Massachusetts. He came to Chicago in 1856. Nine years later, in 1865, he bought a controlling interest in the business which, in 1881, became known as Marshall Field & Company.

Born August 18, 1834 Died January 16, 1906

The great part which Marshall Field assumed in the building of the city is well known to all of our older citizens. Together with a small coterie of civic-minded men, whose names are also famous in Chicago's history, he was responsible for the early development of State Street and for many other notable activities and institutions.

Much might be said of this business as "the lengthened shadow of a man." Although much has been developed since his time the business which bears his name still rests upon the enduring fundamentals of sound business practice for which he stood; still cherishes the same high conception of the functions of a merchant in the service of a community; still maintains unwavering adherence to the standards of quality and character in merchandise which he emphasized and which gave him wide distinction as the world's foremost merchant.

TODAY, the members of this organization honor the memory of Marshall Field and renew their loyalty to the ideals he established.

U. S. COMMITTEE NAMED TO STUDY LIVE STOCK FEED

Shortage Forces Changes in Milk Licenses.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The department of agriculture today announced the appointment of a special emergency committee on live stock feeds, the dearth of which already has zoomed the prices of meat, milk, and dairy products and launched the government on its gigantic cattle slaughtering program.

The committee will make a survey of the nation's supply of live stock feed, take measures for its fullest conservation and most effective distribution, and attempt to adjust the supply with the number of live stock in the country. One means of such an adjustment is the purchase and processing of cattle and sheep in the drouth stricken areas, the processed meats to be distributed by the government for relief purposes.

Modify Milk Licenses.

The shortage of animal feedstuff, particularly hay and forage crops, resulted today in the modification of seven milk marketing licenses in the drouth stricken areas. These cities are Port Huron, Mich., Lincoln, Neb., Tulsa, Okla., Minneapolis and St. Paul, and Leavenworth and Wichita, Kas.

Price increases allowed the farmers by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace range from 15 cents to 40 cents a hundredweight and in most cases will result in an increase of 1 cent a quart in the retail price.

Officials of the agricultural administration said their field agents were reporting agitation among the farmers of the Pure Milk association of Chicago for a further increase, but that no formal application had been made. The price to farmers in the Chicago milk shed is now $2.25 a hundredweight.

Lawrence Westbrook, drouth expert of the Federal Emergency Relief administration, is chairman of the live stock feed committee, and other members are Kieth Southard, A. T. Esgate, C. R. Arnold, C. W. Warburton, J. R. Mohler, W. A. Callender, Philip G. Murphy, and Calvin Hoover, representing the Surplus Relief corporation, the Farm Credit administration, and the AAA.

Map Production Changes.

While the special emergency committee was getting organized, AAA officials were busy at work on the details of Secretary Wallace's "ever normal granary" scheme, which contemplates drastic changes in the production control policies of the administration next year and will require special legislation in the next session of congress.

The AAA announced that six Illinois counties had been transferred from secondary to emergency drouth classification, making a total of 1,076 emergency counties in the country. The Illinois counties are Calhoun, Greene, Hancock, Jersey, Schuyler, and Scott.

2 IDAHO FIRES IN WOODS JOIN; NEW BATTLE ON

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Another attack was started today against the fires raging in the Selway national forest of central Idaho, after a campsite had been wipe out and blazes on Coldwater and Handry creeks had joined in the Locsha river basin.

Fire fighters had just moved their supplies and evactuated the camp when the flames roared through it.

Crews reëstablished partial control of the Big Pete King creek burn, in the same forest, but the McLendon creek fire broke through the fire lines in the northeast sector.

In the Kaniksu forest of northern Idaho, fresh men were rushed in to relieve the 625 foresters striving to keep the flames out of an area of thick slashing along the Pack river.

In the Plumas national forest of northern California all available men were being sent to fight a menacing fire in the Nelson creek district. Recruits were mobilized at the lumber mill town of Sloat, five miles to the east.

DROUTH WEAKENS OLD TREE; STORM SPLITS IT IN HALF

The long continued drouth and Wednesday's storm have almost meant death for one of the oldest bur oak trees in Cook county, it became known yesterday. The tree, four feet in diameter and estimated to be 400 years old, stands in the yard of the home of Mrs. E. L. Sommers, 9500 South Wood street, Beverly Hills. Weighted down by the heavy rain and twisted by the high wind, the great oak split down the middle. Half the tree fell and is being sawed into firewood. Efforts are being made to save the half still standing. It is believed the tree's dryness because of the long rainless period weakened it, since it is not apparently diseased.

State's Attorney's Police Raid Hoodlum Hangouts

Detective bureau squads led by Sergt. Kelly of the state's attorney's office last night made several raids on alleged hangouts of hoodlums and arrested half a dozen men. Regarded as most important of the prisoners was Claude Maddox, who was formerly allied with beer running gangs. He was taken in his tavern at 2241 South Cicero avenue, Cicero. It was explained that the arrests were made in connection with a drive to make hoodlums uncomfortable sponsored by State's Attorney Courtney.

Julius Savit Again Heads Care of Aged Alliance

Julius Savit of Chicago was reelected president of the National Alliance of Agencies for the Care of the Aged at the final session of a two day conference in the Stevens hotel yesterday. Twenty-five newly elected members of the executive committee, headed by Dr. Paul Douglas of the University of Chicago will prepare recommendations setting forth the alliance's solution of the problem of caring for the aged.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Alfalfa to the Rescue.

August 17, 1934.

TWENTY-TWO alfalfa varieties have just gone into training here on the experimental farm for a winter endurance contest. And the lowly chinch bug, much as he despises a legume such as alfalfa, can take the credit for the latest experimental planting on the farm.

With such a thorough infestation by the chinch bugs in the timothy, the corn and any barley or oats that might be planted, the 1,320 acres of the farm are to be put into a larger acreage of legumes than has ever been attempted before. So the twenty-two alfalfa varieties, garnered from many states and even from foreign countries, are to be tried out for winter hardiness to determine what varieties are suitable for this section of Illinois.

Twenty foot strips, each 500 feet long, have been seeded with twenty-one varieties. The twenty second type of alfalfa, the Turkistan which was imported, was planted in a 10 foot strip because only five pounds of seed was obtained. In the other strips nearly 10 pounds of seed was drilled in at a rate of 20 pounds to the acre.

This plot of ground along the road west of the home of Clarence Thurow, farm manager, may present as interesting a show next spring as the hybrid corn test plots now offer along the other side of the road.

Varieties of alfalfa include: Kansas Common, Oklahoma Common, Nebraska Hardy, Colorado Common, Beehive Brand from Utah, Montana Common, Idaho Common, Dakota No. 12 from South Dakota, A. B. Lyman from Montana, Utah Grimm, No. 11 South Dakota Grimm, Blackfoot Brand from Idaho, Michigan Grimm, Minnesota Grimm, Certified Hardigan from Michigan, Canadian Variegated, Cossack from Montana, Ladak from Montana, Hardistan from Nebraska, Registered Chilean from Arizona, Registered Hairy Peruvian from Arizona, and the imported Turkistan.

An interesting feathered visitor has moved into the yard near Rawlings' house on the auxiliary farm at Wheaton. It's a young screech owl. The little fellow has selected a big tree for his roost and there he sits all day, waiting for evening which is hunting time for him. The owl has picked out a place in the tree where he can hug the tree trunk, thus getting the benefit of protective coloration. The bird pulls his head down into his feathers and makes himself as inconspicuous as possible. So far the jays and the crows haven't found this night hunter. If they do, they will wake up the barnyard with their cries.

Inasmuch as the screech owl is an efficient mouser, rarely touching useful song birds, he's a helpful bird to have around the farm.

Just about 100 feet from where the owl is staying, several young turkeys occupy a tree at night. They used to be vagabonds, preferring the wide open spaces to the barnyard. But something must have given them a scare in the woods a few days ago, because they come hustling into the barnyard as though they were glad to come back to home and mother. Since their arrival in the barnyard not one of the bunch has shown any inclination to go into the woods again.

I was watching these poults the other day. It was amusing to see how a Bourbon Red turkey hen had adopted some of these scared poults and was looking after them around the barnyard.

And now it's good-by to the farm for a few days. The time has come to make our final fishing and camping trip of the season and to report on how they're biting.

The little green tent that has gone on six TRIBUNE Boy Scout canoe trips is packed in the car. Soon it will be pitched on an island adjacent to some good fishing waters "up where the north begins." In the meantime, Frank Ridgway, agricultural editor, will report on the many interesting, seasonal activities of the experimental farm.

CITY RESPONDS TO BATTLE FOR LAW AND ORDER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Milwaukee is responding in large numbers to a movement incorporated by a group of business men to arouse the community to the danger it faces from disintegration of law and order.

The response was to an announcement of the Citizens' Law and Order league, incorporated for the purposes of arousing and educating public opinion regarding the preservation and maintenance of law and order in Milwaukee county.

The incorporators are Lieut. Col. Stephen A. Park, 3013 South Superior street, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Department Reserve Officers' association; Edward W. Hoffman, 4500 North Lake drive, former president of the Milwaukee community fund, and William A. McMillen, 3075 North Lake drive, former chairman of the community fund.

For Majority Rule.

Mr. Hoffman is president, Howard T. Ott vice president, Col. Park secretary, and Mr. McMillen treasurer. Its slogan is "For majority rule, law and order. Against dictatorship, riot, and disorder."

A letter announcing the purpose of the organization and asking law abiding citizens to affiliate with the league was put in the mail Wednesday night. Before the office closed Thursday several thousand responses were received, Mr. Hoffman said. Telephones rang, visitors called, and the afternoon mail brought many replies from Milwaukeeans sensitive to a growing disregard of respect for the law and anxious to affiliate with other citizens to stop it.

Will Arouse Public.

The primary purpose of the league, Mr. Hoffman explained, is to arouse public opinion. "A strongly organized public opinion can quickly drive the lawbreaker out of Milwaukee," the announcement said. "We are not interested whether the lawbreaker is pale pink or deep red, a walking delegate, a shyster lawyer, or a grandstanding politician with the Republican, Democratic, or Socialist label.

"If he is a lawbreaker he is a menace to the community and the sooner we expose his activities to an aroused public opinion the surer we are to protect life, liberty, and jobs in Milwaukee."

The league is predicated on the principle that the great majority of people are in sympathy with lawful, orderly procedure and, if given an opportunity to unite, will resist the aggression of the lawless.

Girl Rescues Four from Auto Submerged in Pond

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Miss Lorraine McAdams, 19, of Mukwonago, rescued four members of an automobile party late today after their car had left the roadway, plunged into a small pond near Mukwonago, and was submerged. Miss McAdams dove into the water, succeeded in opening the doors of the automobile, and then pulled out the occupants, who were wet but otherwise uninjured. They were taken to Milwaukee by Herman Hoffman. The occupants of the automobile were Louis Garringer and Louis Moorston of Chicago and Miss Mildred Haines and her sister, Evelyn, of Indianapolis, Ind. The automobile was bound for Milwaukee. Miss McAdams was on the road about 100 feet away when the automobile went into the pond.

ROOSEVELT TO BARE NEW DEAL PLANS FOR VETS IN OCTOBER TALK

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—President Roosevelt plans to tell the nation's war veterans in a speech in October just what he proposes to do for them.

The occasion will be the dedication of a new 2 million dollar veterans' hospital for mental cases at Roanoke, Va.

Reliable sources indicated no drastic change in policy would be announced, but that the President would sum up the present government program for the ex-service men and outline future plans to assure the veterans the administration is their friend.

It was denied in quarters close to the White House that the speech would have political import—but it will come only a few days before the Nov. 6 congressional elections.

So the President may be in Hyde Park during September, tentative plans to lay the corner stone of the institution the middle of next month have been changed to a dedicatory program late in October. The date as yet has not been definitly fixed.

Frank T. Hines, who has just completed a survey of the hospitals as veterans' administrator, said today they were in excellent shape.

Both he and Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [Dem., Va.], said an early start would be made upon the appropriation bills to provide funds for veterans, but added there was no intention of seeking increased appropriations, or any material change in legislation.

RUSSIA TO APPLY ART OF 'SCIENCE' TO LITERATURE

MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Authors from every part of Russia gathered here today for the all-union congress of soviet writers, a session described by the newspapers a "laboratory for soviet literature."

Plans are being devised to apply scientific methods of production to literature, to achieve success in the field of literary endeavor just as engineers do in industry.

Maxim Gorki, veteran of soviet literary circles, is taking a leading part in the deliberations of the congress. The sessions were started with the aim of "planning a better coördination of soviet literature with the aims of workers and the government so it will reflect the spirit of proletarian civilization."

Benton Teachers Get Paid Up First Time in 5 Years

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Tells of Fun in Discovering Literary Valuables.

BY MARION STROBEL.

NOT so long ago we all, as amateurs, could indulge the exciting sport of discovering a novelist. Professional critics were few and, for the most part, mild; book-of-the-month dictums nonexistent; publishers' blurbs inconspicuous. Anybody was free to cultivate his own taste as proudly as his own back yard. And for the very reason that the labor entailed created a pride of possession, it was cherished in secret.

Not till an amateur was himself convinced that "his" novelist had reached the hardy bloom of mid-July larkspur did he ask a well selected neighbor in to share his delight. It was possible, also, infinitely to elaborate this sharing: to wait for the perfect summer day, to invite the neighbor in ostensibly for tea, and just as the neighbor was praising the lettuce sandwiches to remark casually, "O, by the way, I picked up a novel for you; it's by an author I've been watching."

I offer discovering poems as the only substitute sport that is, at present, available. Poetry, as has been frequently said, is the "Cinderella of the arts." Of them all, it is the one that needs the most careful, critical pruning and gets the least. The critics do not bother, the publishers do not bother, but the amateur still might. If he would remember the precaution of backing the unknown poem, rather than the poet (for a book of poems is like a series of novels: if one succeeds it is a success, no matter if all the others fail), he might again not only cultivate his own critical taste but renew the peculiarly intimate pleasure of sharing it.

A great number of the lyrics in Audrey Wurdemann's "Bright Ambush" [Day] have vividness, sincerity, charm, and a technical precision that casts new shadows upon the familiarities of love, life, death. I want to share them with all those to whom the following description is lovely. In it Miss Wurdemann, in speaking of herself, says:

". . . I stand

With the few to whom an incisive picture, or an ancient wisdom stated without passion, without nostalgia, without sentimentality, is enough, I would share simplicities from Charles Resnikoff's book, "Jerusalem the Golden" [Objectivist Press]. A poem of three lines will give the method:

"About an excavation
A flock of bright red lanterns has settled."

Only with the very few interested in experimental technique would I warily share the less obscure discretions in George Oppen's "Discreet Series" [Objectivist Press]. Only the very few would appreciate the description:

"Pointedly bent, your elbow on a cartledge
Incognito as summer
Among mechanics."

With the same few I would share at least the conviction in the first of Sydney Salt's "Thirty Pieces" [Caravel Press].

With discriminating men who have foolishly accepted the absurdity that poetry is effeminate I would share the lusty youth, the fine spirit and some of the homely expressions of courage in Paul Engle's "American Song" [Doubleday-Doran]; with the same men share some of the pleasing legends in Daniel Henderson's "Frontiers" [Bruce Humphries]. It would be for their subject-matter and vigor that I would share the Engle and Henderson poems, not for any unusual quality of line or phrase.

And it would be for the forthright spirit that shines through Alice Corbin's "The Sun Turns West" [Writer's Edition] rather than for the presentation of any poem, that I would share many of them. For forthrightness, wisdom, maturity, and the resigned dignity of an admission like the following:

"I know you beautiful and fair
Beyond delight;
I know our bodies bare
In love unite.
Yet weep for passion's flight.
"I weep because the rose
Must fade away;
I weep because of words
That lead astray;
I weep that passion never tells
What it longs to say."

For the gentle mellowness that sometimes triumphs over technical acrobatics in David McCord's "The Crowds" [Scribner], for such Stevenson-like whimsicality as:

"I wish I could remember
The things I used to know:
How many eggs the warbler lays,
And where the turtles go;
Or if the ant has intellect,
And what to do with snow."

As a sincere and graphic picture of a man about to be hanged, I would share Edwin Björkman's "The Wings of Asrael" [Gollifox Press] with any journalist.

And as philosophical questioning, rather than poetry, share Florence Converse's "Efficiency Expert" [Day] with any efficiency expert who happened to be near by.

Guedalla's Account of Napoleon's Return Brilliant Writing

It is characteristic of Philip Guedalla's brilliant pen that he should begin a long monograph on the fatality of "The Hundred Days" [Putnams] of Napoleon's return to France and his empire with "The moon rose a little before nine. It was a still night and the sound of voices came across the water. Down by the little harbor, where the shipping lay with every mast outlined on the night sky, the crowds stood watching, and behind them the town watched from all its lighted windows."

For among present day historians Philip Guedalla writes as nearly like a poet-novelist as any one, but with a sharp and at times bitter wit to spice the tale. "The Hundred Days" has that breathless quality of a tale told for the first thrilling time.

Webster's Dictionary Shows 33% Increase in Number of Entries

If we were told that we could choose one single book to aid, comfort, solace and inspire us in this year of 1934—and one only—we wouldn't hesitate a second. We'd roll up a wheelbarrow and carry off Webster's New International Dictionary, Unabridged [Merriam]. The authorities admit that 60% of the contents is entirely new or entirely rewritten as the result of intensive work since 1909, that number of entries has been increased 32% and the number of pages 25% without bulking the book any larger than the old edition, and that within its 3,350 pages there are 122,000 words more than in any other dictionary.

Editor of Commonweal Writes Book on Hitler

George N. Shuster, editor of the Commonweal, is the author of "Strong Man Rules" [Appleton-Century], the August Catholic Book of the Month club selection. It is a searching analysis of the Hitler régime, with less ebon paint than is usually used on the policies of the "Strong Man." Mr. Shuster gives Hitler credit for being astute as a politician and for being forced into certain situations by unavoidable circumstances.

Rhys, Editor of Everyman's, to Tell Life Story

Will Be More Personal Than Former Volume.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Ernest Rhys, who is known all over the English speaking world as editor of Everyman's Library, is celebrating his seventy-fifth birthday, and his friends and admirers are giving him a birthday party at the Criterion restaurant. Ninety people—all the room will hold—were invited. Mr. Rhys' long service to readers of all ages deserves this recognition, but the lunch is given to the man, not the editor.

Those who read "Everyman Remembers," the book of reminiscences which Mr. Rhys published about four years ago, will recall the range of his acquaintance, and they will be glad to hear that "Everyman Remembers" is to be followed by a second book, not, this time, about Mr. Rhys' memories of other folk, but about his own personal life and growth from earliest days until the present.

He promises to add to the stories so amusingly told in "Everyman Remembers" about J. M. Dent, the English publisher of Everyman's Library, with whom Mr. Rhys' association, although broken from time to time, was maintained for something like forty years. This book should be a good one. I do not know, but I expect the publisher will be Dent.

There has grown up in England a public for omnibus books devoted to one class of short story. No doubt the success of the first of these, Miss Dorothy Sayers' famous book of "Detection, Mystery, and Horror," has had something to do with the interest which publishers have shown [Miss Sayers, by the way, is preparing a third volume of crime, mystery, and horror stories], but we have had omnibus books of "Creepy Stories," "My Best Story," "My Best Detective Story," and so on, until there is quite a long raw of such works.

The latest is "My Naughtiest Story" [Faber], and as the list of contributors includes Michael Arlen, Gilbert Frankau, William Gerhardi, James Laver, and Ethel Mannin the level of naughtiness should be a high one.

George Lansbury, the much loved labor leader, who is as popular with his opponents as he is with his own party, and who has been out of action for some months as the result of a fall from a platform, is writing a book called "My England." This will tell us all what Mr. Lansbury would like to see done to make England a Socialist paradise.

It will be unlike the books which other labor leaders would write, for Mr. Lansbury, although mostly heart, approaches politics as a human being. It was he who carried into execution a plan for giving the London poor a bathing place in Hyde Park (where the rich ride), and he was able to do this in a way to give pleasure to all.

Indeed, he has only to ask for money to get it for any cause he has at heart, and if his book is as full of persuasiveness as the author of it we may see a new England in no time. It will greatly resemble the old. The book will be published by Selwyn & Blount.

Seaport's Boom Days.

Melvin Levy tells in "The Last Pioneers" [King] the dramatic story of the boom days of a seaport on Puget sound that became the "Queen of the Pacific," and of Herman Merro, who left Vladivostok and made gold-plated Alaska a stopping point on his way to almost unlimited power in the Pacific northwest.

Mystery of the Week
BY MORTIMER QUICK

Pretty low behavior in very high society is the theme of Mary Hastings Bradley's entertaining new murder story, "Unconfessed." (Appleton-Century.) One of those fierce Long Island house parties is in session and the heroine, under whose modest self-presentation a very pretty and charming young woman is revealed, is caught in as vicious a tangle as could well be devised. Really she was there to expertise a gallery full of doubtful old masters, but a famous beauty is found dead and her famous diamonds vanish, and who but the heroine is suspected?

To be sure, so is almost every one else before the end is reached, and all sorts of excitements ensue, complicated by incredibly foolish performances on the part of the heroine, who in her turn suspects almost every one except a good looking young critic, who is so attractive that she just naturally, like any other nice girl, can't believe that he would do anything nasty. You may guess that it is she who finally unmasks the villain, but not before another murder has been committed and an ardent love affair has developed.

It is a skillful and fast moving story, and the people concerned have a certain reality which is rare in a mystery thriller. They behave as I should think a houseful of reasonable people might behave when something utterly unexpected and perfectly awful happens to the last person they could imagine such a thing happening to, and I think it takes pretty good writing to make it seem that way.

The solution, too, is very plausible, and each incident of the few hectic days which elapse is woven into the fabric of the story. Mrs. Bradley has that flair for writing which gives to her stories an ease and smoothness which makes you think they must have been written as quickly as they can be read, a quality which improves any good mystery novel.

Mary Landon Baker Writes of Mayfair

Satire Shows Ultimate in Futile Living.

"The Arcadians," by Mary Landon Baker. [Golden Shield Press, London.]

MARY LANDON BAKER in January, 1922, gave the American language a new verb when she left her fiancé waiting at the altar. "To marybaker" expressed everything that had been inherent and implied in the situation of vainly waiting at the church.

That involuntary contribution to the American slanguage was Mary Landon Baker's first literary creation. "The Arcadians," subtitled "A Satire," is, although her first published novelette, her second literary creation. And I, for one, find it a work of lively art.

"The Arcadians" is a fluoroscope of Mayfair, with the readings by a specialist who sees with terrific accuracy and relays with smarting caricature. It is little more than a long short story, but there is, by implication, the indictment of the futility of the ultra-smart which many a heralded author has missed in 500 pages. Nowhere in modern English fiction have I come upon the silly, inane but ebullient conversation of the super-smart set down with more reality in its vapidity. People like that do, believe it or not, talk exactly like that, and the reason we have so little fictional record of such talk is because it is too futile for the avowedly serious novelist (even if he would waste his time getting to know it) and those who live thus and talk thus don't KNOW how they are living and talking.

Incidentally, Mary Landon Baker, born (I believe) and "reared up" in Chicago, writes (as many Americans talk when they go English) an English that is more definitly British than a native would boast.

"The Arcadians" is a fragment, a futility, a nothingness, but a supreme fragment, a worthwhile futility and a memorable nothingness. F. B.

FREE—the book that has been most liked by BOOK-OF-THE-MONTH CLUB members during the eight years of its existence...a trilogy that won its author the Nobel Prize.

Kristin Lavransdatter
by SIGRID UNDSET
The three famous novels, published originally in separate volumes for $5.00 each, in a beautiful one-volume edition; 1100 pages; thin but opaque paper so that it bulks no larger than an ordinary library book. Soft cloth binding, stamped in gold.

—if you join now . . . you do not have to pay any fixed sum per year as a member, nor do you have to buy a book every month . . .

THE book offered here is a good example of the valuable books distributed, free, among Book-of-the-Month Club members. We suggest that you send the coupon below for a booklet outlining the many things the Club is now able to do for book-readers. Are you aware, for instance, that as a member you are never obliged to take the particular book-of-the-month chosen by the judges? You may buy it or not, as you please, after reading the judges' pre-publication report about it. And what do you pay? No fixed sum—simply the regular retail price of such books as you decide to take. What then are the advantages of belonging?

They are many, and striking. First, book-dividends: during the past three years the Club has been able to distribute, free, among its members close to a million dollars' worth of books each year! Books given to members, mind you, not bought by them. Second, without a penny of expense, through the reports of the judges you are kept completely informed about all the important new books, so that you can choose among them with discrimination, instead of having to rely upon ballyhoo and hearsay.

There are several other advantages, not readily measurable in money, that cannot be outlined here for lack of space. Surely, within the next year, the distinguished judges of the Club will choose as the book-of-the-month or recommend as alternates, at least a few books that you will be very anxious to read and which you will buy anyway. Why not—by joining the Club—make sure you get these, instead of missing them, which so often happens; get the really substantial advantages the Club affords (such as the book-dividends mentioned, if nothing else), and at the same time get a copy of KRISTIN LAVRANSDATTER, free.

Katharine W. Street Will Become Bride

2 Weddings, 2 Debuts in Family in 2 Years.

BY JUDITH CASS.

It is not often that there are two weddings and two debuts within two years in the same family, but such is the case in the household of Mrs. Harry Lockman Street of Winnetka. Today Mrs. Street is announcing the engagement of her second daughter, Katharine Wakefield, to James Reid Shannon, son of Mrs. Edward Lincoln Shannon and the late Mr. Shannon of Denver, Colo.

In June the former Jeanné Street became Mrs. Thomas H. Knorr. Last winter Miss Marjorie Street made her debut, and this fall Miss Harriett Street, the youngest of the four daughters, will make her bow to society.

Young Mr. Shannon is arriving in Chicago today, en route from New York to his Denver home, to spend three days here with his fiancée and her family and to meet Miss Street's friends at a tea tomorrow afternoon at the Street home in Winnetka. Miss Street and her sister, Mrs. Thomas H. Knorr, sent out the invitations a few days ago, but no one suspected the occasion of the party.

Miss Street attended the North Shore Country Day school in Winnetka and was graduated from Mount Vernon seminary in 1930. She and Mrs. Knorr were presented to society the following autumn at a tea at home. It was while visiting Miss Nancy Lee in Denver that she met Mr. Shannon. Miss Lee was a roommate of Mrs. Knorr's at Mount Vernon, and a bridesmaid last June at the wedding of the former Jeanné Street to Mr. Knorr.

Mr. Shannon's father was a prominent lawyer in Denver, and his grandfather, Senator James Cooper Evans, was one of the political leaders in Colorado's fight for silver in 1896. He is a graduate of the University of Colorado where he was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity, and is engaged in business in Denver which will be Miss Street's future home.

Mary Joslyn Is Engaged.

Of further romantic interest this morning is the announcement Mr. and Mrs. Marcellus L. Joslyn of Hinsdale are making of the engagement of their daughter, Mary Cecelia, to Maurice Wesley Parker Jr. of Washington, D. C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice W. Parker of Boston.

After graduating from the Emma Willard school, Miss Joslyn attended the southern branch of the University of California. Mr. Parker is a graduate of Yale university. The wedding is to be an event of early October.

Still a third engagement is that of Miss Eugenia MacComas to J. Brooks Corwine of Chicago. The announcement was made yesterday by the bride-to-be's mother, Mrs. Will Hartwell Lyford, of East Chestnut street. Miss MacComas is a graduate of the Birmingham School for Girls and of Northwestern university.

Mr. Corwine is a graduate of Culver Stockton. Because of the recent death of Mr. Lyford, the wedding, which will take place the end of next month, will be a quiet one.

George E. Leonard to Take Iowa Bride.

A young Chicago lawyer, George Edward Leonard, is being married today in Iowa City, Ia. At 4:30 this afternoon he will take Miss Jane Elizabeth Dutcher as his bride in a garden ceremony at the home of Miss Dutcher's mother, Mrs. Charles M. Dutcher.

Mrs. Daniel C. Dutcher will attend the bride as matron of honor and Mrs. Wendell Dunkard and Miss Helen Davis, both of Iowa City, will serve her as bridesmaids. Gordon McLeish Leonard has gone from Chicago to serve his brother as best man. Ushering will be Robert S. Leonard of Kansas City, another brother of the bridegroom, and Daniel C. Dutcher, brother of the bride.

Mr. Leonard and his bride will live at 6852 Crandon avenue.

Recent changes in the debut plans of Miss Gwendolyn Bowen, daughter of the Joseph T. Bowens of Lake Forest, have advanced the date for her bow to society from Sept. 22 to Wednesday, Sept. 12. The party will be a supper dance.

The debutante's father is in the east now visiting his mother, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, at her Bar Harbor home. Mrs. Bowen and Gwendolyn did not accompany him, but Miss Bowen will see a good deal of her grandmother this winter, for she will stay with her in town during the debutante season.

Tennis Tourney Opens Today.

Tennis will have a place this weekend on the calendars of many of our sports minded folk, for there are championship games scheduled both south and north of the loop.

The eighth annual national professional tournament games begin 2:30 this afternoon at the South Shore Country club and continue through this coming week. All of the boxes that surround the courts have been taken by club members who will entertain large and gay parties and most of the bleacher seats will be occupied when Vincent Richards, four time winner of the title, goes into play as the defending champion. Ellsworth Vines, who last Saturday played before a fashionable gallery at the Knollwood club, will be the leading American star opposing Richard's attempt to clinch another championship.

The Stanley Wileys will have one of the large box parties this afternoon. Others who will be box hosts and hostesses are Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Shoemaker, Mr. and Mrs. Guy D. Randle, Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. McLain, Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Mudd, Mr. and and Mrs. Henry S. Embree, the Edward D. Adcocks, J. Courtney Fitzpatrick, and the Walter J. Buettners.

The players are to be guests of the club tonight at dinner and a racquet ball. Every night except Monday next

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

Two middle-aged couples arrived at the Detroit Symphony concert at A Century of Progress a few evenings ago, and they seemed very much impressed with the size of the gardens. One woman asked if Henry Ford really paid for all that, which was rather humorous, considering the cost of the entire Ford exhibit. Then, according to Mrs. John Bray of Highland Park, who tells the story, one of the men commented on the size of the orchestra.

"There must be sixty men in it," he enthused.

"Yes," agreed the other man. "I guess they're the fellows that work in his plant."

A FRIEND back from Big Wolf lake in the Adirondacks tells of the solitude into which Eugene O'Neill has withdrawn this summer. The O'Neills have rented one of the eight camps on the lake—the same one they rented last year. Last year a determined lady, bent on talking to Mr. O'Neill about her son's literary ability, had one of the boatmen row her past their place, and then stopped and went up to the house, employing a little ruse as to her necessity for stopping in. In spite of all this she was unable to see Mr. O'Neill, but chatted for a time with Mrs., who was busy reading, not her husband's books but Mr. Edgar Wallace's detective stories. This year nobody even tries to see him. The word has gone around that Mr. O'Neill isn't seeing anybody this summer.

A WOMAN from another state writes that every evening on the local radio station a young lady "gives thirty minutes of music by means of records and intermittently gives a sketch from 'Front Views and Profiles' . . . and tries to pretend that they are original."

"Why not come up some time and listen yourself," she concluded. "You would enjoy it I'm sure."

Our only reaction is that the young woman has it all over the writer of "Front Views and Profiles," who is prohibited by her contract with W-G-N from repeating her column stories and gags over the air.

THE Gossip Shop. Arthur Schnabel, said to be the greatest interpreter of Brahms and Beethoven in our time, has a book coming out in November, "Reflections of Music." . . . And balletomanes may like to know that another book on the ballet, of gossip and history, will be out in October — "Balletomania," by Arnold L. Haskell. . . . There is a new English book on the ballet out now, "Tonight the Ballet," by Adrian Stokes. . . . Esquire magazine had a month's scoop on the release of Terry Druggan from Atlanta prison, only they didn't realize it. Druggan wrote from prison requesting his magazine sent to his home instead of Atlanta a full month before the story of his release was published. . . . A nice illustration of appreciation are Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin's activities in directing the group of Negro dancers who will perform a mass interpretation of the "Castle Walk" on Aug. 25 as a feature of the big "O, Sing a New Song" spectacle at Soldiers' field. It is a return courtesy on the part of Mrs. McLaughlin because Noble Sissle, brought his orchestra to the Bal Tabarin to play for the Pooch ball last autumn, given as a benefit for Orphans of the Storm. . . . A second Pooch ball will be held Oct. 13 at the Hotel Sherman. . . . Now there's a Dillinger song, "The Death of John Dillinger," a mournful hill-billy type ditty.

A FELLOW who went to the Municipal airport Friday evening was pretty much upset by a sight that greeted his eyes. A long line of women were waiting outside a door marked, plainly enough, "GENTLEMEN." The matter was soon explained, however. Douglas Fairbanks emerged from the room, tanned, and smiling, cornflowers in his buttonhole, and the line of ladies immediately dissolved itself into a swarm of autograph hunters. He scrawled his autograph hastily, obliging as many as he could, then went out to get into the westbound plane.

Good Morning!

Also—HELLO! and glad to see you again!

KIND: Some might call it comedy.

STORY: Either terrible or so far over my head that I wasn't able to appreciate it. Couldn't make head nor tail of the plot till along toward the last.

DIRECTION: Involved and cumbersome.

ACTING: The players have such ridiculous rôles! Imagine, if you can, Leslie Howard spending most of his time ambling about in a Chic Sales makeup—because that's what happens. He's a detective who sets out to recover a fortune lost by himself and friends in a bogus bond deal. His methods of catching the "rat" who had done the fleecing and his romance with the latter's neglected wife furnish endless tiresome detail.

DIALOG: Wearisome to the nth degree.

PHOTOGRAPHY, SETS, ETC.: Unremarkable.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: None, I would say.

REMARKS: Poor Leslie Howard! Also—poor rest of the cast. Well—to epitaph—honor to all, for they did the best they could.

[Copyright; 1934; By the New York Times.]

Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Black of 6731 Bennett avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Betty, to Oscar Henry Geismer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Geismer of Birmingham, Ala., yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Black home. The announcement comes as a surprise to friends, for the announcement today was to have been of their engagement instead of the wedding.

MRS. GEISMER. [Raeburn Photo.]

The bridegroom's parents and the maid of honor, Miss Charlotte Reemer, and the best man, George Agee, motored here from Birmingham. Only members of the families witnessed the ceremony. The bride's parents gave a dinner for the wedding guests after the marriage, and Mr. Geismer and his bride left afterwards for a motor trip through the south. They will make their home in Brimingham. Mrs. Geismer is a graduate of the Starrett School for Girls, and Mr. Geismer is a graduate of Washington and Lee university.

Abbey Theater Group to Use Repertoire of Former U. S. Tour

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Aug. 17.—Despite representations by President Eamon de Valera, the Abbey Theater company intends to stage "Playboy of the Western World," by J. M. Synges, and Sean O'Casey's "Plough and the Stars" and "Juno and the Paycock" during the forthcoming tour of the United States.

This was asserted to THE TRIBUNE tonight by Albert Wickes, manager of the tour, who declared that no genuine or definite objections had been made against the plays when presented previously in the United States. He admitted, however, that one or two persons wrote to De Valera protesting and the president acted on these.

The company is making no change in the répertoire presented on the last tour. Wickes insisted that the government, which subsidizes the Abbey theater, is not responsible for the plays selected. The company is to appear in Chicago during the winter.

B. H. Laudermilk, Realty Dealer, Weds in Waukegan

Bert H. Laudermilk, widely known Chicago realtor and subdivider, with offices at 75 East Wacker drive, was married yesterday in Waukegan to Miss Dorothy Reid Raley of Chicago. The two obtained the license and drove to the court of Justice of the Peace Michael Haney, who performed the ceremony. They left without telling their plans. On the marriage license Laudermilk's age was given as 40 and his bride's as 31. Laudermilk was divorced in February of 1931 by his first wife, Mrs. Leota K. Laudermilk. They had been married in 1927.

Young Dancers Hold Rehersal of Fete Steps

Boy Scouts Practice Their Big Pageant.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Dancing and pageantry will form an important part of THE TRIBUNE'S Chicagoland Music Festival tonight, and these are matters that require liberal rehersal on the spot. Therefore Soldiers' field became a great practice arena yesterday morning from 7 o'clock until after 10.

From south side, north side, and west side swarms of baby ballerinas, accompanied by vigilant mothers and affectionate relatives, came to receive their final instructions and to go through the joyous evolutions in which they have been drilling, in small groups, for months. They came in their playtime dresses, their rompers, their studio bloomers, their bathing suits. They chirped and giggled and squealed in the frolicsome spirit of childhood. The work was for them an informal party in which they tasted the excitement of tonight's formal occasion.

Corps of Boy Scouts, quieter and more earnest than the infant Pavlowas, also came trooping into the field in the twilight carrying the paraphernalia required for their exhibitions of scoutcraft—poles, logs, pine branches, signal flags, pup tents, etc. The Scouts went up into the stands like a football game crowd to watch the dancing, for they were placed last on the rehersal schedule.

The kids were surprisingly responsive to the voice of command from the loud speaker. The sound of the announcer's voice, amplified to a giant's utterance, sent them scurrying from their seats to the places of rendezvous — Mrs. Ernie Schultz's south siders to one side, Miss Betty Jones' north siders to the other, and Miss Mayblossom Macdonald's west siders to the north end.

Then the band struck up the number for the entrance—"Rondo Capriccioso," by Mendelssohn—and the three ring ballet began. The children came running out upon the field single file to form great circles. Then they danced like happy amateurs, with the artless grace and freedom of childhood, to Tschaikowsky's "Valse des Fleurs." Although not in colorful costumes, as they will be tonight, it was a charming spectacle. There was something in it to warm the heart—a mood of playtime and innocence and young ambition.

They had to do it a second time, because the south siders wanted to be at the north end of the field, or vice versa, and the whole business of dispersal, reassembly, and repetition went off as smothly as any stage director would wish.

After the dance rehersal, and while the Boy Scouts were making preparations for their complicated drills, headquarters at the bandstand was a busy place. There were thousands of questions to be answered, lost articles to be found, lost toddlers to be restored to their parents or escorts. But the kids that had got themselves lost for a few minutes were apparently proud of the achievement. They sat on exhibition in musicians' chairs. Not one of them cried.

The Boy Scouts were 1,500 in number last night. But these were merely the shock troops. Tonight, under the direction of Alfred C. Nichols Jr. and his aids, J. J. Cervenka and Leon Stern, there will be about 4,000 in the show. And, although they have an amazing lot of lumber to handle, they will set it up into bridges, log cabins, towers, etc., and knock it down again in seven minutes, according to schedule. The lads have had long training at this sort of thing.

Fred Stone to Play Lead in Civil War Play by 2 Lewises

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Fred Stone, the comedian, announced today his return to the theater in a civil war play by Sinclair Lewis, the novelist, and Lloyd Lewis, dramatic critic. His youngest daughter, Carol, will play the leading feminine rôle, appearing for the first time with her father.

The play is "Jayhawker." Rehersals for the Broadway opening are scheduled to start on Sept. 15, after Stone returns from Europe.

Phony Waves Make Screen Actor Seasick

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Leon Errol became very seasick in a very funny way. It goes to prove the theory that seasickness comes from the eyes, really, rather than from the motion of the vessel. Errol was on dry land at Columbia studios on a small set representing the inside of a cabin. Through a porthole could be seen a rear projection shot of the stormy waves. Rear projection means that a film is being projected from behind the camera to a screen in front of the camera to produce authentic background. Well, the stormy waves were so wild that Errol was fascinated and started watching. Pretty soon he was seasick in no small way — and those rubber legs got him to the privacy of his boudoir just in time. It was a shot for "The Captain Hates the Sea."

If you think sultans only exist in the "Arabian Nights" you're wrong indeed. Hollywood studios have received letters from the sultan of Morocco asking for autographed photos of their stars for himself. Over at Columbia the girls are practically lying on the floor trying to get all of his name on the photos for him. It reads: "Sai Muley Hassan Ben el Mehdi, sultan of Morocco." And the same to you.

Helen Hayes got home from her day's work on "What Every Woman Knows" at M-G-M to find a huge trunk-like box awaiting her. Unwrapped, it disclosed another box with a huge bunch of gardenias on it. Opening this she found a box of orchids and a note from her husband, Charles MacArthur, which read: "Our anniversary is some time this week. I hope this is the day." Helen wired back "You're getting warm, keep guessing."

Grace Moore is having such a time with her ducks. It seems that last Easter Ruth Chatterton gave her a duck which grew into a lovely debutante duck, y-clept Mary, after a similar pet Miss Moore had at her Cannes villa. Then, people hearing of Mary, sent her two drakes, one named Mae West, and another, Zilch. Two husbands were one too many and Mae West was given away, thus allowing Mary and Zilch to settle down comfortably to family life.

Grace Moore and her husband, Valentin Parrera, actor, left for a third honeymoon some weeks ago, packing way back into the mountains. This must have given Mary and Zilch ideas, for they left for three or four days, destination unknown, and arrived home shortly after Grace's return, happily quacking about the old swimmin' pool of blue tile. Now they're gone again—and Grace is worried—so if you see Zilch or Mary——

Richard Bolesvaksky, directing Garbo in "The Painted Veil," has split the company into two companies. One is working at the studio, the other at Santa Barbara on polo shots. Today, working on the outside stage at the studio, half a mile from a phone, a messenger boy reached him to tell him he was wanted on the long distance phone. He ran all the way. It was the other unit asking "Do we wrap the horses' tails for the close-ups?"

Donald Crisp leaves for his annual trans-Atlantic vacation in two weeks. He will visit his birthplace, Perth, in Scotland. He will drive his car aboard a Danish liner, and when it docks he will drive from the port to his home. This is his annual vacation custom.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The fair vacationer approaches wind, rain and swimming unafraid if a tiny bottle of water proof mascara is tucked in her bag. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

It doesn't take more than a fondness for swimming to make a woman sit up and take notice when she hears about a waterproof mascara. There's always the possibility of rain, you know, or wind that makes the eyes water, and, of course, the feminine frailty of indulging in salty tears, each guaranteed to knock her beautiful eye makeup for a loop.

But all mascara marked waterproof isn't wonderful. We know because we've fussed plenty with them. Most of them are hard to apply and much too hard on the lashes themselves.

We've found one, though, that fills the bill perfectly. It's liquid, but not thick as stove blacking, and continued use of it won't make the lashes so brittle they snap like threads. And we hasten to assure you that it isn't a dye.

We can't be firm enough with our public about the necessity of using extreme care both in the selection and application of anything used near the eyes. It's a delicate business at best. And any foreign substance in the eye is going to feel like a hair shirt. That's why, though a good mascara like this one will do no actual harm if some does get in, it's better to give up coffee and cigarets so the hand that applies it will be steady and none will dribble in.

This one should be applied in a thin, not a thick coat, first pressing the tiny brush against the neck of the bottle so that all excess is removed. Then the lashes should be brushed immediately with a stiff, dry brush, to separate and curl them. Some women like to use two coats; if you do let the first dry thoroughly before applying the second.

The removal is simple. The eyes are closed and the lashes rolled gently between the fingers in a nice coat of rich cream or vaseline. We have a theory that any mascara, used over a long period of time, is rather drying, and always urge a coating of cream or eyelash grower to be left on overnight.

This comes in four colors, and don't be shocked at them. The green—very dark—is stunning on the woman with greenish eyes, and the blue makes azure eyes bluer. Besides these two there are the usual brown and black.

You can pay your money and take your choice in several shops around town. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Praises New Hosiery Shades for Black Shoes

Fashion Expert Discovers Trim Blouses.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

FOUND! . . . Two slick new hosiery shades for black shoes! First a grand, grayish shade without a bit of lavender tint to it called "silver mist." These look incredibly sheer on the ankles and are practically perfect, not a ring in sight. This color or tone can be worn with smart black costumes and with some of the good looking new wine red colors, as well as green and oxford gray.

For black only is another shade called "mascara"—an off-black shade; also a mere film of tone over the flesh. Dramatic with dull black crêpe, thin woolens, and all the newest suede-like black materials that will be used for dress parade clothes.

New blouses are in. The trim, snappy kind to be worn with a plain tailored skirt, and, presto, a fashionable street outfit. Some colored suede affairs will make you buy at once. They are made with standup military collars, side closings outlined with covered buttons, and some cleverly concealed pockets. You can have them in rust, scarlet, pine needle green, deep brown, and a pale gold.

Another style is made with huge gold metal clamps streaking down the center, with a roll over collar and hip pockets. This model comes in plain solid colors and in some grand plaids in printed velvets.

The first of the shining cocktail blouses are electrifying things made of glittering material that looks like silk jersey with metalic threads. A tiny button of rhinestones fastens the back closing. The sleeves are long and clinging and the neckline high and swathed about the front. These are the blouses that make one of the smartest of early cocktail costumes. Either a velvet or silk crêpe can be worn, in ankle length or floor length with a short train. The blouses are available in crimson, in navy, and black, with either silver or gold threads.

Her Husband's Fiancee

BY ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

SYNOPSIS.

Cecily Marshall returns after a year's absence to the home in Bellchester, England, where she had lived with her husband, David Marshall, the city's leading merchant prince. Cecily had been a shopgirl at Marshall's. Beautiful Audrey Lowe, who had wanted David herself, bribed an innkeeper to swear that Cecily had shared the same room with Audrey's cousin, Reggie Davies, a night they were marooned due to motor trouble. David won a divorce from Cecily and the custody of their small child, Rose Ann. The child grieves for her mother. Fearing for her health, Nanna, her nurse, secretly wires Cecily. When David, who is about to marry Audrey, discovers Cecily's presence he orders her and Nanna from the house. Rose Ann develops brain fever and David is forced to send for Cecily. Rose Ann recovers. Cecily rejects David's proposal that they remarry for Rose Ann's sake. She takes rooms in Bellchester, with Nanna, and determines to prove her innocence. She sees Rose Ann daily. David tries unsuccessfully to break his engagement to Audrey. Audrey is blackmailed by Mrs. Partridge, the wife of the deceased innkeeper. To get her to leave Bellchester, Audrey gives her a valuable brooch, which was a present from David. Audrey tells David she lost the brooch. He insists on advertising for it. Cecily appeals to Reggie Davies to help her clear their names. He refuses to become involved. As they are about to leave the café where they had met David walks in and Reggie makes a hasty exit. Audrey hears from Mrs. Partridge that the jewels of the brooch are being disposed of separately. As her father's wedding draws near Rose Ann manifests her hatred of Audrey.

INSTALMENT XXX.

CHILDISH SPITE.

"Could a pair of scissors go off in your hand without your noticing it, Nanna?" asked Rose Ann.

"Whatever are you talking about?"

"Guns go off in your hand if you play with them, Tommy Leach says. I thought maybe it was the same with scissors—if they're as sharp as yours are, Nanna."

Nanna left her there and ran to see what dreadful thing had happened. Mason was already on the scene and the other servants' heads bobbed up from all over the place.

Down in the lounge stood Miss Lowe and her mother, and it was Miss Lowe who had screamed.

She was holding up something, a mangled fur coat which had been slit to ribbons.

And luck had it that David should return at that moment.

Who had committed that outrage?

"I believe it was Rose Ann," said Audrey. "Do you remember, mother, how curiously she behaved when she came in when we were having tea?"

"She kept her hand behind her back," said Mrs. Lowe. "She was probably hiding a pair of scissors. And she really didn't come into the room at all."

"Where is Rose Ann?" said David.

"O, you naughty, wicked girl. You'll get what-for for this, you will. Your pa's coming after you. O, whatever made you do such a thing!"

"I want my mummy," wailed Rose Ann.

"I think, perhaps, the best thing I can do is to get you to her as fast as I can," Nanna muttered to herself.

She dashed to the wardrobe to find the child's coat and hat, but before she could get them on David came into the room. Nanna knew that look of his—hard and stony with his eyes blazing, "fair throwing out sparks."

Over his arm was the ruined fur coat.

"Did you do this?" he said to Rose Ann.

The child was trembling from head to foot and Nanna's heart misgave her.

"Nanna's scissors did it," Rose Ann replied.

"Who held the scissors?"

"I did—they went off in my hand."

"Well, something's going to go off in my hand," said David. "You're going to have a whipping for this."

Thus far Rose Ann had never had a whipping in her life, but she knew what it was.

"I'll be back presently," David flung over his shoulder as he went down to try to pacify Audrey.

Nanna quickly and with an overwhelming consciousness of her own guilt for doing such a thing was now getting Rose Ann into her coat and none too gently at that.

"You hurt my arm, Nanna!"

"A whipping would hurt you a sight worse. Never mind your hat. Come along."

By the time David had made his miserable apologies to Audrey and her mother and announced that he intended to inflict suitable punishment upon the culprit, Rose Ann and Nanna were well away, streaking it in the direction of Standish crescent.

"All the same, you deserve a whipping—you deserve worse than that, even," said Nanna.

"What could be worse?" Rose Ann wanted to know, breathless from trying to keep up with her.

"I'll leave that to your ma," Nanna said darkly.

Was it to be a case of out of the frying pan into the fire?

"Pooh, mummy won't do anything," said Rose Ann trying to bolster up her own courage.

"You thought your pa wouldn't—you thought you could be as naughty as you pleased and he wouldn't do a thing. But you see, miss, there are limits."

They weren't walking quite so fast now. With Maple Grange well behind them Nanna began to remember that she had a bad heart. All this puffing and blowing wasn't going to do it any good.

"You only call me 'miss' when you're angry with me," Rose Ann said meditatively.

"I'm angry with you now. Like as not I'll never get over it."

Rose Ann looked as though she did not believe this.

"And moreover—" said Nanna, raising her voice, which was one way of making an impression—"like as not there won't be any Christmas tree for you this year."

But Rose Ann had an answer for that one.

"There'll be a tree for Tommy, anyway. It's come already. They've hided it up in the shed in Mrs. Leach's garden. Tommy's a good little boy. They won't take his tree away from him just to spite me. That wouldn't be fair."

"There now! If you aren't the sly and cunning one. I declare if I was your ma I wouldn't know what to do with you."

"Do we have to tell her?" Rose Ann asked hopefully.

"Indeed we do, miss."

"I don't think it's very nice to tell tales, Nanna."

"Don't you, indeed! The next thing you'll be saying it is nice to slice up a lady's coat."

An expression of fury crossed Rose Ann's face. "I'd do it again if I got the chance. And she isn't a lady. She's a strumpet!"

"A what? Wherever on earth——!"

"That's what Ellen called her."

"That Ellen! Don't you ever let me hear you use a word like that again. It ain't fitten. . . . Thank the Lord here we are. Now I can wash my hands of you."

Nanna, however, had not got rid of Rose Ann yet, for Cecily was not at home.

"Why can't I play with Tommy?" Rose Ann wanted to know.

"You ask that, miss? You'll sit there until your ma comes home and decides what she's going to do with you."

"Nanna, my foot's going to sleep!"

But Nanna was a grim Gorgon. She hoped and believed she had saved her nursling a whipping, but it was all too plain that Rose Ann was impenitent.

Whatever had the child done such a thing for? Nanna felt that she, herself, could never again touch that particular pair of scissors, and it was her favorite.

All unconscious of what lay in wait for her when she returned to Standish crescent, Cecily was doing some last minute shopping. It was, however, more of an excuse to take her out of the house.

week there is to be a buffet dinner and dancing at the club.

Women to Play on North Shore.

If Miss Helen Fulton, a debutante of the last season and the daughter of the Frank D. Fultons of Winnetka, returns home from Forest Hills, Long Island, by 2:30 tomorrow afternoon she will be defending Indian Hill in the women's division of the North Shore Tennis league team championships to be played at the Skokie club. Miss Fulton has been playing in the women's national tennis tournament at Forest Hills and her success there will determine whether or not she will come back to play here tomorrow.

The game for the women's title is between Indian Hill and Skokie so if Miss Fulton is not here, Indian Hill may choose its representative from among Miss Elizabeth Sutherland, Miss Evelyn Bouscaren, Miss Virginia Winston, Miss Adelaide Ball, Miss Jane Litell, and Miss Jean Armstrong, each of whom is a recognized player.

Representing Skokie will be Miss Lucy Jane Hedberg, a well known star whose stinging forehand drive is looked upon as dangerous competition even for Miss Fulton. Under the leadership of Miss Hedberg, who has not lost a north shore match in three years, the Skokie team has enjoyed its best season in years. Other members of this team are Miss Marjorie Miller, Miss Betty Sheldon, and Miss Catherine Hepburn.

The second division of the North Shore league championships tomorrow afternoon will determine the men's championship for which the Evanston Country club and the Exmoor club are competing. Playing for Exmoor will be Fletcher Seymour, James Carry, Edward Johnson Jr., and Ross Beatty Jr. Evanston will be represented by José Alonso, former Spanish Davis cup team captain; Charles Guthrie, Gair Tourtellot, and Wesley Allen.

The preliminaries in the annual tennis tourney at the Evanston Country club are to be played this afternoon on the club courts.

Spanish Party at Knollwood.

Mrs. John F. L. Curtis, the Alfred Castles, Dr. C. R. G. Forrester, Edward F. Wilson, Miss Margaret Bartholomay, the H. Foster Straws, and the J. Donald Scotts are a few of those who will be entertaining this evening at the Spanish night party at the Knollwood club.

The party is to begin with a Spanish floor show and dancing at 9 o'clock at the club pool. At midnight the guests will move up to the clubhouse where supper will be served and dancing will continue on the out of door pavilion.

Every one along the north shore who has house guests this week-end and is a member of Glenview will be providing entertainment today at the club. Beginning early this morning and continuing through late evening there is to be a swimming meet for old and young in the handsome new club pool.

A 25 yard free style race for boys and girls under 7 is the first event at 10:30 and a 25 yard egg transport race for men, the last event tonight. At noon and again at dinner time the club dining room will be filled with parties of spectators as well as contestants.

Anne Palmer Returns Home.

Bringing two house guests with her, Miss Anne Palmer, the Dudley Palmers' subdeb daughter, has returned by motor from a month as the guest of the Oliver Schoonmakers in Ashburnham, Mass. The daughter and son of the Schoonmaker family returned with her as guests. They are Miss Jane Schoonmaker, a school friend of Miss Palmer's, and her brother David.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer are giving a dinner this evening for their daughter's house guests, after which the young crowd will go on to the Indian Hill club for dancing. Tomorrow evening four of Anne's post-deb friends will be hostesses at a party at the Winnetka Beach club. Miss Patty Calkins, Miss Jean Lamson, Miss Eleanor Janney, and Miss Nancy Harris are hoping that the weather will permit their guests a good swim and a beach picnic.

Mrs. Harvey S. Firestone and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Firestone Jr., are arriving in Chicago today to spend the day at the Fair. They are en route to Los Angeles, where they will attend the wedding of Mrs. Firestone's son, Raymond Firestone, to Miss Laurie Lisk of Los Angeles next Saturday. While in Chicago Mrs. Firestone's headquarters will be her apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive. During the afternoon today she will hold a reception in the lounge of the Firestone exhibit at A Century of Progress.

Tomorrow evening Mrs. John R. Thompson Jr., with two of her daughters, is leaving for a holiday in the beautiful Muskoka lakes region of Ontario. The Thompsons will stay at the Royal Muskoka hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph G. Owsley are leaving today for a vacation in Canada. They are motoring north and plan to spend two weeks fishing and camping.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt this afternoon entertained the visiting Royal Prince Kaya of Japan and Princess Kaya at tea in the White House. Others in the party were the members of the prince's suite, the charge d'affaires of Japan and Mme. Fujii, and several officials of the state department.

Prince Kaya was entertained at luncheon today by the acting secretary of state, William Phillips, at the Carlton hotel. The princess was the luncheon guest of Mme. Fujii at the embassy.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Meet the fall season in this delightfully wearable dress of rayon novelty that suggests wool. If you are taking a late vacation you couldn't have anything more satisfactory in which to travel. You will look smart and be able to keep comfortably cool on these warm September and October days. Black satin crêpe, with white for contrast, is another suggestion.

The pattern, No. 3189, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Give them an evening. Give them a week-end, if they want to go fishing, no women wanted.

They get exceedingly fed up on the Constant Wife, no matter how good looking, faithful, and true she may be. Or, if you don't like the idea of anybody getting fed up on your company, let's put it another way. Give them a treat to come back home to. That's what you are, you know, after an evening with the boys.

"My wife wants my presence every minute. I have no time to myself. If I go for a walk she wants to come along, or to a movie, to see a friend, go to the club. Wherever I want to go she must tag along. An old friend may want to have a heart-to-heart talk about old times with me. She can't seem to understand that with her around he can't act as jolly as he might be, nor speak about things he may not care to have her know. Gee, I loved the woman when I married her, but now I don't know how I feel. She seems like a bore, having her around every minute with her questions and the same old topics of conversation nights, Sundays, and holidays. If she'd only spare me one evening a week I'd be grateful. I don't drink. I don't chase women. I simply want to get away once in a while. We're both practically friendless now. She's chased off all my old pals that used to come to the house with her constant butting in and spoken suspicions about what we were up to before we fellows married. Talk about the ball and chain. A guy wearing one of those, where they're worn, at least could bat his head against the prison wall. I'm not left alone long enough to do that."

That's the way it seems to the captive male when you stick like the proverbial postage stamp. You wives have your chance during the day to chat with your bridge cronies or old pals. Give the boys a break before they make one. If you have the kind of man that likes men's company give him a lot of it, unsupervised. It's the only way you'll hold him.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. John Edwin Rhodes, formerly of Chicago, announce the marriage of their daughter Louise to Donald Moss McGervey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. McGervey of Kansas City, Mo., on Tuesday at their summer residence on North Manitou Island, Mich. The Rev. Demas Cochlin of the First Congregational church of Traverse City, Mich., read the ceremony at noon, and a wedding breakfast for the immediate families followed at the summer home of Miss Katherine Shepard of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. McGervey will live in Kansas City.

BY MARY MEADE.

When the cook and the lady of the house come to words over bananas it's time for a cooking editor to step in and arbitrate. The trouble is this: Miss H. A. doesn't like her bananas black skinned and soft. Yet every time her cook refrigerates them that's the way they become. Which is wrong—the cook, the bananas, the refrigerator, or the lady of the house?

Obviously the cook and the refrigerator. It's true that practically every other soft fruit holds its youth and good looks longer if chilled. Bananas are the exception. Just why this is so is a matter of physics and chemistry, but the facts are that when bananas are refrigerated they do not ripen properly, they do not develop the fullness of flavor they deserve, and very soon the cold brings ugly discoloration to their skins.

The limelight seems to be falling on refrigerators these days. Next question on the docket arrives from Mrs. S. A. W.: "Just how long is it safe to keep cooked vegetables in a modern mechanical refrigerator? How long may one keep uncooked carrots, cucumbers, and beans in a refrigerator pan? Is there a loss of nutritive value after the first three days?"

The first and second question call for that truthful but unsatisfactory remark—it all depends. Pickled beets and tomatoes, with their own acids, will keep longer than nonacid foods. In general, however, cooked vegetables should be discarded if they have stood for more than forty-eight hours, even in a refrigerator. Even though they may not be dangerous to eat after this point, the flavor will be flat and stale. Within this two days of grace one may safely depend on sight, taste, and odor. Certain conditions of the refrigerator, the degree of cooking, and the type of food will cause the answer to vary.

It is the same, to a degree, with uncooked vegetables. These are more easily judged, however. As long as green beans, carrots, and cucumbers remain crisp and fresh in appearance and texture they are safe and good to eat. The beans (peas and corn likewise) will have lost considerable of their nutritive and health giving properties if kept for more than a day. The flavor also will be somewhat saddened.

And from another homemaker: "When a recipe calls for three eggs and one wishes to make only half the recipe, how does one meet the situation?"

The business of splitting an egg does cause trouble at times. In a great many recipes—even in muffins and some cakes—it is possible to use two small eggs instead of the 1½ eggs which one's mathematics would indicate to be the answer. However, if the eggs are to be beaten together, simply break one into a cup, whip well with a fork, and pour out half the egg mixture. If the whites and yolks must be used separately, one must separate the two, beat each very slightly, and divide as accurately as is possible.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

THE PLAY OF YESTERDAY'S GRAND SLAM HAND.

The problem obviously is for South to get rid of his two losing hearts and of one losing diamond. Two of these losers can be discarded on the ace and king of spades, but how to get rid of the third one? The diamond finesse can be attempted; but there is no indication as to the location of that queen, and this play would involve an absolute gamble on that card. Further, with the powerful dummy exposed, there is little chance of a pseudo squeeze. West must hold Q J x of spades and also the queen of diamonds for the squeeze to be actual.

Selecting the Most Probable Line of Play.

I think the right analysis is as follows: All the suits except diamonds are very unevenly held. It is more likely that the six diamonds held by the opponents are divided three-three, with the added chance that if they are four-two the queen is part of the doubleton holding than that there is actual squeeze on West; and this is a distinctly better probability than that the diamond finesse will win. At any rate, it is better technique in my opinion to play for a three-three split in diamonds than to risk the finesse. Declarer should draw trumps at trick two; this is effected in two rounds. Leaving a high trump in dummy he should lead a diamond, win it in dummy and then take in the two spades, discarding from his hand a heart and a diamond. Now the other high diamond is led and then a low diamond. This fetches the queen out of East's hand—the finesse would have lost, but this play wins. Declarer trumps. He now gets to dummy with a third trump lead and discards the other heart on the jack of diamonds. Win or lose, this is the right technique, as you are beaten only if the queen is held together with three small ones. If the holding is Q x x this play wins whichever opponent holds the queen.

The Treachery of Cards.

NORTH.
♠—4
♥—Q 10 x x x
♦—x x x

WEST.	EAST.
♠—A 9 x x	♠—x x x
♥—K J x x	♥—x x
♦—K Q J 9 x	♦—10
♣—None	♣—A J x x x x x

SOUTH.
♠—K Q J 10 x
♥—A x
♦—A x x x
♣—K x

South dealt and naturally bid a spade. Pass by West, one no trump or, preferably, two hearts by North, pass by East, two spades by South, which closes the bidding. Even in a rubber game South should rebid his spades, and in match point play the honors made this rebid obligatory. Nobody can blame this bidding, yet South went down three tricks and could not possibly do better in spite of his fine hand. I think every system would arrive at a contract of at least two spades, and Sims players on this hand suffered with the others. West opens with the king of diamonds, declarer wins and leads a trump honor. West goes in with his ace and plays two diamonds. East plays high-low in hearts, so West gives him the ruff. Laying down the ace of clubs East sees he can put West in again with a club ruff, and thereby he makes his third trump by ruffing another heart. South still has to lose another diamond.

An Undeserved Catastrophe.

This is one of the most unfortunate hands I have ever seen; I suppose they are sent along from time to time to humble us and remind us that the cards cannot be conquered and that they conspire at times to withhold their message and trap us even when we have shown them every respect in our bidding. One no trump can be made, but who would refrain from rebidding the spades unless he knew the exact contents of each hand?

Sex Education for High School Seniors Urged

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Success in marriage and in running a household are always topics of general interest. Perhaps excerpts from some of the speeches given at a recent conference on marriage and the home in New York may be of interest to our readers.

The conference on education for marriage and family social relations was sponsored by Teachers' college [New York], the American Social Hygiene association, and the American Home Economics association.

Dr. Maurice A. Bigelow, director of the school of practical arts of Teachers' college, in one of the speeches suggested that courses on marriage and sex life be introduced into every senior high school in the country. He said: "We have records of thousands of cases in which scientific information has cleared up family relations, actually stopping divorce cases."

Paul Popenoe, director of the Institute of Family Relations, Los Angeles, talking to some 1,000 delegates at a general session of the American Home Economics convention in New York, said that happiness in marriage was largely a matter of masculine domination! The husband should head the home, he is quoted as stating.

But then, curiously enough, he gives statistics that do not prove his point—statistics that will gladden the heart of both the modern wife and modern husband. In 3,000 marriage histories he found that:

Where the man ruled, 61 per cent were happy unions.

Where the woman ruled, 47 per cent were happy unions.

Where the basis was 50-50, 87 per cent were happy unions.

Our sex education booklet contains descriptions of excellent booklets suitable for those up to 19 or 20 years of age. It will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

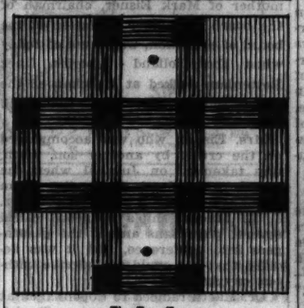
Favorite Quilt Is Ideal Pattern for the Beginner



Tic Tac Toe.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Dating from the opening years of the 19th century, "Tic Tac Toe" has been a favorite block. A variation of the nine patch, it shows a slight resemblance to "Kitty Corner" and one of the several "Puss-in-the-Corner" blocks. It is an ideal block for the beginning quilt maker and fun for the experienced quilter because of the rapidity with which the pieces may be set together.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

Clean Up! Even If It's Only for Quiet Evening at Home

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Some of these evenings we poor slaves arrive home so tuckered out that bed is the only thing that holds allure. And it is not too much unless one's room happens to be on the cool breeze side of the house. The thought of having to dress to go out is just too much. If we succumb to the home staying influence, it may be just too bad for us. We miss meeting "some of the best people," as the saying goes. Anyway, the vegetating habit is not good for the preservation of youth and looks. You can overdo the home-hugging habit just as you can overdo the night club life. Getting out and around, no matter what the temperature, is what keeps a gal on her toes. Not every night naturally, but often enough to keep up interest in people and things.

I have found time and again that this temptation to flunk on the evening program is destroyed with the simple business of cleaning up for the home dinner. There's something about a good tub overhauling and facial that gives you revived hope. Shedding the workaday clothes, even if you are staying home for the evening, is a revival measure, as you very well know. Don't say: "O, I can't be bothered. It's too hot!" It's not nearly so hot when you get yourself all freshened up in a tub frock or a nice negligee or what-have-you for wearing around home evenings.

After all, the evenings have to be lived through and we might as well make the best of them. There's a lot of gold in them thar hot nights if you can get yourself in the proper frame of mind by getting yourself in the proper frame of body.

If the hair is all stringy, give yourself a wave set, or comb the hair down as neatly as you can with water and pins to hold it. This, after your face freshening treatment before or after your bath. That's about all you need, except a change of shoes, stockings, and undies to affect the morale.

The idea we're trying to pound in is that of not succumbing to any and every little excuse that comes along. It's an easy habit to get into, but a bad one. As social things are conducted these days, it is the woman who is ready for any and every emergency who has the good time, not the one who responds only to formal notice. What has this to do with beauty? A powerful lot if you ask us. An evening spent pleasurably brings you bobbing up gayly in the a. m. with that look of interest that is often as good as a face lift.

SEES TOO MUCH GOVERNMENT AS PERIL TO WORLD

Dr. Compton Warns 'Don't Smother Science.'

Science, which lifted the civilization of the western world out of the darkness of medieval superstition, has been nourished throughout its growth by freedom of individual initiative, Dr. Arthur H. Compton, world famous physicist of the University of Chicago, declared last evening in a radio address.

Dr. Compton added the warning that the progress of science, and through it, the progress of civilization itself, would be stifled by governmental regimentation. Regimentation, he pointed out, may operate in either of two ways.

It may operate by the regimentation of the scientist himself, which in Germany has driven hundreds of leaders of science into exile. But it may operate just as well if regimentation of industry destroys the profits of individual initiative, for from those profits, he pointed out, have come the bulk of the funds to finance American educational institutions and scientific foundations.

Cites Farmers' Advance.

"It is of especial interest to note that the nations which are the leaders of the scientific world are those in which in all forms of enterprise—such as agriculture, business and politics—individual initiative is at a premium," said Dr. Compton.

"The American farmers who have the imagination and self-reliance to carve an empire out of a wilderness have also the imagination to develop the tools necessary to do the job, and the world is enriched by new agricultural implements which make of farming an industry instead of plodding drudgery.

"The most humble employé knows that in the long run ability and good work are rewarded with advancement, and that the path to the top is open for the man who can make the grade. Every citizen is taught that he shares the responsibility of his community's political welfare, and knows that if he has the necessary qualifications of leadership he may take his place in the councils of the government.

The Ground Work of Science.

"But these qualities of imagination, clear thinking and initiative are precisely those which are required to make notable advances in sicence. Truly it is not chance that a nation in which initiative and self-reliance are held as high virtues should become the leader of the world of science.

"Our nation's scientific leadership results, however, not only from its breeding of scientists with imagination and enterprise. By far the larger part of the fundamental scientific work now being done in this country is financed directly or indirectly by men whose own imagination and enterprise have brought them wealth, and who have seen in science the work of kindred spirits aimed toward the enrichment of life.

"Except for practical questions such as those which can be answered by agricultural experiment stations, the bureau of standards and the coast and geodetic survey, our national and state governments have not considered scientific investigation part of their function, nor with minor exceptions, has any other government.

The Debt of Industry.

"If large financial rewards of business enterprise are made impossible though legislation or otherwise, it will follow as the night the day that scientific advances will be greatly curtailed through lack of financial support.

"It is true that industry owes a great debt to science. It is by use of the facts uncovered by science that industry has advanced beyond the primitive techniques of the middle ages.

"It is, however, equally true that science has from the beginning been a product of individual initiative, and the greater part of our scientific work during the last generation has been made possible because in America individual enterprise has been encouraged by large rewards."

ANGRY SUITOR HAS AUTO STOLEN, LANDS IN JAIL

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.
Automobiles stolen, 22; recovered, 25; stripped, 2 [from police records for 24 hours ending at midnight Thursday].

One man accused of stealing an automobile for spite, and a companion, accused of seeking $50 "ransom" for its return, were held to the grand jury by Judge Howard Hayes in the automobile court yesterday, on charges of larceny of an automobile.

Harry Robison, of 6237 Blackstone avenue, is charged with having stolen the car from Mrs. Mabel Tines, 1527 East 63d street, because he was angry when she ceased keeping company with him.

Leo May, 27 years old, called Mrs. Tines on the telephone, according to her story, and said he could lead her to the car if she would pay him $50. After making arrangements to meet May, Mrs. Tines took police along with her, and they arrested him.

He confessed, police said, and implicated Robison.

Two men and a youth were held by Hyde Park police in connection with the theft of the automobile of Frank Vilim, 2137 South Lawndale avenue. Two of them, Nathan Omansky, 1142 South Mozart street, and David Sinnenberg, 17 years old, of 3407 West 13th place, were captured in the machine, and Maurice Allen, 1251 South Spaulding avenue, was seized several blocks away, when he tried to flee. Police said they found two revolvers in the stolen machine.

Ex-Vice President of Chase National Bank Kills Self

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Vernon Pell Baker, who resigned as a second vice president of the Chase National bank, in charge of its Park avenue branch, in April, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself in the mouth at the Hotel Biltmore.

PLANE SPEEDS OXYGEN TO LINER; SAVES WOMAN, 76

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—How a Danish naval plane saved the life of 76 year old Mrs. Sophia Eisner, mother of Mark Eisner, chairman of the board for higher education of the board of education, was revealed today when the Holland - America liner Rotterdam docked at Hoboken at the end of a 44 day cruise to the North Cape and Russia.

Mrs. Eisner, who was accompanied on the cruise by another son, Leon, was taken ill on July 31 when the vessel was about 200 miles from Copenhagen. When her fever rose, Dr. J. L. Maeth, ship's surgeon, called several physicians among the passengers into conference, and it was decided that she could not survive without oxygen.

Dr. Maeth radioed to Copenhagen at noon. A few hours later a Danish naval plane settled into the Rotterdam's lee and a naval surgeon came aboard with the oxygen. Mrs. Eisner was so improved by the time the ship reached Copenhagen fourteen hours later that she decided to remain aboard. Today she was declared convalescent but was taken to her home in an ambulance.

Accused of Slaying Which Followed Row in Saloon

John Madden, 26 years old, 6421 Evans avenue, who has served time in the Pontiac reformatory for burglary, was held by the South Chicago police last night for the slaying of Thomas Saulters, 26 years old, 7953 Muskegon avenue. Saulters died in the South Shore hospital of gunshot wounds received early in the day in a quarrel at 79th street and Exchange avenue. The dispute began in a saloon at 2907 East 79th street, police said.

2 CARS IN 3 FAIL IN SAFETY LANE ON BRAKES TEST

Faulty brakes continued yesterday to be the chief reason why automobiles put through THE TRIBUNE'S free mechanical inspection lane at 401 East Ontario street failed to get okay stickers for the windshields. A total of 67.8 per cent of the cars tested proved to have unsatisfactory braking power.

THE TRIBUNE has inaugurated the safety lane to combat the growing automobile accident rate. Trafic experts agree that faulty brakes are one of the chief reasons for automobile mishaps.

A total og 383 cars rolled over the lane yesterday. Of these eighty-nine, or only 23 per cent, were found in perfect condition. The remaining 228 machines were rejected. Thirty-six cars, whose owners had the defects remedied, were approved, but thirty were rechecked and rejected. Thus far 946 automobiles have been inspected; 208, or 25.7 per cent, have been approved; 600, or 74.3 per cent rejected; 68 rechecked and okayed, and 70 rechecked and rejected.

The service is available from 2 p. m. to 7 p. m. today. It will not be opated tomorrow, Sunday.

Pension Fund to Purchase $200,000 School Warants

James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, announced at a meeting of the school trustees yesterday that the municipal employés pension fund trustees had agreed to purchase $200,000 worth of 1934 school board tax anticipation warants. The money will be used to finance the July pay roll for 1,000 civil service workers in the schools.

2 CHICAGOANS STUDY DETROIT TRAFIC PLANS

Segregation by Speeds Is Tried Out.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Leslie Sorenson, trafic engineer for the city of Chicago, and Otto Jelinek, who holds a similar job for Chicago's south parks, today inspected and approved a system of segregating trafic of various speeds into separate lanes as operated by the Michigan highway department for two miles in Woodward avenue here.

The study was made with the object of applying such engineering principles to certain Chicago thoroughfares. Lincoln park's outer drive, from Grace street to Foster avenue, has been suggested as an ideal section for experimentation in the Chicago area.

Drive Over Test Route.

The engineers drove over the Detroit example with Murray D. Van Wagoner, Michigan state highway commissioner. Woodward avenue over this two mile stretch, from the six mile road to the eight mile road, has four lanes of pavement for motorists headed northwest. Two of these lanes are marked for 45 mile an hour driving and the two lanes next to the right curb are marked for a 20 mile an hour speed.

"Before this system was inaugurated last April," said Mr. Van Wagoner, "the slow and the fast trafic were mixed, the faster drivers zigzagging to cut around the slower."

"That's the trouble we have on Chicago's wide streets," Mr. Sorenson commented.

Ride in 45 Mile Lane.

The inspection party was riding in a 45 mile an hour lane. There was no overtaking or passing. Automobiles were moving at a fairly uniform speed. Heavy trucks and shoppers at nearby neighborhood stores stayed in the 20 mile an hour lanes. The stops for intersections were minimized by trafic actuated lights that did not flash a red on the thoroughfare unless there was really a vehicle wanting to cross on one of the less traveled cross streets.

"It's slick," Mr. Jelinek declared. "We have boulevards where the principle might well be applied, such as our outer drives. We have tried without much success to keep slow trafic on the right so that faster drivers can pass on the left but there's a wide divergence of opinion among the individual motorists as to what constitutes slow and what constitutes fast driving."

"That's why it's necessary to tell the folks where they should drive if they want to travel at a certain pace," Mr. Sorenson added. "The most advantageous arrangement, both from a safety and a utility standpoint, is to designate a certain speed as the minimum as well as the maximum for a certain lane."

On the one way drive for trafic bound southeast in Woodward avenue there is no twenty mile an hour lane because there are no merchants on this side of the street attracting local trafic.

The eight lanes of pavement on this superhighway are divided by a wide esplanade.

Officials of Detroit and of the state are now involved in a controversy over whether this 45 mile an hour limit is too fast for the express lanes. The city evidently resents the state exercising authority granted by the 1933 legislature to regulate trafic in municipalities outside of the business areas. Local reporters sought to involve the Chicago engineers in this controversy, but the visitors lacked factual data upon which to base an opinion.

ACTOR ESCAPES DEATH IN COAST MYSTERY ATTACK

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Jack La Rue, underworld charactar of motion pictures, today reported to police that men he believed to be gangsters smashed a window in his home early this morning in what he called an attempt on his life.

The actor, who resides with his mother and three sisters, said he awoke when a "two-by-four" four feet long shattered the glass in a large window three feet from his bed. The men fled.

LEARN NAME OF HERO WHO SAVED MOTORIST IN FIERY AUTO WRECK

It became known only yesterday that the hero who dragged Thomas C. Hansen, 5808 Lake street, from his burning automobile after a crash at Higgins and Mannheim roads on Wednesday is Howard Olson, 26 years old, 2256 North Sawyer avenue.

HOWARD OLSON.

Hansen, a technical engineer, was knocked unconscious when his car collided with another driven by Clarence C. Clarke, 925 Central ave-Wilmette. When the car burst into flames a crowd collected, but no one cared to risk death by getting close, fearing the gasoline tank would explode.

The flames had gained considerable headway when Olson, riding with his fiancée, Miss Dorothy Wyland, 2300 North Sawyer avenue, arrived. Olson hastened over, took out the injured man, and after giving him first aid sent him on to a hospital. His name was not learned until Mrs. Martha Kane of Elgin, who witnessed the rescue, made it public. Hansen has fully recovered from his injuries.

Black Spider's Bite Fatal to Young Kansas Woman

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Pearl Foster, 25, of Olathe, Kas., died at a hospital last night as the result of what was believed to be a bite of a black widow spider.

PEDESTRIAN, 82, STRUCK BY AUTO, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Patrick Burns, 82 years old, 1005 West Madison street, died in the county hospital yesterday of injuries incurred Aug. 13 when he was struck by an automobile at Madison street and Union avenue. Charles P. Smidl, 534 Bonnie Brae street, River Forest, the driver, was not held.

Thomas Fryle, 22, 1633 West Superior street, was held by West North avenue police yesterday as the hit and run driver who last Tuesday seriously injured Joseph Ptak, 10 years old, 834 North Mozart street. The boy is in a critical condition in the Lutheran Memorial hospital.

The death of Burns yesterday raised the Cook county automobile death toll to 754 since the first of the year.

FOUR ELECTION OFFICIALS OF 1930 GET JAIL

Four former election officials for the 19th precinct of the 27th ward in the November, 1930, election, previously found guilty of making a fraudulent canvass of the votes, were sentenced to jail yesterday by Judge Charles T. Allen in the County court.

Ninety day sentences in the county jail were imposed against Louis Carbone, 1116 Tilden street, Democratic judge; John Ledra, 1157 Adams street, Democratic clerk, and Henry Lynch, 220 Aberdeen street, Democratic judge. Albert Kaempf, 1113 South Racine avenue, got thirty days.

PEGGY FEARS TO SEEK DIVORCE; SAYS SHE HAS FOUND A NEW 'HEART'

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Peggy Fears, one of the few woman stage producers in America, said today she intended to seek a divorce from A. C. Blumenthal, wealthy New York real estate man and theatrical impresario.

The former Ziegfeld Follies star said there was a new romance in prospect for her.

"Just because I have been disappointed in one marriage is no reason why I should give up hope," she said. "I expect to marry again as soon as legal entanglements are straightened out."

YOUNG WOMAN LOSES MEMORY; ASKS POLICE AID

Dazed, and apparently suffering from amnesia, a brown-haired woman about 21 years old wandered into the Ravenswood hospital last night, with an incoherent plea for aid.

She had suffered no injuries, apparently, but said she could not remember her last name, where she lived, or how she had made her way to the hospital. Her first name, she said, was Cecelia.

She was taken to the North Damen avenue police station in the hope that the police might find some clue to her identity. She wore a wedding ring, and said she remembered she was married, but did not recall her husband's name. The young woman is 5 feet 3 inches tall, weighs 114 pounds, has brown eyes, brown hair, and freckles. She wore a white sailor dress, white shoes, but no stockings.

CRAWFORD AND HECKER REACH ALL-STAR CAMP

Coaches Seek Good Blocking Backs.

Lipp to Officiate

J. LIPP, for years one of the leading head linesmen in Big Ten football games, will serve in that capacity when the Bears meet the college all-stars at Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 31. The other officials will be Jim Masker of Northwestern, referee; John Schommer of Chicago, umpire, and Wilfrid Smith of DePauw, field judge.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Fred Hecker, Purdue's famous back field star for the last three seasons, and Fred Crawford of Duke university, one of the best tackles ever developed in the south, joined the All-American football squad yesterday at Northwestern university, where the greatest players of the 1933 season are preparing for their game Aug. 31 at Soldiers' field against the Chicago Bears. With the arrival late yesterday afternoon of Frank Walton, a guard from the University of Pittsburgh, the squad now numbers 32.

Hecker, a member of the Indiana National Guard, has been at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., and originally intended to fly to Chicago. However, Hecker was forced to stop over at Lafayette because of a mild attack of indigestion before continuing to join the squad in Evanston. Crawford made the trip from North Carolina.

Coaches Seek Blockers.

The arrival of Hecker should help assuage the fears of the coaches, Noble Kizer, Jimmie Crowley, and Dick Hanley, who yesterday asserted they have a lot of star ball carriers and few good blocking backs. In an attempt to strengthen the attack Bob Jones of Indiana, originally selected on the team by popular vote as a guard, was shifted to the back field. This is no strange position for Jones, since he played full back at Indiana for a year. His ability to punt also is enhanced by playing in the back field.

Fritz Febel, who won fame as a scoring guard on Purdue's football eleven last fall, left Lafayette last night and will join the squad today. As a result of his alert play on the Boilermaker eleven last fall, Febel, a husky 200 pounder, scored touchdowns against both Notre Dame and Iowa on intercepted passes.

The all-Americans at their morning practice yesterday at Dyche stadium started work on their offense. Preliminary movements indicated the Notre Dame system of attack would be used. The offensive work will be handled by Coaches Kizer and Crowley. Coach Hanley will direct the defense and with him in charge the all-stars should have an advantage over the Bears. It is doubtful if the Bears will have as comprehensive a knowledge of the all-star offense as Hanley has of the Bears, for he has seen them play a score of times and probably can diagram all the plays.

Elward Joins Coaches.

Mal Elward, assistant coach at Purdue, yesterday was invited to join the staf by Coach Kizer. Elward will work with the ends.

The morning practice, starting today, will be held behind closed doors. Last night's practice was open to the public. Yesterday's arrangement of the drills gave the boys an afternoon of leisure. Most of them went to the Cubs-Boston ball game, but Aaron Rosenberg and Homer Griffith, the Southern California duo, made a dash for the loop. Chicago is just another city to a Southern Californian, and the boys wanted a look, see. They had a nice ride down with George Shaffer, of THE TRIBUNE'S Los Angeles bureau, and Griffith bought an automobile in which they will drive back to California.

At least one practice will be secret each day, it was announced yesterday. Scrimmage will not be held before the middle of next week.

The schedule of appearances for the members of the squad has been limited by the coaches. With the complete approval of the players, the team will concentrate on football rather than after dinner speeches.

Everybody Wants Tickets.

"We won't be able to lick the Bears by doing a lot of sight seeing," Big Ted Rosequist said. "And those Bears will take a lot of pushing before we reach their goal line."

All of which isn't news, perhaps, but so far the college players have given every indication that they consider the impending clash with the professional champions as important as if they were getting ready for the Rose Bowl game.

The players have been over run with autograph seekers and friends who would like to buy a couple of tickets on the 50 yard line. The boys probably can handle the autograph addicts if they don't develop writer's cramp, but the ticket situation is out of hand. All tickets along the sidelines are sold. While each of the members of the squad will received complimentary tickets, they are unable to purchase any. Thousands of tickets remain at $1.10 and these may be secured at The Tribune Public Service office, the office in the lobby of Tribune Tower and in Room 530, Tribune Tower.

This information is passed along to save the footballers from annoyance.

A COUPLE OF OLD COLLEGE STARS WHO WILL BATTLE NEW CAMPUS HEROES

Red Grange, once the greatest of college backs, and Ookie Miller (upper right), who had few peers as a center while at Purdue, will be two of the main cogs in the Bears' attack when the pro champions meet the All-Star eleven at Soldiers' field Aug. 31.

Bears Test Weight; 19 Exceed 200

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

If weight means anything, the all-star collegians might as well pack up and beat it before keeping their football date the evening of Aug. 31 at Soldiers' field with Chicago's pro Bears. The latter, as revealed yesterday when they stepped on the scales on their training premises at Lane Tech High school field, are so well provided with beef that nineteen of the thirty-two men are in the 200 pound class. And these figures were not blown up with the idea of giving the college boys something to worry about.

Lyman Comparatively Light.

It's by several tons or so the heaviest Bear squad ever assembled, according to Head Coach George Halas. And this is easy to understand if you go no farther than the cases of Tackles Dick Davis from Penn Military academy and George Musso from Millikin. Musso is a mere boy of 274 pounds. Substantial home cooking didn't do so well for Davis. He can touch only 270 pounds. Both these totals will melt down consiredably inside the next ten days.

Roy [Link] Lyman, the former Nebraska tackle, who last fall held second place in the heavyweight class, has, by comparison, dropped into the midget ranks. The best Lyman could do after a summer of shoving live beeves around on a Kansas ranch was 244 pounds. This is 15 pounds lighter than when he reported a year ago. Between Davis and Lyman in the tonnage book is Walter Kiesling, a 263 pound guard who is starting his first season with the Bears. Below Lyman is Bronko Nagurski, ex-Gopher who tilts the beam at 235. Three men, Richards, Kopcha, and Stahlman, all linesmen, checked in at 230 pounds.

Corbett's Leg O. K.

Quite a number of these behemoths will be among the eleven men picked to start against the collegians. If last year's regular lineup is in action at the kickoff there'll be six men of 200 pounds or better. Four will be slightly below the 200 mark. The only lightweight will be Carl Brumbaugh, the ex-Florida quarter back, who

Jim Crowley, former Notre Dame star, now head coach at Fordham, explains to Bob Elston (left) and W-G-N listeners what the All-Stars are up against in the Bear game. Crowley is helping Noble Kizer coach the All-Stars. In 1924 Kizer opened holes for Crowley, then one of the Four Horsemen; today they are coaching together; next November they come to grips when Kizer takes his Purdue team to New York to play Fordham. Tigers Win, 2-0; Yankees Take 1st, 5-0

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Lynwood [Schoolboy] Rowe, Detroit pitching sensation, defeated the New York Yankees, 2 to 0, today for the second time in three days. It was his 14th consecutive victory of the season. After a fall in the second inning, when he tripped over third base, Rowe recovered to check the Yankees with three hits, and strike out eleven.

The triumph gave the Tigers an even break in the double header, played before 46,571 spectators. Vernon [Lefty] Gomez stopped the Tigers, 5 to 0, in the first game, but Detroit left town with three victories in five games and a commanding margin of five and a half games in the pennant race.

De Shong hit Owen in the second inning of the second game and Pete Fox then tripled to left to drive in the first run. Rowe beat out an infield hit, but Fox held third. Manager Mickey Cochrane came through with a single to score Fox.

Gomez yielded eight hits to Sorrell's six in the first game, but the southpaw, in registering his 20th victory of the year, was effective in the pinches, being aided by two double plays. Scores:

EARNSHAW LOSES IN 10TH, 9-8; SOX WHIP A'S, 3 TO 2

Lyons Gives Chicago Split in Twin Bill.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—A surprising return to form by Ted Lyons allowed the White Sox to escape a shutout in the series with the Athletics, concluded today with a double header. After Ed Coleman's three home runs and supplementary slugging had downed George Earnshaw, 9 to 8, in the ten inning opener, Lyons came back with a 3 to 2 triumph over young Joe Cascarella for his seventh victory of the season.

Coleman's home runs, running his total for the season to fourteen, accounted for five runs. Even so, Earnshaw had plenty of chance to win his twelfth victory and a $500 bonus check, but he tossed away three late inning leads, the Athletics putting over the winning run with one out in the tenth inning. Bill Dietrich, relief pitcher for Al Benton, was credited with the victory and also scored the winning run.

Lyons Bears Down.

Lyons had a one hit game until Jimmy Foxx took the major league home run lead with a drive that tied the score in the seventh inning. It was his thirty-eighth and was only the second hit off Ted. He gave up two more in the eighth, when the Athletics scored their other run.

Al Simmons led the Chicago attack in both games, driving home three runs in the first game and two in the second. The Sox made only one error, a boot by Manager Jimmie Dykes, his first since shifting to first base. The entire infield turned in spectacular plays. This was the Sox's final appearance of the season here, and left the standing for the year at nine victories for the Sox to eight for the Athletics.

FIRST GAME

The first of Coleman's homers came in the second inning, after Higgins had walked, and gave the Athletics a 2 to 0 lead. Mule Haas' home run in the third after Swanson had worked Benton for a pass, tied the score. Coleman's drive carried the ball across the street against the second story of an apartment building.

Coleman came up again in the fourth with two out and slammed another homer, this time with no one aboard. The Sox waited until the sixth before tying the score again, this being accomplished when Hayes doubled to left center and Madjeski singled to left. Berry had the ball in plenty of time, but Hayes knocked it out of his hands.

The Sox took the lead for the first time in the seventh when Haas beat out a hit to Williams and scampered to third when Dib threw wildly past first. Simmons' single scored Haas and Simmons carried in the other run when Dykes smashed a double into the left field corner.

An Ike and Mike Act.

The Athletics came back in their half with a two run rally. Marcum batted for Berry and was safe on Dykes' fumble, his first error since replacing Bonura at first base. Finney, hitting for Benton, forced Warstler, who ran for Marcum. Then Cramer doubled. After Williams fouled out, Johnson's line single to center scored Finney and Cramer.

With Dietrich pitching the Sox helped themselves to two more runs in the eighth. Earnshaw singled after two were out. Swanson beat out an infield hit and Haas walked. Simmons then doubled to right, scoring Earnshaw and Swanson.

Higgins opened the Athletics' eighth with a slow single past Earnshaw and up came Coleman again. His drive this time barely cleared the wall, after which Earnshaw slammed his glove to the ground in disgust.

In the ninth the Sox got Earnshaw the lead again. Dykes walked and was sacrificed to second by Hayes. Hopkins singled to center and Dykes scored.

Then the Tenth.

Williams opened the Philadelphia ninth with a single to left and Foxx walked after Swanson took Johnson's fly. Higgins' single scored Williams with the run that tied the game for the fifth time.

The Sox went out in order in the tenth, and with the brazen Phila-

WEAVER TAKES POUNDING FROM BOSTON BATS

Chicago Lineup Is Shuffled.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Buck Betts and Bob Smith, a couple of pitchers who had won only 13 games between them all year, while losing 17, yesterday held the Cubs to six scattered hits while the Boston Braves went about the rather easy chore of pushing over the pennant aspiring Chicagoans for the third time in the series and the eleventh time this year. The score of yesterday's embarrassment was Boston, 5; Chicago, 2.

Manager Grimm, in a desperate effort to get some fire in his outfit, gave the lineup a big shakeup, which involved the return of Chuck Klein and Bill Jurges, but a seventh inning four run blast against Big Jim Weaver, gave the Braves all the edge they needed over the listless Cubs. As far as could be noted the shakeup netted only one improvement: Don Hurst, installed in the No. 3 hole knocked two doubles, one being one of the five hits off Betts and the other the only hit off Smith, who allowed no one else to get the ball out of the infield in three innings of pitching.

Cubs Drop Back.

While the Cubs' challenge of the city champion White Sox for a city series is not exactly imminent, it seemed no farther away as the proud Cubs sagged 5½ games behind the wideawake Giants, a loss of 1½ games as a result of the day's activities in the National league.

Despite their failure against Betts and Smith, it cannot be said that the Cubs weren't cutting at the ball yesterday, as attested by the fact that only one of their half dozen hits was a single.

Hurst with his two doubles led the attack, such as it was. Stan Hack led off the Cub offensive with a triple; Hartnett doubled with two out in the fourth, and in the sixth Cuyler backed up Billy Herman's single with a double. This was the only inning in which the Cubs made more than one hit. Hurst's licks came in the fifth and seventh innings and did not figure in the scoring.

Hack Opens with Triple.

Hack opened the Chicago offensive with a triple to the left field corner, held third while Mallon threw out Billy Herman and scored on Klein's fly to Lee. Babe Herman walked but Cuyler filed to Berger.

The first six batsmen to face Weaver were retired in order but the Cubs had to do a little bearing down to prevent a tie in the third. Whitney was safe on Hack's wide throw, moved to second on Hogan's out and to third on a wild pitch. He had to stay at third while Cuyler caught Betts' short fly and he died when Urbanski popped to Jurges.

The Braves were again troublesome in the fourth. Mallon led off with a double, the first hit off Weaver and went to third on Jor an's out. Weaver then grabbed Berger's bounding smash with his bare hand and started a run down which retired Mallon, Weaver to Hack to Hartnett. Berger took second on the run down but the inning ended when Billy Herman made a nice pick up of Lee's grounder and threw him out.

Braves Tie Score.

In the fifth the Braves did tie it up. Moore led off with a single, moved up on Whitney's sacrifice and scored on Hogan's single to right. Betts bunted and forced Hogan and Urbanski filed to Babe Herman.

And here is the record of the Boston stampede in the seventh. Lee filed to Babe Herman; then Moore caromed a shot off Hurst's glove. Randy was waved out when Hurst recovered and tossed to Weaver on first. The decision was reversed, of course, when Weaver dropped the ball. Moore's effort was officially scored a hit, however. Whitney singled to left, Moore

NEW DEAL MEETS BIEN FAIT AGAIN IN HANDICAP

Gives Coldstream Star 7 Pounds Today.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Bien Fait, the horse from Texas which has been running like a champion at Hawthorne, will have his courage tested in the renewal of the Chicago handicap this afternoon.

Bien Fait won the Berwyn handicap at 6 furlongs on opening day. Then he came back to win the Schank and Corrigan Memorial handicaps, each at a mile and a sixteenth. The distance for the Chicago handicap today is a mile and an eighth and in it Bien Fait will pick up his largest weight package, carrying 119 pounds.

Victory Will Bring Title.

If the son of Bubbling Over can do the big job assigned him this afternoon he need not worry about carrying away the championship at Hawthorne, for this will be his last big opportunity. Next week 2 year olds will hold the spotlight in the Hawthorne Juvenile championship. The following week the Illinois Owners' handicap will be the outstanding event of the entire Hawthorne season. Bien Fait, hailing from the Lone Star state, will have to be nothing more than a spectator when that stormy battle is decided.

New Deal, from the barn of J. W. Parrish, which has been on Bien Fait's trail throughout the Hawthorne season, will be his most highly respected rival in the Chicago handicap. In a 6½ furlong struggle at equal weights New Deal handed Bien Fait a beating.

Weight Will Count.

This afternoon Bien Fait will try to give New Deal seven pounds and beat him. Last Saturday in the Corrigan handicap Bien Fait gave New Deal three pounds and beat him handily by two lengths. Yet a difference of seven pounds today no doubt will bring them closer together. At any rate, those who follow the races should find it a highly interesting contest.

Bien Fait will have his old roomy, Blessed Event, running as a companion, and as Blessed Event carries only 107 pounds, he may be the one the heavy betting Corsciana stable will depend upon to bring home the money. New Deal's 3 year old pal, Howard, will be his running mate. Ebony Lady and Gold Signet will also run as an entry, while the long shots, Navanod, Frank Ormont and Late Date, will attempt to upset all the best traditions of the figure system by coming down in front.

Frank Ormont Long Shot.

A lot of long shot players smacked their lips and rubbed their hands in anticipation of a glorious afternoon when they glanced at that 102 pounds assigned Frank Ormont. That's about the weight at which old Frank usually wins, but he doesn't win very often.

Horse.	Weight.	Jocky.	Prob. odds.
*Gold Signet	101	J. King	5-1
†Howard	107	L. Haas	8-5
‡Blessed Event	107	No boy	2-1
*Ebony Lady	103	D. Taylor	5-1
Navanod	105	L. Balaski	15-1
Frank Ormont	102	O. Harbort	30-1
Late Date	111	J. Kacala	8-1
‡Bien Fait	119	C. Landolt	2-1
†New Deal	112	L. Haas	8-5

*Coldstream stud-Rookwood farm entry.
†J. W. Parrish entry.
‡Corsicana stable entry.

CAMPBELL FACES SOMERVILLE FOR CANADIAN TITLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAVAL-SUR-LE-LAC, Que., Aug. 17.—C. Ross Somerville, London, Ont., and Albert [Scotty] Campbell, Seattle, Wash., defending champion, will meet in the 36 hole final match for the Canadian amateur golf championship tomorrow.

Somerville, former holder of the United States amateur title, advanced to the finals by defeating Jesse Guilford, Boston veteran, 9 and 8. Campbell won the right to oppose Somerville by eliminating Ernie Palmer, Winnipeg, 5 and 4.

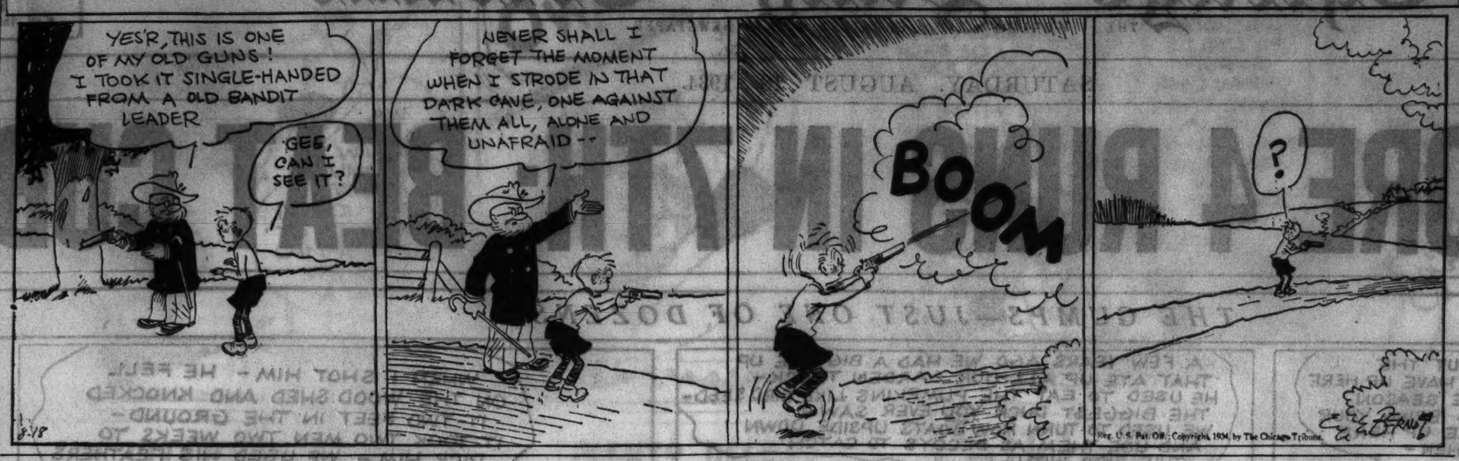
SMITTY—THE DISAPPEARING GUN!



COUGHLIN'S PALS GAY; ADVANTAGE TRIUMPHS EASILY

Ald. John Coughlin's speedy colt, Advantage, again moved up into the select ranks of Illinois 2 year olds at Hawthorne yesterday when he won the Preliminary handicap, which engaged some of the most stylish runners of that age racing in Chicago.

The slow track was just to his liking and the race was hardly a second old when Advantage, a son of Carlarris-Betty Ames, took a lead of three lengths. He continued to toy with his rivals during the six furlong trip and finished ahead by six lengths. By-Lo, highly regarded filly from the stable of Mrs. Roy Carruthers, which was third in the Lassie stakes at Arlington park, finished second. Countess Bina, a hard running filly from the Running W. Ranch stable of Texas, ran third.

Advantage's easy triumph brought great joy to Ald. Coughlin and his henchmen from the first ward. They whooped it up for the remainder of the afternoon.

Advantage was ridden by Jocky J. Kacala and was backed so stoutly by the Coughlin stable followers that he paid off at $4.18 for a $2 ticket. Any old price would have been all right insofar as the first warders were concerned. Advantage demonstrated in this event that he merits consideration in any company.

The Illinois Racing commission yesterday asked Racing Secretary Francis Dunne to take up 153 employés' badges that were issued at the beginning of the meeting. The badges were issued at the request of trainers to provide admission to the Hawthorne track for their stable help. The 153 which are to be taken up were issued to stable employés who have not applied for the licenses the Illinois Racing commission requires.

An auction of horses in training held in the Hawthorne paddock yesterday by J. A. McDowell resulted in the sale of nine thoroughbreds for a total of $4,715, an average of $524. The highest price realized was the $1,100 paid by Mrs. J. Grossman for Joseph E. Widener's Sun Chance. The sales were: boasts 178 pounds. However, the starting lineup is far from fixed. With a dozen newcomers on the squad some of the veterans are faced by serious challenges.

Property of.	Horse.	Price	Sold to.

Some of Coach Halas' worry about whipping things into ship shape before the evening of Aug. 31 was lifted yesterday when George Corbett, one of the quarter backs, showed that he had fully recovered from a leg injury suffered early last season in a game with Green Bay's Packers. There was concern about Corbett's ability to punt in his old form, but the way in which he whistled 'em down the field yesterday removed this. Corbett is the team's most competent punter, unless one of the new men reveals skill in this particular.

The squad was completed yesterday by the arrival from California of Center Charles [Ookie] Miller. By engaging in preliminary work on the coast he cut his poundage to 198. The only absentee from practice was Half Back Art Justus, who developed neck pains after the first day's drill. He was turned over to Dr. John Davis to determine whether he had suffered a reoccurrence of an injury suffered recently while diving in a pool at Macomb, Ill.

The practice, made up of a morning and afternoon session, was witnessed by another large crowd.

Church Baseball Teams Play for Title Today

Providence Baptist and Jubilee Temple C. M. E. will play for the championship of the Union Church Baseball league this afternoon at the American Giants' park, 39th street and Wentworth avenue. The game will start at 5 o'clock. The winning team will go to Detroit to meet the champions of the Detroit Church A. A. in the sixth annual intercity series between teams representing the two organizations.

SAIL AND POWER BOATS RACE TO WAUKEGAN TODAY

The Columbia Yacht's club second annual combined sail and motor yacht race to Waukegan will be run off this afternoon. Eleven cruisers have entered in the power boat division. Between thirty and forty entrants of all sizes are expected in the sailing classes. The course to the Waukegan Yacht club from Oak street is 29.5 nautical miles, or 33.534 statute miles.

The twenty foot pup and twenty-two foot star class sloops will start at Belmont harbor on their 26 nautical miles to Waukegan.

The eleven cruisers entered represent four of Chicago's twelve yacht clubs—the Columbia, South Shore, Jackson Park, and Jackson Park Motorboat clubs.

Entries received up to last night in the power boat division were:

Lady Luck, H. E. Jennings; Bess Claire III., Charles E. Murray; Lavernne, A. E. Crotty; Joaned, H. C. Youngs; Rajah, Dr. H. A. Hooper; Eric V., William L. Erickson; Devshir, L. E. Emermann; Louise B., Elkan Berger; Spartan, George G. Hadley; Susie III., E. F. Lott.

Milwaukee Boats Enter.

Yachts of the Milwaukee, Kenosha, and Racine Yacht clubs will also sail to Waukegan this afternoon. A water carnival will be held tonight at the Waukegan Yacht club.

A special star class regatta will be held by the Jackson Park Yacht club over the week-end. Twenty-five stars have entered the regatta from Sheridan Shore, Chicago, Columbia, and Jackson Park Yacht clubs.

Three races will be held. The first, this afternoon, is twice around a four and one-half mile triangular course. Tomorrow morning the boats will sail a windward and leeward course totaling six nautical miles. The final race tomorrow afternoon will be the same as today's.

The list of entries for the Moninger trophy follows:

Walrus, Walter T. and Robert Stockton; Nereid, E. E. Raymond; Bee, Haven A. Requa; Jane II., George Harvey and Fred D. Porter; Sparkler, A. DeWitt Erskine; Hummer II., John W. Denison; Hermes, A. Y. Bingham; Twinkle Ditto, Max Hayford; Nancy Lee, W. W. Woods; Carol, Hal Elliott and Sam Goss; Barnacle, D. P. Barnard and E. R. Barnard; Starlight, A. C. Rasmussen; Gemini, S. C. Pirie Jr. and L. M. Pirie; Fram, F. W. Manegold; Glider, Howard B. Jones; Ali Baba, Charles E. Knight; Neo, Tom Waage; Blue Mist, Donald Bergman and C. R. Jenkins; Spinster, R. A. Vested; Silver Spray, Robert S. Kendig; Smack, Wesley Bowman; Sans Blaque, R. M. Greenlee; Star Dust, E. W. Willis; Aquila, Tom Wolfe; Pegasus, Layard R. Mace and W. B. Gathany.

C Series Today.

The first race of the Chicago Yacht club's C series is scheduled for this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock. Both class R and pup sloops are to race.

The Chicago Yacht club's eight mile buoy race is set for 10 a. m., tomorrow, off Belmont harbor. Instead of figuring the time allowance handicaps at the finish.

Laurel Hanover Breaks World Mark for Pacers

Skowhegan, Me., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Racing against time, Laurel Hanover, owned by Sullivan and McWhinney, Machial, and driven by Pierce Chappelle, Bangor, today broke the world record for three year old pacers on a half mile track. The brown stallion covered the mile in 2:04¼. The former mark of 2:04⅝ was made in Reading, Pa., last year by McIwin.

Wrestling Dates Back to Dimmest Ages of History

[This is the first of a series on the history and growth of wrestling. Jim Londos and Strangler Lewis, greatest of present day wrestlers will meet at Soldiers' field Sept. 20.]

Wrestling, most ancient of known sports, its origin long lost amid the ruins of Egypt, Asia, and Greece, likewise is the only sport or game which has maintained the same general outline throughout the ages.

Highly developed by the civilization of thousands of years ago, for centuries the science of wrestling was abandoned in favor of the application of brute strength. In the last century, however, leading exponents have returned to the development of speed and brains in relation to mat athletics.

Pictures chiseled on the stones of long-forgotten Egypt and exposed through archeological expeditions testify to the antiquity of wrestling and, amazingly enough, prove that the ancient athletes knew just as much about the basic holds as do champions and near champions of our own generation.

Homer Tells of Match.

While the actual origin of the sport is lost in history, it is definitly known to have existed as far back as 3,000 years before the birth of Christ. Its origin probably was Egyptian or Asiatic, while it was for centuries the chief entertainment and amusement of classic Greece. Homer, in the 23d book of the Iliad, tells in detail of the match between Odysseus and Ajax. It also is recorded that in 704 B. C. wrestling was the feature of the Olympic games.

The first championship of which there is record was that of Milo of Croaton, Olympic winner of 520 B. C., who is credited by ancient historians with creating and holding the title. The spread of wrestling advanced through Europe until the so-called modern history of the sport was begun with crowning of the Teuton, Albert Durer, during the late 15th and early 16th centuries.

Wrestled for Title.

While in recent centuries Europe and America have led the way, there is reason to believe that the sport has been popular in the orient. In fact, a variation of wrestling—jiu-jitsu—has been practiced in Japan for many ages. As late as 858 A. D. the two sons of Emperor Bontuko wrestled for the throne of Japan after the death of the monarch. The victor was Koreshito, who took the reins of government under the name of Seiwa and gave the sport imperial patronage. This royal sanction and protection surrounded the game in Japan until 1175, when it was withdrawn for reasons not clear. It was resumed in 1600 and still is in high favor with the Japanese.

Results Were Important.

Mysterious India, which has furnished many dark pages in history, also has been known through wrestling for centuries. It appears that in the ancient life of India, like the present, the reigning potentates maintained groups of wrestlers, much in the same manner as the present day occidental man of wealth maintains a racing stable.

There are vague references in many histories to wars between nations averted by the decisions of their political leaders to leave it to the brawn and skill of their favorite wrestlers.

Down in Front!

You won't have to worry about the other fellow obstructing your view if you order your tickets now for the world championship wrestling match between Jim Londos and Strangler Lewis at Wrigley field Sept. 20.

Mail orders are being accepted today for the match wrestling fans have been waiting years to see. Send them to the Wrestling Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

SENATORS WHIP INDIANS IN PAIR OF GAMES, 4-3, 1-0

Burke Holds Cleveland to 3 Hits in Second.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Washington won both games of a double header from the Cleveland Indians today, 4 to 3 and 1 to 0. Travis broke the deadlock in the tenth inning of the first game when he singled and scored on hits by Myer and Bolton. Washington's run in the second game was scored by Myer, who walked, took second on a wild pitch, went to third on Bolton's sacrifice, and counted on another wild pitch by Pearson. Burke held the Indians to three hits in the second contest. Score:

MOON MULLINS—THE MEN ON THE FLYING TRAPEZE

A PITCHER'S HOLIDAY

Landis Hears Dizzy's Story; Paul Pitches

Jerome [Dizzy] Dean, older of the brother pitching stars of the St. Louis Cardinals who this week went on a two man strike, announced last night that he would return to St. Louis today and hoped to don a uniform immediately.

Dizzy was in Chicago yesterday to confer with K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, concerning the fines levied against him and his brother. Paul, by Manager Frankie Frisch for their refusal to accompany the Cardinals to Detroit for an exhibition game last Monday.

Paul, who had been fined $50 and suspended for ten days with Dizzy Tuesday and who had announced that he would not pitch again until the fine was remitted, relented yesterday and worked a portion of the game with the Phillies. He was the winning pitcher.

Paul Admits Mistake.

The younger brother issued a statement yesterday which included the following: "I know I was in the wrong when I refused to go to Detroit and again when I refused to go on the field when asked to do so by Manager Frisch." The statement was approved and released by Sam Breadon, Cardinal president.

Dizzy was fined $100 for his part in the "rebellion" and an additional $36 for two club uniforms which he is said to have destroyed when informed of the extent of the penalty.

He Wants to Pitch.

"I do not object to paying whatever Frisch thinks I should," Dizzy said last night. "My only desire now is to return to the club and begin pitching again. I came to Chicago in the hope that Commissioner Landis would use his influence in having me reinstated at once instead of my having to wait until the suspension period expires on the 24th."

Landis informed President Breadon by telephone last night that he, the commissioner, would go to St. Louis Monday in an attempt to bring about a reconciliation.

RAINBOW BEATS YANKEE AND WINS KING'S CUP RACE

Newport, R. I., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Rainbow, Harold S. Vanderbilt's aspirant for the defense of the America's cup, today won the historic King's cup and scored her second victory over Yankee of Boston, the leading candidate for defense honors, skippered by Charles Francis Adams, former navy secretary.

Yankee finished third on corrected time, although she was second at the finish line. Weetamoe took second place, and Vanitie, Gerard Lambert's old and ineligible cup boat, came in fourth.

Today's course was intended to be a fifteen mile run and a fifteen mile beat back to the finish line. However, soon after the contest started the wind hauled from the north to the southwest, giving the contestants a reach.

The British challenger was out on the course again. No one could learn much of her potential speed, for Endeavor remained rather aloof.

Vince Dundee Awarded Decision Over Brescia

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Vince Dundee of Newark, middleweight champion of the world, gained an easy decision over Tony Brescia of New York, in a ten round non-title bout at the Fort Hamilton arena tonight. Dundee was the aggressor all the way and won much as he pleased. The champion weighed 162½ pounds; Brescia, 163.

GIANTS DEFEAT PIRATES, 7-3, 8-3; INCREASE LEAD

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Giants took two long strides toward the National league pennant today when they defeated the Pirates in both ends of a doubleheader, 7 to 3 and 8 to 3. The double triumph, coupled with Chicago's loss to Boston, gives the Giants a 5½ game lead.

Mel Ott hit a home run with two on base in each game to bring his season's total to 32. Scores:

Hogan missed two strikes, then walked, filling the bases. Brandt was put on to run for Hogan and McManus batted for Betts. Weaver's first two pitches were strikes and deceived McManus very much. After throwing a ball Weaver put one over the plate and this did not deceive Marty in the least. He socked it for a single, scoring Moore and Whitney and putting Brandt on third. Urbanski grounded to Jurges who threw to Hartnett in time to get Brandt at the plate on a nice play. Mallon beat out a hit to Billy Herman and the bases again were loaded. Jordan singled to left, McManus and Urbanski scoring. Berger popped to Hartnett.

Smith started pitching in the Cub seventh, and aside from Hurst's second double, held the Chicagoans utterly helpless. He also stood Billy Herman, Klein, and Babe Herman on their respective heads in the eighth.

Root took over the pitching job in the eighth and held the Braves to two singles during the inning. In the ninth Root got the first two men out. Then Jordan walked and stopped at third on Berger's double. Lee popped to Jurges.

JENKINS DRIVES CAR 3,053 MILES IN 24 HOUR RUN

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Driving his 238 horse power racing car 3,237 miles in 24 hours and 41 minutes and pausing 2½ hours to rest, Ab Jenkins of Salt Lake City roared on tonight over the salt beds here in quest of additional world's speed records.

Timers said Jenkins had established several new marks for various distances as he set out again at 1:54 p. m. to drive 30,000 miles in 15 days over the 10 mile natural course.

Jenkins left the starting line yesterday at 10:40:48 a. m. and pulled into the pit today at 11:20 a. m. to get some sleep despite the 105 degree heat.

When 10:40:48 o'clock came today he had broken his last year's world record, made when he drove 2,825 miles in 24 hours at an average of 117.8 miles an hour. He claimed a record today of 3,053 miles in 24 hours at an average of 127.208 miles an hour.

Pat Malone to Face Phillies in Opener Today

Pat Malone will go after his 14th victory of the season in this afternoon's opener with the Phillies. In July and thus far in August Pat has dropped only one decision, to the Giants, while winning six.

Tuck Stainback was ill yesterday, necessitating the return of Chuck Klein considerably sooner than Manager Grimm had planned.

Dawson Reaches Final in Colorado Golf Tourney

Denver, Colo., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Johnny Dawson, Chicago amateur who won medalist honors in the tourney, was just a step from the championship of the 34th annual Colorado golf tournament tonight, defeating 17 year old Harry Todd, Dallas, 8 and 6, in a 36 hole semi-final match. The Chicagoan's adversary in the final battle tomorrow will be Howard F. Crocker Jr., Denver, who beat Jack Malloy, Tulsa, Oklo., collegian, 1 up.

PLAY DONKEY BALL.

Two games of donkey baseball will be played at St. Rita field, 63d street and Oakley boulevard, tonight under the auspices of the Southtown Athletic club. The Corkery Drugs and Corkery Colts will meet teams from the Packing House league.

SOCIETY WOMAN FOUND DROWNED IN POOL AT CLUB

Circumstances of Death a Mystery.

Dayton, O., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—An investigation was being conducted by Montgomery county authorities today into the mysterious drowning of Mrs. William H. Neil, socially prominent matron, in the swimming pool of the fashionable Northmoor Country club late last night.

After an autopsy, Coroner Maurice Cooper announced that the attractive 28 year old woman had drowned, but other circumstances surrounding the death remained clouded.

Her husband, an insurance company executive, from whom she had been separated for several days, pointed out that a diamond ring valued at nearly $2,000 which his wife was in the habit of wearing was not on her finger when her body was found.

Couple Living Apart.

Neil told Sherif Eugene Frick he was unable to state whom his wife had been with last night, if any one. The executive disclosed that he had been living at a downtown hotel for several days and that Mrs. Neil had presumably been living alone in their home.

Coroner Cooper said he found no marks of violence on the body except bruises on her legs, which he learned had been inflicted several days ago. He declined to theorize on the possibility of foul play.

The woman's clothing was found in a neatly piled heap at the edge of the pool. Nearby was an empty glass, which had contained beer.

The nude body was found by Louis Shyrigh, night watchman at the club. He said he saw nothing unusual when he made his regular round at the pool at 9:30 p. m. No one was in the pool at that hour, and Mrs. Neil was not on the grounds then, as far as he knew, the watchman told authorities.

Sees Body in Water.

On his second round of the grounds at midnight Shyrigh discovered the body floating in the water. He notified A. Z. Funk, club manager. The latter recovered the body and reported the matter to the sheriff's office.

Sherif Frick advanced the theory that Mrs. Neil was a member of a party which had gone to the club for a swim some time after 9:30 p. m. and had remained in the water after the others left. He was seeking her friends to determine if this had happened. Funk said Mrs. Neil was not a member of the club.

Indianan's Death Leaves 1 Civil War Vet in County

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Virgil Periog, 90, civil war veteran, is dead at his home in Boonville from complications resulting from the amputation of a leg last week. His death leaves but one civil war veteran, William Kelley, Boonville, living in Warrick county.

Eureka, Ill., Vet Dies.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Funeral services for Foster Benjamin, 92, civil war veteran of Eureka, Ill., 20 miles west of Bloomington, will be held in that city Sunday. He had come to Eureka 20 years ago from Ohio. He spent four years in the Union army.

THOMAS KEELEY, BREWER, DIES IN HOME SUDDENLY

Thomas F. Keeley, president of the Keeley Brewing company, which was founded by his father in 1871, died yesterday of heart disease in his home at 5492 South Shore drive. He was 75 years old.

THOS. F. KEELEY.

Mr. Keeley, apparently in good health, had left the offices of the company, 516 East 28th street, to go home for lunch. He sat in the living room of his apartment to read a newspaper while awaiting the meal. When his wife entered the room to call him she found his body on the floor.

Mrs. Keeley, to whom he was married on Jan. 15, 1918, is the former Miss Olive Gahan, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Gahan of 4610 Drexel boulevard.

In addition to his widow, Mr. Keeley is survived by a daughter Olive, 15 years old, and two sisters, Mrs. Patrick James Lawler, 4925 Woodlawn avenue, and Mrs. William A. Lydon, 6855 South Euclid avenue.

Mr. Keeley became president of the brewing company in 1920. Before that time it was headed by a brother, E. G. Keeley, who served in that capacity until his death.

The funeral of Mr. Keeley will be held Monday from the residence to St. Thomas the Apostle church, 55th street and Kimbark avenue. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. E. McG. Odell Dies of Infantile Paralysis

MANILA, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth McGlachlin Odell, wife of Lieut. Joseph C. Odell of Fort McKinley, died tonight of infantile paralysis after three days' illness. She was the daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Edward F. McGlachlin of Washington, D. C., and a sister-in-law of Maj. E. J. Hatch of the general staf corps, also of Washington.

Samuel V. Proudfit, 89, U. S. Land Office, Is Dead

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Samuel V. Proudfit, 89, a former member of the Iowa State Bar association and assistant commissioner of the general land office of Washington, died yesterday after a short illnes. Before coming to Washington in 1881 Proudfit was mayor of Glenwood, Ia.

Funeral services for Edward Hallam Huntington Jr., who died yesterday in his home, 4743 Saratoga avenue, Downers Grove, will take place in the home at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Bronswood cemetery, Hinsdale, after a Masonic ceremony at the grave.

Mr. Huntington, 57 years old, until three years ago a trust officer of the Continental Illinois bank, was the son of the former assistant secretary and treasurer of THE TRIBUNE, who died five years ago. Born in Cincinnati, O., Mr. Huntington Jr. came to live in the Chicago area 41 years ago. He was a member of the St. Andrew Episcopal church in Downers Grove and was active in Masonry.

Surviving Mr. Huntington are his widow, Mrs. Lula Huntington, and two sons, Stanley H. of Naperville and Douglas E. Huntington.

ALFRED WILLSIE DIES; FUNERAL IS TO BE TOMORROW

Mr. Willsie, 70 years old, was born in Galesburg, Ill. Beginning as a messenger boy, he worked himself up in the Burlington railroad organization until he became an assistant divisional superintendent. He retired from the railroad seven years ago to become associated with the Badeker company. He entered the management four years ago and later became president.

Mr. Willsie was a widower, his wife having died 27 years ago, and he had no children. He is survived by relatives in Galesburg and Maywood. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Galesburg.

Hiram Vanderbilt, Former Alderman of Old 9th, Dies

Hiram Vanderbilt, who served as alderman of the old 9th ward from 1912 to 1916, died yesterday in his home, 11432 Prairie avenue, after a long illness of heart disease and complications. He was 60 years old. Mr. Vanderbilt retired six years ago from the flour and feed business. He is survived by his widow, two sons, and two daughters. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday in the Roseland Presbyterian church, 11200 South State street.

$145,000 Belknap Estate Claim Allowed by Court

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday allowed a claim of $145,000 against the estate of Frank L. Belknap, Chicago patent attorney, who died May 10 in New York City. The claim was granted in behalf of Belknap's first wife, Mrs. Jane Tucker Belknap of New York City, in accordance with a separation contract dated Sept. 29, 1925, which provided a monthly income of $1,500 for Mrs. Belknap during her lifetime in the event she did not remarry.

Rites to Be Held Today for Mrs. Alfon E. Bahr

Funeral services for Mrs. Alfon E. Bahr will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the family home at 5555 Sheridan road. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery. Mrs. Bahr, who died Thursday night, is survived by her husband, an insurance broker, and their daughter, Alfa Elaine Bahr. Last winter Mr. and Mrs. Bahr celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. Before her marriage Mrs. Bahr was Mabel Stewart of Chicago.

Dr. William Siegler Dies; on South Side 25 Years

Dr. William J. Siegler, a practicing physician on the south side for twenty-five years, died yesterday of heart disease in his home, 7840 South Peoria street. He was 59 years old and unmarried. He is survived by three brothers—Frank J., Bart, and John—and a sister, Mrs. Mary Scheuring. Funeral services will be held at 8:30 a. m. Monday in the funeral parlor at 9900 Throop street and burial will be at La Salle, Ill.

Irene Dalton, Former Film Star, to Be Buried Today

Funeral services for Irene Dalton, who was a star of the comic films more than a decade ago, will be held at 10 a. m. today from the family residence, 4011 Wilcox street. Miss Dalton, who was 33 years old, died suddenly at home on Wednesday. A former Chicago stenographer, she first gained fame when she became leading woman for the Christie Comedies in 1923. Later she married Lloyd Hamilton, actor, but divorced him in 1928.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Dick Powell will have a leading lady from Chicago in his new fall radio program, "Hollywood Hotel," which is to go on the air over CBS from Los Angeles in about a month. The winner of the national auditions, in which more than 20,000 girls competed, is Rowene Williams, who has been heard this season over W-G-N on the Chicago Theater of the Air program on Tuesday evenings. Miss Williams, formerly of Minneapolis, where she appeared in opera, triumphed over more than 850 girls from Chicagoland before she went to New York this week to compete with other regional winners.

Miss Williams will be given a $250 a week contract for the forthcoming radio series. If she proves satisfactory she will get $500 weekly within one year. Also on this program will be Ted Fio-Rito and his orchestra and El Brendel, the Swedish comedian of the movies.

Carlos Molina, the rhumba maestro from Colombia [South America] today will return to the air via the Columbia Broadcasting system from the Hotel Stevens, where he is opening an engagement. WBBM will be the local outlet.

Next Wednesday Andy, who will be in London, plans to call Amos at San Francisco on the telephone. NBC has arranged so that their radio followers may listen in on the conversation. Andy [Charlie Correll] probably will be describing the wonders of Europe while Amos [Freeman Cosden] will be telling fish stories. They'll be back on the air Sept. 17.

Two favorites of the broadcasting channels—Morton Downey and Jane Froman—opened at loop theaters yesterday. The CBS tenor is at the Chicago and the NBC skylark at the Palace. Downey will be heard locally next Tuesday over W-G-N on the Chicago Theater of the Air program. Miss Froman, who first achieved radio success here under the tutelage of Paul Whiteman several years ago, will be heard as a guest soloist on Charles Previn's Silken Strings program at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. The last season Miss Froman has been the singing star of the Ziegfeld Follies.

The government monopolized British Broadcasting company has put an end to jests and witticisms in any way concerning the royal family. A broadcast by Comedian Ernie Moss is said to have precipitated the clampdown. Touching on the opening of the world's largest under water tunnel at which King George officiated, the jester boasted: "I was to have opened the Mersey tunnel, but the king charged a pound less, so I didn't get the job."

That original musical show which Courtney Riley Cooper, Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz are writing, with a soap company as sponsor, will reach the air Saturday, Sept. 15, over NBC. It will be called "The Gibson Family," and will run for one hour on bath night. . . . And that new Sigmund Romberg musical hour also will fall on Saturday night. The sponsor is a packing company that also makes soap.

BACK YARD NIGHT CLUB GIVES CASH TO FREE ICE FUND

Children's Show Collects $25 for Need.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A cabaret party with special floor entertainment was held last night in the back yard of the Alfred Israel home, 1205 Madison park, by a group of neighborhood children for the benefit of THE TRIBUNE Free Ice Fund. A total of $25 was raised.

The floor show was confined strictly to girls, ages 4 to 12, while the seven piece orchestra was entirely masculine. Guests sat at tables while they viewed the singing and dancing, and were served such delicacies as soda pop, cake, cookies, and candy.

Jimmie Cole was master of ceremonies when he wasn't in the orchestra. Billy Sanwick was orchestra director, with his brothers, Rufus and Jimmie. Robert Wallace, Charles Strawbridge and Bert Austrian as the other members.

Girl of 4 Is Star.

A star of the cabaret floor was Marilyn Sanwick, 4 years old, who sang "Yankee Doodle" and "Man on the Flying Trapeze." Other entertainers were Dorothy Cohan, Lucile and Peggy Seidler, Jean Fantl, Betty and Lorraine Israel, Eleanor Bach, Muriel Stark, Myra Schwartz, Sally Franklin, and Janice Kutnauer.

Two other benefits, both circuses, helped to swell the ice fund yesterday. The Kimbark Kids Klub, composed of Maxine Gutridge, Audrey Jensen, Rosemary and Irene Conners, each 11 years old, raised $4.50 for the ice fund, declaring: "We believe the ice fund is a wonderful plan, and hope you will be able to help many families with this money."

Circus Brings in Cash.

The other benefit, which brought in $7.62, was given by the White Star circus, afternoon and evening performances, at 705 Johns avenue, Highland Park, the home of Bobby and Jackie McArdle. Others taking part were Stubby and Sarah Jane Murfy, Joan and Miriam Wickman, Miriam Stockwell, Mary Brogan, and Ruth Goodhue.

The gifts in full are:

Free Ice Fund.
$7.62—White Star Circus.
$3—Mrs. Frank M. Lockwood.
$2—Susan Stern, L. B. H.
Total—$18.92.
Grand total—$6,562.61.

The Camp Algonquin fund received $4 in memory of M. E. D., giving that fund a grand total of $6,152.16. The camp, where tired mothers and children are given two happy weeks on the Fox river, will remain open until Sept. 17. Gifts are needed greatly to assure vacations for those who have been promised.

Contributions to both funds should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

S. GOLDENBURG SERVICES TO BE HELD MONDAY

Funeral services for Samson Goldenburg, 52 years old, liquor broker and distiller, who died Thursday in his home at 3300 Lake Shore drive after three months' illness, will be held at 10 a. m. Monday in the chapel at 4911 Broadway. Burial will be in Waldheim cemetery.

Mr. Goldenburg, born in Winnipeg, Canada, started as an office boy for the James E. Pepper Distilling company. He built and long operated the Murphy distillery in Vincennes, Ind. After 1905 he was a liquor broker. He was president of the LaPerla Vineyard company of California and of the Ramshead Distilling company of Chicago.

J. W. Flanders, Railroad Veteran, Dies in Aurora

J. William Flanders, 61 years old, of Aurora, the second oldest employé in point of service of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad, died yesterday in the Copley hospital at Auora. He had been ill six weeks. Mr. Flanders, a foreman of the railroad's car painting shops at Wheaton, was with the company 32 years. He is survived by his widow, Lillie, two sons and a daughter.

ARMOUR VOTES FIRST DIVIDEND ON PREFERRED

Declares $1.50 on New 6% Issue.

Armour & Co. of Illinois yesterday authorized payment of the first quarterly dividend on its new 6 per cent prior preferred stock which was issued under the recent reorganization to remove the corporation's topheavy capital structure.

T. G. LEE.

The $1.50 dividend is the first to be paid by the company since Jan. 2, 1931, and will be distributed on Oct. 1 to all who have exchanged their 7 per cent preferred shares for the new issue. Although payment was authorized to holders of record Sept. 21, those making the exchange before Oct. 1 will share in the dividend.

The directors also extended the date for taking up the preferred stock conversion offer from Sept. 15 to Dec. 10. It was emphasized, however, that stockholders must act before Oct. 1 to share in the first dividend.

Delaware Unit Pays Dividend.

The usual quarterly distribution of $1.75 a share on the 7 per cent guaranteed cumulative preferred stock of Armour & Co. of Delaware was also declared. This is payable Oct. 1 to holders of record Sept. 10.

T. G. Lee, president of the company, addressed a letter to all the Illinois company's preferred stockholders who have not made the exchange. He announced payment on the new stock and urged the advantages of the conversion option on a share for share basis with a bonus of two shares of common stock as payment of back dividends.

Arrears will total $26.25 on Oct. 1 and prospects of any payment are regarded as indefinite. To wipe out this debt other than by the exchange plan would require almost $4,500,000 on the shares now outstanding. Until this debt is wiped out, either by cash or the common stock bonus, no dividends can be paid on the common stock.

Amounts to About $600,000.

The present dividend will amount to slightly more than $600,000 on the basis of issuance of 70 per cent of the 573,213 shares authorized. Hopes are held that substantially more of the new stock will be taken in exchange for the old shares by Oct. 1, however.

P. L. Reed, vice president and treasurer of the company, said that the conversion is progressing "steadily and most satisfactorily." Exchange of the old "A" and "B" common stock was mandatory under the reorganization plan.

Recasting the capital structure has resulted in reduction of fixed property and asset values by more than 55 millions, with a saving of $2,150,000 in annual depreciation charges.

Special Quaker Oats Dividend.

Quaker Oats company yesterday declared a special dividend of $1 a share out of surplus in addition to the regular quarterly payment of $1 a share on the common stock, both payable Oct. 15 to stock of record Oct. 1. The company also declared the regular dividend of $1.50 a share quarterly on the 6 per cent preferred stock, payable Nov. 30 to stock of record Nov. 1.

John Stuart, president of the company, stated that the additional dividend was declared at this time as the surplus remaining is sufficient to protect the company against ordinary business emergencies and because of the desire of the company to help increase purchasing power and improve general conditions.

Other Payments Voted.

Northwestern Public Service corporation declared 87½ cents a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock and 75 cents a share on the 6 per cent preferred, both on account of accumulations.

Traco Theater declared a dividend of $3.50 a share on account of accumulations on the 7 per cent preferred stock.

Colorado Milling and Elevator company declared an extra dividend of 3 per cent and a bonus of $100,000 to employes.

United Elastic corporation declared a quarterly dividend of 10 cents, payable Sept. 24. Three months ago a dividend of 20 cents was declared and six months ago 25 cents was paid.

Traders Deny 'Kiting' Hint by Roosevelt

President Roosevelt's warning against "food profiteering," which was interpreted as a shaft aimed at the Chicago Board of Trade and other commodity exchanges dealing in foodstuffs, yesterday brought a reply from Robert P. Boylan, chairman of the executive committee of the Chicago grain exchange.

Mr. Boylan denied the implications contained in the President's statement, as well as those in the declarations of Secretary Wallace that the alleged transfer of speculative activities from other exchanges to the grain market constitutes a threat to public welfare. Asserting that encouragement of trading is necessary as a step toward recovery, rather than its discouragement, Boylan declared that the exchange could no longer ignore the implications of the President's statement.

See Speculation Discouraged.

Rather than stimulating speculation, Boylan said, "legislative and political uncertainties have greatly reduced speculation and the incentive to speculate in American markets."

"The Chicago Board of Trade," he added, "is as desirous as the administration at Washington that any market conditions which might arise shall rest upon a firm foundation. Such a foundation is supplied by the worst crop failure in more than 30 years, as shown by the government's estimates for 1934.

"Rules which bind members of this organization have evolved over a period of 86 years. We believe them stringent enough to meet any situation, now or in the future. We propose to continue to enforce these rules to the letter.

Prevent Improper Practices.

"The business conduct committee of the exchange and the Grain Futures administration are coöperating constructively to prevent any improper practices or violations of the grain futures act.

"A code of fair practices for the grain exchanges, in direct line with the President's recovery program, also is in effect. Margin requirements are in the code, and the daily price movements are limited."

The exchange spent months in negotiation with government officials on the code, and although it did not approve all provisions they are being enforced, Boylan said. The code has barely become operative, and as yet the exchange is unwilling to agree that it fails to provide the intended safeguards for the public, he added.

Freight Trafic Decreases to 602,530 Cars

Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended Aug. 11 decreased 8,768 cars from the preceding week to 602,530 cars, the American Railway association reported yesterday. Total loadings were 27,213 less than in the corresponding 1933 week but 9,565 more than the corresponding week in 1932.

The report was less favorable than earlier estimates had indicated. The decline from last year amounted to 3.1 per cent, compared with a drop of 1.5 per cent in the week ended Aug. 4.

The decline of 1.2 per cent from the preceding week compared with a gain of 1.5 per cent at this season a year ago.

In the last ten years there has been an even division of increases and declines in freight loadings between the first and second weeks of August, although the average of the ten years shows a seasonal gain of 0.3 per cent.

Miscellaneous Freight Sags.

Comparisons for three years follow:

ASK INJUNCTION AGAINST FIVE FOR FADA STOCK DEAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—The federal trade commission today filed application in Federal court for a temporary injunction restraining three New York brokers, the publisher of a financial paper, and John J. Hackett of Boston from selling common stock of the Fada Radio and Electric corporation, or from engaging in any fraudulent stock transaction.

The brokers named in the action, brought under the securities act of 1933, are Pearl Day Garrison, Samuel E. Price, and Nathan Schwartz. The action is also against Stock Market Finance, Inc., which publishes a financial bimonthly, and its president, Thomas J. Murphy.

The complaint alleges that, after buying a quantity of Fada stock, Hackett paid Stock Market Finance, Inc., $900 a week to publicize the stock favorably in its paper. It is alleged also that subscribers of the paper were asked by mail, telephone, or telegraph to purchase Fada stock. It was explained that the action in no way involved the Fada company.

DOLLAR SAGS AGAIN; VALUE APPROACHES GOLD EXPORT POINT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—The dollar again displayed its sensitiveness to developments in the program of silver remonetization today when it experienced a sharp setback in foreign exchange on news of the large silver purchases abroad for treasury account.

In terms of the new par of the franc the dollar dropped to 99.23 per cent of parity and closed at 99.26 per cent, off .23 cent. Based on the old par the dollar was worth 58.62 cents. The franc sold as high as 6.68¼ cents and closed at 6.68¼ cents, up 1¼ points. Sterling rallied to $5.10⅝ and closed up one cent net at $5.10. Other exchanges were uniformly higher.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported the receipt of $31,700 of gold from Jamaica and the release of $525,000 of gold from earmarking. It announced the receipt of word from San Francisco of the arrival there of $776,000 of gold from China.

Gold from Europe continued, however, to be turned back at port by the shippers. A consignment of $251,000 of gold to the Irving Trust company from India via Southampton, which arrived on the President Roosevelt, will be transshipped to London on the Berengaria, sailing tomorrow.

At today's closing price the franc was once more within easy striking distance of the export gold point. Another gain of the size recorded today would lift it to 6.70 cents, a price which insures profitable gold exports.

SEARS-ROEBUCK SALES REVEAL 5.8% INCREASE

Sears, Roebuck & Co. yesterday announced that sales for the period from July 17 to Aug. 18 amounted to $20,384,116 compared with $19,179,932 in the corresponding period of last year. This is an increase of $1,104,184 or 5.8 per cent.

For the period from Jan. 30 to Aug. 18 sales aggregated $160,928,616 against $128,170,522 a year ago, a gain of $32,753,094 or 25.6 per cent.

NEW YORK CITY PLANS LOTTERY BOND ISSUE FOR POOR RELIEF FUND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—Buy a twenty-five dollar baby bond from the city of New York and win a thousand dollars. This is the idea on which is based a plan now being considered here for raising $10,000,000 to be used in the city's welfare relief work. Details are being worked out by E. Everett Smith of the office of the commissioner of accounts and representatives of civic organizations.

The bonds would be guaranteed by the city, Mr. Smith explains, but would carry no interest. Every month fifteen bonds would be drawn for and the holder paid $1,000 each. This would cost the city on an annual basis $180,000. The average cost would be 1¼ per cent interest, which is much cheaper than the rate at which the city could borrow.

An additional feature is that the bonds would be listed on the New York Stock exchange. Officials of that institution, it is understood, have given assurances that despite the unusual nature of the bonds they would be willing to list them because of the charitable purpose for which the proceeds are to be used.

In answer to questions if the proposed plan did not take the form of a lottery, and therefore might be challenged as illegal, Mr. Smith replied that the matter had been put up to the corporation counsel, who had declared that it was in accordance with the rules governing the drawing of bonds. The bonds would be drawn by lot, and so retired that way.

AM. TELEPHONE OPERATING NET FALLS SHARPLY

American Telephone and Telegraph company yesterday reported net operating income for June of $638,120, compared with $1,526,408 in June, 1933.

For the first six months the total was $7,796,039, compared with $4,624,761 in the first half of last year. This report does not include nonoperating income such as dividends, interest and other revenues, and nonoperating charges such as interest and rents paid.

Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania reported June net operating income of $1,154,839 against $1,045,149 in June last year. For the first half year the total was $7,265,092, compared with $6,310,626 in the first half of 1933.

LUMBER FIRM CONTROL SOLD TO 2 CONCERNS

Control of the American Lumber and Treating company, Chicago manufacturers of wood preservative, has been acquired by the Aluminum Company of America and Chicago Bridge and Iron Works, according to an announcement yesterday by R. M. Morriss, president.

With support of the parent companies, Mr. Morriss said, the company will engage in an extensive sales promotion campaign. Two $50,000 plants, one in Franklin, Va., and the other in Wauna, Ore., are under construction.

Byfield, Bering Owe Millions; Assets Small

Ernest L. Byfield and Frank W. Bering, managing directors of the Hotel Sherman, yesterday filed personal schedules under the voluntary bankruptcy action taken recently by both men. Byfield listed liabilities of $12,318,468 and assets of $20,397. Bering's debts were put at $11,835,000, against assets of only $2,665.

In the original bankruptcy petition, both men stated that their predicament was attributable almost solely to pledging huge personal holdings in an effort to stave off receivership of the Hotel Sherman.

Byfield formerly was president and Bering managing director of the hotel. Gilbert H. Scribner, originally appointed co-receiver with Byfield and Bering, has become the sole trustee because of the bankruptcy proceedings.

Bulk in Unsecured Claims.

The bulk of Byfield's debts consists of unsecured claims of $11,598,092 and represents a guarantee on the bonds of the hotel which now are held by a committee. Also scheduled were $715,944 in debts secured by collateral, $3,531 in income tax, and $712 in personal property taxes.

Byfield estimates his assets as follows: $12,757 in stocks, $2,777 in money owed him, $1,761 in bills and promissory notes, $10,000 in unliquidated claims, $500 in real estate, $500 in personal property, $400 in household furnishings, $301 in insurance, and $400 which he claims is exempt.

Debts of Bering are distributed similarly—$11,420,045 in unsecured claims representing hotel obligations, $413,341 in secured claims, $1,050 in income taxes, and $643 in personal property taxes.

Bering's Assets Only $2,665.

Bering's assets, placed at only $2,665, include $450 claimed to be exempt property, $600 in animals, $600 in real estate, $400 of household goods, $325 in carriages and vehicles, $150 personal property, $130 insurance, and $10 in stocks and bonds.

Schedules for both men were filed by the law firm of Osborne, Kline, and McGurren.

An involuntary bankruptcy petition was filed against The Dells, café and roadhouse at Morton Grove. The action was taken by Janet Bloch of Milwaukee through Attorney Sidney J. Wolf. Her claim amounts to $700, for which she obtained a judgment June 11 last. She alleges insolvency since the judgment was not paid within 30 days and because Fred Huscher was permitted to take full possession Aug. 13 without paying her claim.

A reorganization petition was filed on behalf of creditors of the 226 South Wabash Shops Building corporation. According to the petition the liabilities are $160,000.

Big Rapids, Mich., Bank Is Licensed to Reopen

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago yesterday announced that at the direction of the secretary of the treasury a license for reopening had been issued to the Big Rapids Savings bank, Big Rapids, Mich., effective today.

PROCTER-GAMBLE EMPLOYES' PLAN SHARES PROFITS

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Employes of the Procter & Gamble company will get $252,613 tomorrow in semi-annual distribution of their profits from the company's operations, bringing to $15,000,000 or so the sums they have drawn since the profit sharing was begun 50 years ago. Approximately 8,000 employes in the United States, Canada, and England are participating.

The late William C. Procter held the theory, officials of the company said today, that employes would, if given opportunity, rather build up estates of their own than rely on pensions.

Since 1903, when the present profit sharing system was instituted, $11,500,000 has been paid out in dividends on employe owned stock and bonuses. Under the present plan each employe is permitted to purchase up to the equivalent of his annual salary in common stock of the company, paying for it in regular deductions from his pay.

Outstanding Commercial Paper Shows Big Increase

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Commercial paper outstanding on July 31 totaled $168,400,000, $17,100,000 above the previous month, $71,700,000 higher than a year ago, and the highest figure since November, 1930, according to reports to the New York federal reserve bank.

Shell Chief Predicts Oil Power Will Sweep Away Surpluses

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—World oil surpluses will be swept away by the use of oil as power, Sir Henri Deterding, head of the International Royal Dutch Shell Oil group, predicted today as he arrived from Europe aboard the Berengaria for a conference with Walter C. Teagle, president of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

"Diesel traction is bound to come and it will sweep everything before it," said the oil man. "Electrification of the railroads is already a thing of the past. The Diesel engine is the economic and independent unit of the future."

Assails "Hot Oil" Production.

The United States must "put its house in order" before there is any chance of stabilizing the world oil industry, he said. Sir Henry blamed the situation here on what he called "hot oil"—the illegal production and distribution of which he said has brought about a condition which amounts to paralyzation of the industry. He added he was amazed that the United States, while having regulatory laws, had done nothing to meet the situation.

The British oil magnate shrugged when asked if there was any chance of a world oil conference similar to that held in 1932. Nothing can be done, he said, "until you first put your house in order."

He declined to discuss the subject of his conference with Mr. Teagle, saying "there is always enough to talk about when oil men get together." He expressed the opinion the oil industry was trying to overproduce at what he called an outrageously low figure.

Says Price Is Too Low.

"Thirty-five cents now is the price," he continued, "when it might well be a dollar a barrel. The thing we should do is to work for more consumers. In America there is too much taking of business from one company by another. It is worse here than anywhere else in the world."

He admitted that with the growing rise of oil for power the coal industry might be affected, but said that coal should be converted into energy at the source. "The minute you begin transporting coal you begin losing money."

Asked if the development of oil fields in Irak would eliminate the United States as the principal factor in world oil distribution Sir Henry shrugged. "There are Americans there also," he pointed out. "Much of what you hear about Irak is political and not to be taken too seriously."

PWA NEAR END OF VAST FUND; HOPES FOR MORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—The gigantic Public Works easy money fund, totaling 3 billion 700 million dollars in all, was virtually wiped out today when Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes approved 215 nonfederal projects calling for $24,540,270. Only a little more than $4,000,000 of the huge fund remains.

Unless Ickes succeeds in getting another 100 million from President Roosevelt, exhausting the full amount authorized by congress, no other funds will be available except those which accumulate from recisions of grants already made. Such recisions are usually small, the notable exception being the $7,000,000 Chicago outer drive bridge allotment, which Ickes says he would not renew if he got the extra 100 million dollars.

More Billions Asked.

Requests for money running into the billions remain on the waiting list and officials are looking hopefully toward the Reconstruction Finance corporation and President Roosevelt for more funds. The President is authorized to turn over another 100 million to Public Works from the deficiency appropriation approved by the last congress. Secretary Ickes has not yet been able, however, to obtain definite assurance the money would be forthcoming.

The PWA has set aside reserves of nearly $42,000,000, but officials said this could not be drawn on for new projects because it was earmarked to meet contingencies such as rising labor and material costs which might make original allotments insufficient to complete projects.

The RFC appears to be the best source for more funds. Congress authorized it to buy securities held by PWA up to $250,000,000 at any one time. PWA can use the money obtained from this revolving fund only for loans.

Consider Selling Collateral.

Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, has been studying a list of the approximately $150,000,000 in bonds PWA has obtained as security for advances. Already the RFC has placed slightly less than $6,000,000 of such securities on the market as a "feeler."

There is some question as to whether public agencies will be overly eager to obtain loans from PWA. A big majority of allotments to nonfederal projects has been on the basis of loans plus outright grants. Some communities are reported to be finding they can market bonds at a better rate than the 4 per cent interest PWA charges on loans.

The new allocations went mostly to the drouth states, and a majority for schools, water and sewage systems. New York received the largest share for any one city, $4,006,000 for hospitals, piers, water works, and a laboratory.

Small Sums for Illinois.

Included in today's allotments were seventeen small ones for Illinois. The total of Illinois' share of the $24,540,270 was $972,000, the largest allotments being a grant of $170,000 for the Thornton Township High school in Cook county and a loan and grant of $230,000 for a jail at St. Clair, Ill. Other Illinois allotments were:

Ashland, $75,000, loan and grant for water works; Villa Grove, loan and grant of $45,000 for water supply; Griggsville, $90,000, loan and grant for water works; Warrensburg, $36,000, loan and grant for water works; Polo, $36,000, loan and grant for sewage plant; Salem, $46,000, loan and grant for sewage plant; Grayville, $10,800, loan and grant for streets; Douglas county, $38,700, loan and grant for school; Shelby county, $78,000, loan and grant for school; Oglesby, $22,000, loan and grant for school; East Alton, $20,200, grant for pavement; Havana, $21,200, loan and grant for water works; Cave-In-Rock, $23,000, loan and grant for electric plant; Roanoke, $19,000, grant for sewer system; Logan county, $11,500, loan and grant for school.

PLAN PROCEDURE IN CORRIGAN AND REPUBLIC UNION

Cleveland, O., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Officials of the Corrigan-McKinney Steel company and the Republic Steel corporation were in conference again today, outlining legal procedure in the proposed merger of the two companies, but reported they had no announcement to make. The officials have been holding frequent conferences since July 8, when it was announced that negotiations had advanced to the point where detailed plans would be submitted in a few months to directors and stockholders of the two concerns.

It is unofficially reported that in the merger Republic Steel contemplates an issue of convertible obligations and a readjustment of its preferred stock. At present there is outstanding $59,560,800 of 7 per cent cumulative convertible preferred and $90,000,000 unclassified preferred stocks. Only 1,992,064 of the 5,000,000 shares of common are outstanding.

Corrigan-McKinney Steel is controlled by the McKinney Steel Holding company, which owns 55 per cent of the voting common stock.

Bond Traders Gather Here to Form National Group

The Bond Traders Club of Chicago will be hosts next week to more than 400 bond traders from all parts of the country, W. W. Cruttenden, president, announced yesterday. The traders are meeting for the purpose of forming a national traders' organization to coördinate the activities of various local associations. The convention will be held Aug. 23, 24, and 25 in the Palmer House.

New Dealers Woo Investor with Shotguns

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The whole recovery program depends on success in wooing the investor, but instead of going after him with violets and bonbons the New Dealers are on his trail with sawed-off shotguns, a pack of hounds, squad cars, and dynamite.

The brain trust's recovery scheme is based on the idea that if the government spends a few billions to give business a start private capital will become encouraged by the pickup in business volume and will start investing.

The return of the investor is highly important because what business needs is long term capital of the type afforded by people who buy bonds. The banks are ready and able to supply all the short term loans necessary to float current business transactions, but only the bond and mortgage buyer can build homes and office buildings, streamlined passenger trains and factories.

Obviously the federal government cannot go on indefinitly spending each year billions more than it takes in. It is imperative, therefore, that private capital regain confidence and start investing before the federal government runs out of priming fluid.

* * *

What has happened?

The government spending program is well under way. Millions of dollars have been poured into banks, railroads, public works, farm relief, debt relief, and unemployment relief by such agencies as the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the Public Works administration, the Home Owners' Loan corporation, and the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation.

Out of the mouth of the pump, however, comes nothing but the priming fluid—minus, of course, that part of it which was wasted in the process.

The only agencies buying long term bonds in sizable quantities are insurance companies and trust funds, which are limited by law to that type of security. Banks have bought a few. But even these purchasers are buying mostly government bonds instead of the securities put out by private corporations.

* *

The New Deal scheme of starting a recovery movement by spending billions of public funds has turned out to be a boomerang. Instead of instilling confidence in the mind of the investor it has scared him to death.

Some of the big investors have taken their funds to foreign countries. Others have been buying government bonds in the hope of being able to turn them quickly into cash if the need arises. The little fellows have been buying government bonds or keeping their money in the bank.

This is not surprising. The Big Bad Wolf's disguise is imperfect and Little Red Riding Hood is suspicious.

* *

To win the confidence of investors in mortgages Washington has given them the Frazier-Lemke act.

To stiffen the courage of insurance policy holders and bond buyers there has already been a 40 per cent debasement of the dollar and the promise of further debasement either through additional debasement or dilution with silver.

To rally investors to the support of industrial corporations there has been the boosting of operating expenses through the NRA and tax increases, so that many companies are reporting reduced profits despite increased sales.

Railroad bondholders get the glad tidings that higher pension costs, the NRA and tax boosts will add 360 millions a year to operating expenses at a time when higher rates would drive business to highways and waterways.

Public utility security owners are cheered by the news of rate reductions coincident with tax increases and NRA additions to operating expenses.

And behind it all is the certainty of higher taxes for business to pay when the billions of dollars now being borrowed by the government have to be paid back.

Which makes it easy to understand why the investor has taken to the cyclone cellar.

HEARING IS DELAYED ON APPOINTMENT OF MIDDLE WEST TRUSTEE

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday continued to Sept. 17 the hearings on a motion to appoint Daniel C. Green, president of the Middle West Utilities company, as permanent trustee for the company pending reorganization, under section 77B of the amended bankruptcy law.

Before a courtroom jammed with spectators, attorney for bondholders, preferred and common stockholders, and creditors argued the motion and the proposed reorganization plan, to be interrupted by the judge with a request for a definite indication as to the time it would take to submit the plan and get the company out of receivership. The possibility of a co-trustee to serve with Green also was indicated by the judge.

Attorney Robert M. Golding for the noteholders' committee told the court that reorganization of the company should be completed within ninety days, provided the $12,000,000 necessary to satisfy creditors under options at 50 cents on the dollar could be obtained.

F. L. Johnson Jr., 4427 North Rockwell street, a common stockholder in the company, protested to the court that he and other stockholders of his knowledge had been kept in the dark about the reorganization and the affairs of the company. Attorney Lewis F. Jacobson, counsel for the creditors, replied that the company reports are open to inspection at the concern's office in the Opera building.

U. S. DEMANDS REPORT ON ALL SILVER STOCKS

Owners Must List Holdings Sept. 15.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—A rigid system of government licenses and reports was clamped down on holders of silver bullion today by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr.

HENRY MORGENTHAU JR.

The secretary, acting under the silver purchase act, ordered all owners of silver bullion to report their holdings to him on Sept. 15. His order covers all silver, regardless of whether the metal comes within the scope of President Roosevelt's nationalization order of Aug. 9.

The secretary's order was the treasury's first step to bring under control silver other than that which was in the United States on Aug. 9, the date of the nationalization. Previously, the treasury had said subsequent imports of the metal would be free silver.

Must Report Purchases.

In addition to demanding an original report from silver holders on Sept. 15, Secretary Morgenthau served notice that thereafter persons must report all purchases or sales of silver within 45 days after the sales or purchases take place.

Silver which is surrendered to the mints before Sept. 1 is the only classification of silver which the secretary exempted from his rigid system of reports. All other silver is included.

Secretary Morgenthau also attempted in his order to put the squeeze on silver producers who have been holding out their "newly mined" silver. Beginning Dec. 21 the treasury offered 64½ cents an ounce for all silver subsequently mined in the United States. This silver has thus far been exempt from the nationalization order or other restraints.

Secretary Morgenthau today ruled, however, that "newly mined" silver must be sold to the treasury at 64½ cents before Nov. 7, or within 15 days after refining, or be commandeered by the government at 50 cents an ounce under the nationalization order.

Aimed at Holdouts.

This move was an outgrowth of a feeling at the treasury that the silver porducers were holding out their newly mined metal on the gamble that they could eventually cash in on it for more than 64½ cents an ounce.

Federal licenses will be issued, Secretary Morgenthau announced, to permit the acquisition or withholding of silver which was nationalized on Aug. 9, if it is needed for industrial use, reexport, or the fulfillment of preëxisting contracts. But he added a major proviso. Licenses to withhold nationalized silver will not be issued for these purposes if the silver can be replaced with silver that has not been nationalized.

Silver required to be surrendered must be in lots of not less than 24,500 troy ounces, or the total amount which the depositor is under obligation to deliver if that is less than 24,500 troy ounces.

Rule on Metal's Fineness.

Silver which may be—but is not required to be—delivered will be received only if of a fineness greater than 0.8 and in lots of not less than 50 troy ounces.

The treasury reported that in one week $11,476,508 of silver certificates were issued, lifting the total outstanding to $505,944,711. In the same period the treasury's stock of silver bullion rose from $2,484,700 to $24,915,518.

During the week the government's "profit" or "seignorage" rose from $6,136,421 to $18,325,740. Seignorage represents the difference between what the silver cost the treasury and its statutory value of $1.29 an ounce.

Silver Shipment Arrives.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—The liner President Roosevelt arrived here from England with 3,384 bars of silver bullion aboard valued at $2,000,000. The shipment was the first large one since the government nationalized the metal. Since the passage of the silver purchase act last June, however, several shipments of silver have arrived here from London.

As the bullion was shipped after the nationalization order was issued the consensus is that it is for the account of the treasury department. The metal will probably be delivered directly to the assay office here.

STOCKS MOVE IN NARROW RANGE; TRADE STAGNATE

Volume Barely Sufficient to Pay for Ticker.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—Stocks remained almost motionless today. It took careful scrutiny to detect one with more than a fraction change from yesterday's figure, and sales volume was hardly sufficient to pay for the wear and tear on the ticker.

Reactionary tendencies developed toward the close, but toll was paid for the most part by preferred issues and the more speculative descriptions of the specialty division. Such old reliables as United States Steel, General Motors, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Case, Johns Manville, and American Can held within a point of their previous finals in spite of such selling as they were called upon to weather.

Brokers attributed the late afternoon selling mainly to the failure of the list to carry through on rallying tendencies it has been exhibiting in off and on fashion for the last two days.

Fertilizer Shares Rise.

A modest feature of the session was a flurry of activity in fertilizer shares. Virginia-Carolina Chemical 7 per cent preferred jumped 10 points to 84 and American Agricultural Chemical made a new high for the year at 38⅞, up 2¼ points, while International Agricultural Corporation prior preferred jumped 7 points to 26, later easing a point from its high.

Stocks allied with the home building and repair industries were bought on the speculative appeal offered by the new loan drive, but none of them broke any records for activity.

In the foods division Armour preferreds rose on the dividend notice and some of the other foods attracted an order or two on the strength of the hoarding movement supposed to be growing out of emphasis in high official quarters on the great inroads made on the country's supply of edibles by the drouth.

Bullishness for the New York traction stocks cooled off a bit and a tendency to take profits and postpone for a while further buying of BMT and I. R. T. was plain to be seen. Weakness in the dollar attracted some demand to the gold and silver mining shares in the early dealings, but the group eased off with the rest of the list toward the close. U. S. Smelters finished 3 points lower.

National Lead Soars.

Among the individual performers to get a hand were National Lead which found a thin selling market and hopped up nearly 7 points. The chemicals took it on the chin and United Aircraft had its troubles in the final hour reaction. Oil issues marked time.

So far as the market is seen by the brokerage house gossips, it is now "between hay and grass." In trading circles the horizon is being scanned carefully for signs that the fall upturn in business, due about this time, is at hand.

Its appearance this year will have more than the usual significance attached to it, since it has been feared in some quarters for a month or two that the summer recession this time would be much deeper and more prolonged than "normal."

GRAIN ACTION NERVOUS; PRICE TREND IS LOWER

Strong Cash Market Aids Rise in September Wheat

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

An interplay of conflicting forces kept the grain markets in an unsettled state yesterday. While September wheat futures, buoyed up by the cash wheat market, maintained a strong tone, the market elsewhere displayed weakness.

Conspicuous strength was shown in cash wheat and buyers paid the biggest premiums over the September future quotation that have been witnessed this season. The scarcity of hard wheat, used in the manufacture of bread flour, has forced up the prices. Normal price differentials between Chicago and other markets which reflect the cost of transporting the grain here, have been largely ignored in the scramble to pick up hard wheat. Flour sales were reported yesterday to be improving and millers were credited with buying of wheat futures.

September Wheat Higher.

Buttressed by the demand for cash wheat, the September delivery yesterday recovered from an early decline of a cent a bushel and closed ¼ cent higher at $1.01⅝. The December wheat contract, however, dropped ⅛ cent and May wheat lost 1 cent a bushel. All corn futures declined with losses ranging from 1⅛ cents to 2⅜ cents with the distant deliveries registering the biggest declines. Oats lost ⅝ to 1¼ cents and rye fell ½ to 1⅝ cents.

The big speculative interest has been in the distant deliveries and prices of these were depressed further when liquidation developed. Those who sold September wheat for hedging purposes earlier are now transferring from the nearby to later deliveries. The transfer involves buying in September wheat and selling in the later contracts. As a result the price spread between September and December wheat has once again been narrowed down to 1⅜ cents a bushel.

Price Spread 4 Cents.

The price of May wheat which theoretically reflects the carrying charge accruing between now and the delivery date is about 4 cents above September. The estimated cost of carrying the wheat is 1½ cents a bushel per month.

Weakness in the corn market yesterday was credited in part to the dislodging of purchases made at higher prices. There had been good speculative buying in the grain and the decline in market has brought out heavy selling. There have been good rains over the corn belt. The forecast yesterday held the possibility of further moisture. The consensus is that deterioration in the crop has been checked and the extremely bullish news has been fairly well exploited.

The foreign wheat markets declined sharply yesterday and played a large part in bringing about the early recession in prices here. In Liverpool prices broke more than 2 cents a bushel as reports were received of good rains in the Australian and Argentine wheat belts. In Canada the harvest is now getting in full swing and hedging is evident in the Winnipeg market, where prices sold off about 1½ cents a bushel.

ILLINOIS COAL OUTPUT HIGHER; BELOW YEAR AGO

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Illinois coal production, 2,204,621 tons in July, increased 81,376 tons over June, but was 145,614 under the same month last year, it was announced today by Director James McSherry of the department of mines and minerals.

The 114 mines operating last month employed 27,702 men, an average of 10.9 days each.

BEST PREMIUM ON WHEAT THIS YEAR PAID HERE

Premiums paid yesterday for hard winter wheat on the Chicago market were the largest this season. Buyers paid 6 cents over the September future price for No. 2 hard wheat and 8 cents over September for the No. 1 hard variety. Hard wheat is customarily used for making bread flour, but the premiums have become so stiff that it is predicted millers will have to buy some soft wheat to keep down their costs.

The supply of hard wheat is considerably short of the estimated normal demand of 400,000,000 bushels. The government estimated Aug. 1 that only 261,000,000 of hard wheat will be available this year in the southwestern winter wheat and the northwestern spring wheat belts. This excludes Pacific coast production. Meanwhile soft wheat can be obtained at only a slight premium over the September future price and there is a plentiful supply with some Pacific coast soft wheat reported to be offered in the eastern territory. Pastry flours are made from the soft wheat.

Durum wheat, from which spaghetti and macaroni are made, will aggregate about a third of the normal crop. Durum is currently commanding a price of $1.46 a bushel in Minneapolis.

In other years when the shortage occurred in the soft wheat belt the present price situation was reversed. Soft wheat would command much larger premiums than the hard wheat.

Another abnormal feature of the cash grain market is the price being paid for barley. In Milwaukee all sales of No. 1 and No. 3 barley were made at $1.11 to $1.15 a bushel, the highest price paid in several years and a good premium over choice hard winter wheat in the Chicago market.

Paul H. Davis & Co., Chicago stock brokerage firm, is understood to have applied for membership on the Chicago Board of Trade.

FARMER INCOME BELIEVED BEST IN LAST 4 YEARS

1934 Total Is Placed at $8,250,000,000.

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—It appears assured that aggregate farm income this year will be the largest since 1930, says Standard Statistics company in a survey issued today. "It is tentatively estimated," it says, "that agricultural income, including bounties, relief payments, etc., will approximate $8,250,000,000, an increase of 29.3 per cent over last year."

The statistical organization places actual farm income for the year at $6,950,000,000, and including relief payments and bounties paid to date and in prospect for the remainder of the year, expects a total figure of $8,250,000,000.

Figures for Previous Years.

The total for 1933, including federal benefits, is placed at $6,383,000,000. The totals given for 1931 and 1930 were $6,911,000,000 and $9,414,000,000, respectively. The peak for recent years was $11,918,000,000 for 1929.

The company expresses the opinion that the drouth as a factor in the general business outlook has been over emphasized.

"Accompanied by a fanfare of publicity," says the survey, "the drouth has been a major influence in disrupting confidence in the business outlook for coming months. It is not generally recognized, however, that the grains, which have been damaged the most and which have received the greatest attention in the news reports, because of speculative interest in their markets, normally provide only a small percentage of gross income.

Best Income from Live Stock.

"The bulk of the farmers' income for the whole country is normally derived from live stock and dairy products. These two classifications will provide some 53 per cent of aggregate revenues this year.

"While the adverse influences of the drouth cannot be minimized, especially with respect to those areas which derive the major portion of their income from field crops, it appears that the probable effects upon business generally have been greatly over emphasized."

The survey points out that the increase in farm purchasing power will be less than the increase in gross income, however, because of the rise in farmers' living costs in the last year. The price index of what the farmer buys averaged 109 in 1933, and currently stands at about 122. Thus, living costs are about 12 per cent higher than last year.

Trade Prospect Improves.

The turn to more favorable weather, particularly the easing of drouth conditions in the midwest, has brightened business prospects and sentiment. Dun & Bradstreet's weekly trade review said today.

"Based on the more favorable turn of merchandising developments during the last ten days, many well posted executives are of opinion that estimates of fall trade will need to be revised in an upward direction," the survey said.

"The volume of retail sales was larger than a week earlier, with gains ranging from 2 per cent in some parts of the east to 20 to 30 per cent, respectively, for the southwest and Pacific coast."

REPORT OIL MEN WILL PURCHASE EXCESS GASOLINE

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The New York Sun said today major oil companies tentatively have agreed on a plan to relieve the petroleum market of "distress" gasoline by extensive purchases covering the whole country east of the Rocky mountains.

The plan, it was said, had been brought before the oil executives in a special meeting at headquarters of the American Petroluem institute here and then referred to Washington for official approval.

Sometime ago, with the approval of Secretary Ickes, oil administrator, the major oil companies adopted a plan for taking distress gasoline from Texas fields off the market. The plan ran for thirty days to the end of July, but purchases have continued.

RAIL MEN CONFER WITH CANADIANS ON RATE BOOSTS

Railroad traffic officials, meeting here to consider rate increases, yesterday conferred in the Drake hotel with representatives of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railroads and officials of the Inland Waterways corporation, the government-owned river transportation system.

They sought coöperation of these organizations hoping to secure agreements that if the suggested $17,000,000 increase in rates is granted by the interstate commerce commission the competitive character of international and waterway rates will be maintained. It was said the meetings probably will last through next Wednesday.

Indiana Interurban Line Sells Abandoned Trackage

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Eighty-six miles of interurban tracks, trolley wire, poles, and bridges in northern Indiana and southern Michigan were sold today to the Hyman Michaels company of Chicago by the Northern Indiana Railways. Sale of the property, abandoned by the railway company, for $116,385, the highest of nine bids received, was approved by Circuit Judge Dan Pyle. Included in the property which changed hands is the 1,800 foot bridge over the St. Joseph river at Berrien Springs, Mich., regarded as the longest interurban line span in the world.

Cotton and Sugar Exchange Membership Values Rise

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17. — The third membership of C. J. Walter on the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange has been sold to J. J. Kutch for $4,800, up $550 from the previous transaction. A membership on the New York Cotton exchange has been sold for $18,000, an increase of $500 over the last transaction. Howard S. Filston proposes to purchase for $95,000 the stock exchange membership of Arthur K. Harris, member since May 15, 1924. Mr. Filston will form his own firm. A new membership of C. A. Durand & Son was proposed today.

PREDICTS WORLD WHEAT PARLEY WILL BE FAILURE

Expert Says U. S. Export Quota Is Small.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—An official European wheat export, who has been in closest touch with the international wheat conference in session here, predicted tonight that the parley will end in a stalemate.

The expert, who is a neutral observer of all negotiations, said the new plan for a quarterly system of export quotas will be killed and that it will be at least a month before there will be any chance of fixing annual quotas for the export year which began on Aug. 1.

"Most delegates are ready now to let this year take care of itself," he declared. "The chief hope of the Americans, Canadians, and Australians is to keep the international wheat advisory commission intact until August, 1935, when the world situation might again become critical."

Confirms 10 Million Quota.

This official confirmed information obtained earlier in the day that the United States is tentatively slated for an export quota of only 10 million bushels this year and that the tentative figure for Argentina is 150 million bushels.

The figure for the United States was startlingly small, although it had been known that a considerable reduction was likely because of the drouth. The quota mentioned earlier, however, had been 30 million bushels.

The expert gave a full explanation of reports published abroad that a pact had been drawn up giving the United States a quota of 15 million bushels, Argentina 140 million, Canada 250 million and Australia 120 million.

These figures, he said, had been used in a document circulated among the governments about a month ago. "They were used merely for the purpose of illustration, demonstrating a complicated system which had been evolved to divide such amounts into quarterly quotas," he said.

U. S. Officials Undisturbed.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Administration officials remained undisturbed today over the prospective cut of the United States wheat export quota to 10 million bushels under the international wheat agreement.

The United States had an export quota of 47 million bushels under the agreement last marketing year, but shipped only about 35 million bushels. The tentative quota set for this year was 90 million bushels and the loss of 80 million bushels of this would mean little, officials said, since this country will have practically no wheat or flour to export.

They said that the principal concern of the United States is maintaining the agreement in force in order to have some effective control over the world market when production of surpluses again occurs.

RAIL OPERATING NET DECLINES SHARPLY IN JUNE

Operating income of 147 class I railroads during June amounted to $41,836,302, compared with $59,831,292 in June last year. Operating revenue for the month totaled $282,779,495, against $278,329,371 in June, 1933, it was reported yesterday.

For the first six months the total was $225,803,916, against $154,728,919 in the corresponding period of last year. Operating revenues for the period amounted to $1,629,897,101, against $1,415,322,703 a year ago.

The Illinois Central railroad during June had a net loss of $419,640, compared with a net profit of $783,885 in June, 1933. Net loss for the first half year totaled $1,780,934, against $1,729,206 for the first six months of 1933.

Chains Pledge Support of NRA Food Standards

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—NRA said today the Food and Grocery Chain Stores of America, a trade association of practically all the major food chains, has offered "active support" in the attempt to establish quality standards and grades and more informative labels for canned foods. F. H. Massman, president of the association, telegraphed NRA that his group would urge adoption of the standards established by the department of agriculture.

Named Divisional Head of Field Hosiery Units

J. E. England has been appointed manager of the hosiery department of the manufacturing and wholesale divisions of Marshall Field & Co., it was announced yesterday by Harrison P. Shedd, vice president and general manager of those divisions. Mr. England will be in complete charge of manufacturing and selling activities in the Chicago and New York departments and in the hosiery mills in Philadelphia, Pa., and Fieldale, Va.

U. S. EXTENDS AIR MAIL CONTRACTS 9 MONTHS; 31 ROUTES INVOLVED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Officials of the postoffice department said today present air mail contracts, which were let originally for a period of three months, would be extended an additional nine months under authority of the air mail act approved June 12 this year.

Nineteen contracts involving 31 routes will be affected by the extension. The original three month period specified in the contract of United airlines expired Aug. 7 and the nine month extension already has been granted that company. The other contracts will be extended as fast as they expire, the officials said.

Only one of the 31 air mail routes now under contract has not yet begun operation. That is the route between Daytona Beach, Fla., and St. Petersburg. Officials said the field at Daytona Beach was not yet in condition for regular landing of large mail planes there. The extensions were decided on, the postal authorities asserted, because all the lines now flying the air mail were performing satisfactory service.

PRICES OF HOGS BOUND AGAIN ON SHORT RECEIPTS

Top, Including Tax, Rises to $9.40 in East.

Sweeping advances carried hogs to new heights for the present rise on extremely small receipts at all of the leading packing centers again yesterday. Top sales in the east, tax included, soared to $9.40, the highest packers have paid for hogs since November, 1930.

Slaughter supplies over the entire country are running smallest of the year and show substantial decreases compared with corresponding periods in recent years. Available fresh receipts in many places are not sufficient to take care of the current demand for pork in face of the substantial rise in prices at all distributing points and in butcher shops. The Chicago supply yesterday was only 9,000 hogs, about as low as the Friday run ever gets.

Pork Rises More Slowly.

While there has been some substantial advances in most cuts of pork this week, loins as always on a bulge indicating the maximum gains, the upturn in pork as a whole has not quite kept pace with the sensational advance in live costs of the hogs. However, much of the pork now in the trade is coming out of storage houses, where it was placed during the spring and early summer at live costs $2.50 to $3 under the current level.

Fresh pork loins jumped 1 to 2 cents more yesterday, top light weights selling up to 19 cents a pound wholesale, with a few sales as high as 20 cents. These were the highest prices since July, 1932, and showed gains of 5 to 6 cents for the week. At this time last year top loins were going at 12½ cents and at the low time of the winter they frequently sold for less than 8 cents.

Bulk Sells at $8.00 to $8.85.

The bulk of the hogs on the Chicago market cost packers $8 to $8.85, tax included. The peak price was $8.90 and the average for the day figured $8.45, of which the farmers' returns were $6.65 and $6.30, respectively. At the low time this spring hogs averaged $3 less and a year ago yesterday the average was $3.85.

Receipts of cattle dropped off as prices showed further signs of improvement in steers. Only 1,500 commercial cattle were in the pens, but packers slaughtered 3,000 drouth cattle and 1,000 calves for the government. Some plain classes of cattle were slow, but most classes met fair demand at steady to strong prices, and the clearance was better than it has been any time this week. Nothing here was eligible to sell the $9.25 top quotation carried by the trade. Some good 1,175 pound steers cashed at $8.10 and yearlings averaging 902 pounds sound at $7.50. The bulk of the steers brought $5 to $7.25. Calves were strong again, with selected vealers at $6.25 to $7 and occasionally $7.25.

Sheep receipts increased to the largest total of the week. However, there was a healthier undertone to the trade and sellers held prices fully steady with the average of Thursday. Natives and westerns topped at $7.

ILLINOIS JOBS, WAGES DECLINE DURING JULY

Downturn Seasonal; Totals Above 1933.

July employment in Illinois declined 1.4 per cent and pay rolls dropped 2.3 per cent below June, the first decreases for all combined industries since January of this year, according to the Illinois department of labor. Its report covers 4,481 manufacturing and non manufacturing concerns, employing 447,785 wage earners. Total weekly wages of the group were $9,736,468.

The decline in employment agreed closely with the usual June-July movement while the loss in pay rolls was considerably less than usual for July. Average June-July losses computed by the department since 1923 were 1.3 per cent in employment and 4.8 per cent in pay rolls for all industries combined.

Employment during July, despite losses from June, was 13.3 per cent above July of last year, 26.7 per cent above July, 1932 and only 4 per cent lower than July, 1931. Pay rolls for the month were 20 and 38.8 per cent, respectively, above the corresponding months of 1933 and 1932, but 16.3 per cent below July, 1931.

Manufacturing firms numbering 2,078 reported losses of 1.7 per cent in employment and 3.9 per cent in pay rolls. These seasonal declines were smaller than the average June-July period since 1922. Employment in manufacturing industries during the month was 17.4 per cent higher than a year ago, 26.7 per cent above July, 1932 and 1.4 per cent over the level of July, 1931.

Pay rolls during July for these industries were 26.6 per cent and 66.1 per cent, respectively, above those of the corresponding month in 1933 and 1932, but 10.4 per cent below those of July, 1931.

Jobs Rise, Wages Down.

Among the nonmanufacturing industries, numbering 2,403 establishments, a loss of 1 per cent in pay rolls, but a gain of 0.1 of 1 per cent in employment were reported. Employment for these industries was 6.2 per cent higher than a year ago and 10.9 per cent above July, 1932. Pay rolls were 10.6 per cent above July of last year and 9.6 per cent above July, 1932. Both employment and pay rolls were considerably below the July, 1931, levels, the report stated.

Shorter work schedules were partially responsible for the losses in July as shown by a decline of 4.3 per cent in actual man hours worked by 290,808 wage earners in 3,069 establishments. Female workers were more seriously affected by employment losses than were males, according to the reports from 4,110 firms.

The companies would then dustries dropped 1 per cent while that for females declined 2.9 per cent.

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY TO INCREASE YOUR INCOME

Selling Ford Passenger Cars, Trucks and Commercial Cars

On Monday, Aug. 20, 1934, a school for Ford retail salesmen will be started in Chicago under the supervision of the Ford Motor Company.

This school will have two classes daily and will be open every afternoon [except Saturday and Sunday] from 1:15 to 4:15 p. m. and every evening from 7:15 to 9:15 p. m. until further notice.

The evening classes will offer an unusual opportunity to young men now engaged in other lines of business, such as clerks, etc., who wish to train themselves for Ford retail salesmen. Such young men may retain their present positions, if necessary, while attending this school.

55,000 Women Select Marinello!

During the past 33 years more than 55,000 ambitious women, seeking successful careers in the field of Beauty Culture, have chosen the internationally famous Marinello System of training.

There are many schools offering courses in Beauty Culture. All of them cannot be the best. Which one will you select? It is an important decision—as the extent of your earning power depends on the type of training you receive.

Don't buy your training in the art of Beauty Culture on the basis of the cheapness of the course. An apparent saving in tuition now may be a great handicap to you in years to come. Marinello training is built up to a standard, not down to a price.

VISIT OUR SCHOOL.

NOW!—Marinello Offers

New Easy Payment Plan

Free employment service—or we will help you establish your own business. BURNHAM
School of Beauty Culture

OFFERS OPPORTUNITIES FOUND ONLY AT BURNHAM'S.

When you visit Burnham's you'll understand why more girls enroll in this school than in any other and you'll be amazed at the unexpected and exclusive advantages which our 63 year record of turning out the best operators enables us to pass on to you—such as positions on ocean liners, positions with the best shops which DEMAND Burnham graduates, the opportunity of earning while learning, free tools, unlimited practice on living models, easy terms, and many other advantages.

Once explained you'll see how Burnham teaching methods will enable you to master Beauty Culture quicker, easier, and better—why these methods develop the type of operator shop owners want.

If you ACT now you can arrange to pay for most of your tuition after you graduate. Call, phone, or write for FREE BEAUTY BOOK.
